JAP BARBARITY OPENS BATAAN 'DEATH MARCH'

Col. Dyess Relates Foe's Cruelty.

The late Lt. Col. W. E. Dyess, an American officer who escaped from a Japanese prison camp, has told in previous articles of the surrender of the American forces on Bataan. Today he begins the shocking details of the Death March of Bataan. Col. Dyess died in an airplane accident last Dec. 22.

North of the narrow flying field stood Mount Bataan, its jagged crater rising 4,600 feet above us into the clear, cool sky. From these upper reaches came the drone of Jap dive bombers, circling endlessly. To the south, smoke still was rising from the rubble which a few days before had been the little seaport town of Mariveles.

Three miles away, across the harbor's blue green waters, the rocky eminence of Corregidor stood unconquered, still guarding the sea approaches to a Manila that had fallen. Grayish smoke puffs blossomed along the sides and pinnacles of the Rock as high flying Jap bombers dropped their loads.

Japs Wheel Up Artillery.

The dust that enveloped Mariveles field was being stirred up by the wheels of trucks and gun carriages. Jap artillery was preparing to open fire on Corregidor from the protection of sunken rice paddies and near-by ridges. From the pall of smoke and dust new prisoners—American and Filipino soldiers—emerged in lines and groups to join those of us already there, awaiting the pleasure of the imperial Japanese army.

The first thing I heard after our arrival was an urgent whispering which came to us from all sides. "Get rid of your Jap stuff, quick!"

"What Jap stuff?" we whispered back.

"Everything; money, souvenirs. Get rid of it!" We did so without delay—and just in time. Jap noncommissioned officers and 3-star privates were moving among us ordering that packs be opened and spread out. They searched our persons, then went thru the other stuff, confiscating personal articles now and then.

Shoved, Cuffed, and Boxed.

I noticed that the Japs, who up to now had treated us with an air of cool suspicion, were beginning to get rough. I saw men shoved, cuffed, and boxed. This angered and mystified us. It was uncalled for. We were not resisting. A few ranks away a Jap jumped up from a pack he had been inspecting. In his hand was a small shaving mirror.

"Nippon?" he asked the owner. The glass was stamped: "Made in Japan." The soldier nodded. The Jap stepped back, then lunged, driving his rifle butt into the American's face. "Yaah!" he yelled, and lunged again. The Yank went down. The raging Jap stood over him, driving crushing blows to the face until the prisoner lay insensible.

A little way off a Jap was smashing his fists into the face of another American soldier who went to his knees and received a thudding kick in the groin. He, too, it seemed, had been caught with some Japanese trifle.

Beyond Understanding.

We were shocked. This treatment of war prisoners was beyond our understanding. I still didn't get it, even after some one explained to me that the Japs assumed the contraband articles had been taken from the bodies of their dead. I was totally unprepared for the appalling deed that came next.

I was too far off to witness it personally, but I saw the victim afterward. We had known him. A comrade who had stood close by told me later in shocking detail what had taken place.

The victim, an air force captain, was being searched by a 3-star private. Standing by was a Jap com

Stalin Reports Reds Trap 10 Nazi Divisions

LONDON, Feb. 4 [Friday] (AP).—Premier Marshal Stalin announced last night that 10 German divisions—probably 150,000 men—have been trapped by a double Red army offensive in the Ukraine. Berlin announced the evacuation of the strongholds of Rowne [Rovno] and Luck [Lutsk] in a 50 mile axis retreat deep in Poland.

Capping these German reverses was a late Moscow dispatch saying the soviet Leningrad army had crossed the Estonian frontier to take four villages in Estonia.

A midnight Moscow bulletin said nearly 10,000 Germans already had been killed in trying to break out of the huge Ukraine trap. It also said more than 7,400 Germans had been slain in the north in three days.

Biggest Trap Since Stalingrad.

Springing the greatest trap since Stalingrad, the 1st and 2d Ukraine armies under Generals Nikolai F. Vatutin and Ivan S. Konev captured 300 towns and villages in a five day, 100 mile breakthru to join forces 45 miles below the middle Dnieper river bend.

The 10 German divisions were locked in a circular pocket approximately 50 miles in diameter on a front 60 to 110 miles southeast of Kiev.

Stalin ordered 20 salvoes from 224 Moscow cannon to celebrate the greatest potential bag of enemy troops since the Nazi 6th army of 330,000 men was killed or captured a year ago at Stalingrad.

Moscow was silent on the German announcement of axis reverses inside old Poland, tho Berlin said the Germans had given up Rowne and Luck "in the course of embittered defensive fighting."

Luck 85 Miles Across Border.

Illustrating the powerful comeback of the Red army is the fact that Luck was captured by the Germans June 29, 1941, one week after they began their attack on Russia.

Luck, nearly 50 miles west of previously reported battle lines in old Poland and 85 miles inside the prewar border, is more than half way across the Polish strip occupied by Russia in the 1939 partitioning of Poland.

Rowne's approaches have been under Russian attack for weeks. It is 40 miles east of Luck.

In closing the huge Ukrainian trap, the two Russian armies smashed ahead as much as 45 miles each.

How Trap Was Snapped.

Gen. Vatutin attacked southeastward from Belaya Tserkov, while Gen. Konev struck westward from an area above Kirovograd, piercing strong German defenses. Among the hundreds of localities overrun was Smela, which the Germans admitted giving up last Saturday.

Moscow had remained silent thruout the days of heavy fighting below the middle Dnieper river, and it was possible the soviet victory will assume even larger proportions. Berlin said the Russians' 3d Ukraine army was attacking west of Zaporozhe, in the eastern Dnieper bend.

To the north the Russian Leningrad army, converging on Narva, seven miles inside Estonia, captured 50 more villages, said the daily soviet war report, including the four in Estonia. Gains also were reported in the drives west from Novgorod and Novosokolniki.

Berlin said the Russians also had hurled 14 divisions against German lines in the Nevel sector between Vitebsk and Novosokolniki, near the Latvian border.

SPANISH CABINET RATIFIES POLICY OF NEUTRALITY

MADRID, Spain, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Spanish cabinet tonight ratified a policy of strict neutrality and announced it would demand the strictest conformity, not only from its own nationals, but also from foreign subjects.

"Furthermore," a bulletin said, "the government has discussed all precautionary measures that may be necessary to see that Spanish neutrality is respected."

The announcement said Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government "is prepared to submit to no pressure under any circumstances whatever against its right to maintain firmly such a position of neutrality. Every country is obligated to respect this attitude as an act of indisputable sovereignty."

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Feb. 3 (AP).—Namur Island, at the northern tip of Kwajalein atoll in the Marshall Islands and four near-by islets have been captured by marines of the 4th division in the developing Central Pacific offensive. At least 16 islets now have been enveloped.

Seizure of Gagan, Edjell, Debuu, and Edigigen islets, announced today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, gives American forces full opportunity to repair and use the three air strips on Roi Island, captured on Tuesday. The Roi air field, with its dispersal area on Namur, formed the most formidable air base the Japanese had constructed in the Marshalls in more than two decades of operations.

At the southern end of the atoll, on Kwajalein islet, Japanese resistance continued. An enemy counter-attack there on Tuesday night was thrown back with heavy Nipponese losses.

Land New Troops.

New troops and mechanized equipment have been landed on Kwajalein by the invasion fleet, Nimitz said. With this added strength the 7th infantry division renewed its attacks after daylight Wednesday and, the war bulletin said, was "proceeding with the annihilation of the enemy."

Capture of Kwajalein may provide American forces with another air field since it was known that the Japanese were at work on one there before the invasion.

Enemy casualties on Kwajalein Island were heavy, running about 46 dead to each fallen American, a navy spokesman said, adding that the known Nipponese dead, up to last night, totaled 1,250, out of an original garrison of 2,000. Known American dead on Kwajalein were 27, with nine missing and 190 wounded.

U. S. Dead Under 100.

Preliminary estimates of casualties in the Roi-Namur area indicated we have lost fewer than a hundred killed, with 400 wounded, the spokesman reported.

After capturing Roi Island, the marines swept over a causeway and a narrow coral strip to Namur. There they quickly cleared the building and barracks area, driving the enemy into the bushy scrub of the northern portion of the islet, where the Japs made their last stand.

Within the reefs of Kwajalein is a large lagoon. It has several entrances and can accommodate the largest fleet.

Bomb Two More Atolls.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Renewing aerial attacks on the north and south extremities of the battered Marshall Islands, the 7th army air force has bombed Rongelap and Mili atolls, the navy reported tonight. Liberators yesterday dropped nearly eight tons of bombs on Rongelap in the south, and Dauntless dive bombers escorted by fighters put more than 13 tons of bombs on the airdrome and gun emplacements at Mili. The navy described Jap anti-aircraft fire as moderate in both attacks and added that no enemy fighters were encountered. All United States planes returned safely.

Undersecretary of War Patterson today said the war department expects the Marshall Islands battle to crack open a section of Japan's defense wall "thru which we may advance to the Philippines or Tokio."

He said it also will shorten the supply and communication lines to the south and southwest Pacific and "make it possible to deploy our forces so as to attack some of the inner defenses of enemy territory."

POPE TO REMAIN IN ROME DESPITE NAZIS' WARNING

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Germans were reported tonight to have notified Pope Pius XII. that the fate of Rome will be "subject to military considerations," but the pope has refused to abandon "his Rome."

Pope Pius XII.

The Ankara radio said the German ambassador to the Vatican handed the pope the statement regarding military needs from Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring. This intimated the Germans intend to defend the city despite the destruction that might entail.

The Vatican radio said the pope had refused to abandon Rome ever since the beginning of the war because he always wanted it to be in the front line of spiritual resurrection.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 3 (AP).—The German controled Scandinavian Telegraph bureau today said a Vatican spokesman had announced that four bombs were dropped on the pope's summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, south of Rome, causing minor damage.

U.S. Releases Bergdoll, 1918 Draft Dodger

Leavenworth, Kas., Feb. 3 (AP).—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, 50, most notorious draft dodger in United States history, was released from Fort Leavenworth disciplinary barracks today, and the government closed its books on the 27 year old case.

The man who has spent half of his life evading officers was just as elusive with reporters. But a fellow prisoner, Arthur Stafford, who was released with Bergdoll today, said he was met at the prison gates by his wife and the couple's youngest child.

Plans to Live on Farm.

They went to Kansas City by taxicab, Stafford said, and from there Bergdoll planned to go to his 260 acre farm near Philadelphia.

Son of a wealthy Philadelphia brewer, Bergdoll ignored his draft call in the first World war. He was 23 at the time. Hiding from authorities, usually at the huge estate of his mother, Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, he finally was captured in 1920.

After serving six months of a five year sentence, he received permission to leave prison on the pretext of uncovering hidden gold. Escaping from his guards, he fled to Canada, sailing soon afterward for Germany.

He settled in Eberbach, his mother's native town, and married Berta Frank, daughter of a villager. They have six children.

Comes Home for Trial.

Returning voluntarily to the United States in May, 1939, he was convicted by a military court of desertion and escape and sentenced to a three year term. He still had most of his previous conviction to serve as well. He entered Leavenworth prison Nov. 8, 1940. He was released because his time was up, with credit for good behavior.

At his trial he disclosed that during the 19 years he supposedly was in Germany he had returned twice to this country, staying the first time four years and the second three years at the home of his mother.

995 Killed by Earthquake in Turkey, Paris Reports

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Paris radio today said it had been announced officially in Ankara that an earthquake two days ago in northern Turkey had destroyed 1,500 houses in Gerede and killed 995 and injured 984 persons.

Cuss Words Get Downed Yanks Past the Sentry

ALLIED HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC [Delayed]—(AP).—Lt. Col. Clinton U. True of Montgomery, Ala., and five crew members were shot down in a flight over Cape Gloucester. They spent 11 hours drifting in a rubber boat before landing on the post of a marine sentry who demanded the password. It was too dark for recognition and nobody knew the password. One of the crew began swearing. "Pass, Americans," the sentry said.

Move to Strip New Dealers of Party Rule

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Democratic leaders from more than 20 states gathered here yesterday voicing determination to wrest the government from the palace guards and to see that the United States does not create a WPA for all mankind.

Harry H. Woodring.

"Purpose of this meeting," said Harry H. Woodring, former secretary of war, who will keynote the Chicago meeting today in a speech before the Executives' club," is to see that we shall not again be victims of the strategy of indecision in Washington."

Robert E. O'Brian of Des Moines, former Iowa secretary of state, said the movement, recently announced, has been hailed by volunteers thruout the country. He exhibited a sheaf of telegrams in corroboration.

Seek to Reclaim Party.

"We are here to replevin the Democratic party from the organization of political units who stole it from the people," said Otha P. Wearin of Iowa, a former congressman.

"We hope to repudiate the palace guards, none of whom are Democrats, many of whom are crackpots," added G. A. Archer, president of Suffolk university of Boston. "We plan to take the party from Harry Hopkins and give it back to Thomas Jefferson."

Archer warned against New Deal plans to use a federal ballot for the soldier vote, urging that the soldiers be given the vote, but by constitutional methods under state control. He pointed to the District of Columbia, where residents have been deprived of a vote thru lack of a constitutional amendment to give them the ballot.

"If the federal government could have done anything for these people, would not it have taken action?" he asked.

M. C. Roberts of New Mexico held that while the United States is making the world safe for democracy, America should be made safe for private enterprise. He added that private enterprise and democracy are synonymous.

Swamped with Invitations.

Robert Harris, New York, termed the meeting a historic occasion and warned that the leaders should not become intoxicated by the early and eager response to the movement. It was pointed out that within 24 hours of announcement of the movement Woodring received 32 offers of speaking engagements.

Under present plans all anti-administration Democrats will be called to a convention to be held in some midwest city, probably St. Louis, in early April.

Request for three tickets for the keynote speech today was received from James A. Reed, long a senator from Missouri. Others expected to hear the Woodring speech are: Harry Weis and John Regan of Minnesota, Jack Sutherland and William Warren of Missouri, R. C. Garland of New Mexico, Lee Meriwether of St. Louis, Mo.; J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, and Ralph Moore, also of Texas.

Cotton Ed Smith Ogles G. O. P.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Ellison Durant [Cotton Ed] Smith of Lynchburg, S. C., solemnly told his colleagues in the senate today: "I positively have fallen so low in the political cesspool that the Republican party looks pretty good to me." His remarks were delivered in protest against a federal ballot for servicemen.

He also said he was convinced that half the senators hadn't read the Constitution—"You remember the Constitution?" he shot out at a startled fellow member sitting near-by.

"I am actually getting to the point where I turn to the Republicans instinctively when I want the real fundamental constitutional laws of this country adhered to," he continued.

The "Green Locusts" Bill.

"If they will keep on and stop playing the fool, like we have, and unite on the proper man, they stand a chance of going into"—[a long pause]—"the worst mess that ever a party was called upon to go into and clean up."

Smith said the Constitution and the decisions of the Supreme court, "when it was a Supreme court," held that the states, not congress, have the power to determine the qualification of voters. The Green-Lucas bill proposes to waive state registration and poll tax requirements. [Smith chose to refer to the measure as the "green locusts bill."]

Pays Respects to F. D. R.

He paid his respects to President Roosevelt directly for his recent declaration that the leave-it-to-the-states service vote bill is "a fraud on the soldiers and sailors and marines."

"I never cast a fraudulent vote in my life," Smith said.

"I have cast votes which turned out to be fraudulent, but I was not aware of it at the time. I voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt twice and I leave it to the senate to say whether or not that turned out to be a fraudulent vote."

HOUSE REJECTS FEDERAL RULE OVER ELECTION

Accepts F.D.R. Defy and Is 'Counted.'

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Climaxing one of the most hectic sessions in its history, the house late tonight rejected administration demands for a federal soldiers' ballot and adopted a bill retaining in the state's control over service men's balloting in this year's elections.

The state ballot bill was decisively approved on a roll call vote, 328-69, after nearly 11 hours of debate in which the anguished administration forces fought desperately to avert defeat for the federal plan demanded by President Roosevelt.

On another roll call just before the final vote, the chamber defeated, 224-168, the federal ballot proposal.

Democratic Tricks Fail.

Having seen the house tentatively reject the federal plan this afternoon on a teller vote, Democratic leaders called upon virtually every parliamentary trick in the book to try to postpone a final vote until tomorrow, so they would have a chance to regroup their forces.

But the nominal majority was outmaneuvered and outvoted at every turn by an actual majority of an almost solid Republican bloc and an insurgent group of southern Democrats.

When administration supporters pleaded as a last resort for an adjournment so they could attend an "important" American Legion banquet in the capital, Republican leaders taunted them by citing President Roosevelt's demand to congress last week for prompt passage of a soldiers' vote bill.

Accept F. D. R. Challenge.

And it was the Republicans, who, thru a unique parliamentary maneuver, jockeyed the chamber into accepting the President's challenge that the house "stand up and be counted" by name on the sole issue of the administration backed federal ballot.

The house approved state ballot bill now goes to the senate, where administration forces meanwhile today were also forced to retreat from their original proposal for the federal, or "bobtailed ballot," which would provide a vote for federal offices only.

The senate voted, 72-19, to amend the administration's Lucas-Green bill by outlawing the use of federal ballots by service men in this country, and limiting its use to overseas personnel. The amendment was sponsored by Sen. Danaher [R., Conn.].

Substitute Gains Strength.

Having thus broken the administration front in the senate, a coalition of Republicans and southern Democratic senators expressed confidence that a pending substitute bill which would further restrict the use of federal ballots will be adopted tomorrow.

The substitute, offered by Sen. Taft [R., O.] and backed by five other Republicans and nine Democrats, provides for service voting only by state absentee ballots, except for service men from states which fail by July 1 to provide effectively for absentee balloting.

The latter service men, under the Taft proposal, would be issued the short federal ballots, which would carry no names but would list the offices of President, Vice President, senators, and congressmen.

Call U. S. Plan Illegal.

Proposals similar to both the Danaher and Taft amendment were offered in the house tonight, but were rejected on the ground that federal control over balloting specifically violates the Constitution. Members further argued that the federal ballots would not be counted in most states because of their alleged illegality and that their use would thus actually disfranchise service men instead of giving them a vote.

The house bill was approved virtually intact as reported earlier this month by the elections committee.

Drafted largely by Representatives Vursell [R., Ill.] and Rankin [D., Miss.] the bill:

1. Recommends to the states the enactment of legislation to enable persons absent in the armed forces to cast absentee ballots in any special, primary, or general election in time of war. The ballots would be just like those voted at home.

2. Recommends that the states utilize printed post cards to allow soldiers to apply for absentee ballots.

3. Directs the post card applications to be distributed to the military forces outside the United States not later than Aug. 15, 1944, and to those eligible within the United States not later than Sept. 15, 1944.

4. Recommends to the states that absentee ballots be mailed promptly to the voter making the application, "if legally permissible" under the laws of the state."

5. Directs that military authorities must give absentee ballots air priority.

Asks Light Ballots.

The states are also called upon by the measure to reduce the size and weight of service ballots and voting instructions to facilitate their transmission by air mail. The bill, as amended on the floor, also proposes that states, where legally possible, mail absentee ballots to all service men even tho no post card applications are received. The bill authorizes local election officials to obtain lists of addresses for this purpose from local draft boards.

The bill does not change a previous federal statute adopted in 1942 which specifically waives poll tax and registration requirements for service personnel.

The house measure also applies to members of the merchant marine, and those in the Red Cross, Society of Friends, Women's Auxiliary service pilots, and the United States organizations serving outside the United States.

Test on Amendment.

The first test of house strength on the federal vs. state ballot issue, which has been raging in congress for weeks, came this afternoon when the chamber was considering proposed amendments. On a teller vote of 215-164 the house defeated the Worley amendment, containing a federal ballot plan similar to that in the Lucas-Green senate bill.

It was after this defeat that administration leaders sought to force an adjournment so a final vote would be postponed till tomorrow.

Administration Democrats then began their long delaying action in which time after time they demanded that proposed amendments which had already been placed in the Congressional Record be read in full, and then demanded teller and standing votes on the proposals, altho they were obviously hopelessly beaten on voice votes.

As the night wore on and tempers frayed, accusations were thrown back and forth across the floor. Rep. Cobley [D., N. C.], one of those who wanted to go to the American Legion banquet, took the floor to charge that the house was doing a disservice to the soldiers by "hurrying thru" the vote measure.

Republicans Answer.

Republicans demanded that this charge be expunged from the record, but Speaker Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.] ruled the charge did not violate house rules. Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.] then took the floor to charge that the administration stalwarts were carrying on a parliamentary "filibuster" and thus denying the house a chance for full debate on the actual provisions of the bill.

Thruout the 11 hour session the leadership of the house was actually in the control of Minority Leader Martin [R., Mass.], who collaborated with Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.], ranking majority member of the elections committee, to defeat the filibuster attempt.

The bitterest medicine the administration was forced to swallow before the final passage of their bill came when Martin took the floor to throw back at the President his "stand up and be counted" by name challenge.

"We're not afraid to be counted," Martin roared at the house, "and we'll demand a roll call on the President's federal ballot plan."

Under regular house rules, there can be only one record roll call on a pending bill, and amendments, such as the Worley proposal, are disposed of by voice, standing, or teller votes.

The Republicans, as the minority party, were entitled, however, to make a motion to recommit the state ballot bill to committee, and on this motion a roll call is permitted.

In making the recommital motion Rep. Anderson [R., Cal.], with Republican leaders assenting, moved that the bill immediately be reported back to the house with an amendment including the federal ballot proposal. Thus on this roll call, the federal ballot was the sole issue, and the vote against it was 224-168.

HANNEGAN CRIES G. O. P. IS UNFAIR ATTACKING F.D.R.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 3 [Special].—The Democratic party's new national chairman, Robert E. Hannegan, former political machine boss who once led an attempt to steal a Missouri gubernatorial election, tonight accused Republicans of taking an unfair advantage.

Apparently in reply to G. O. P. charges of Rooseveltian bungling, Hannegan complained that the opposition has made capital of the annoying way of life to which Americans have been subjected under this administration. Furthermore, he charged, Republicans have withheld from their opponents advice on a more efficient way.

Hannegan wasn't present for his own political blast, his first formal speech since he succeeded Frank C. Walker as party chairman on Jan. 22. He missed his plane to Birmingham and the speech was read to a Jackson day dinner by Edwin W. Pauley, national committee treasurer.

Hannegan devoted much of his address to domestic matters.

M'ARTHUR IS MAN OF THE HOUR FOR US! VANDENBERG

BY JOHNSON KANADY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—If nominated by the Republican party, Gen. MacArthur will be elected. If elected, he will bring a great mind, a great heart, a great capacity, and a great devotion to the proud leadership of a great nation.

In this way Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], who for more than a year has championed the MacArthur for President cause, sums up his case for the Pacific commander in an article in the current issue of a weekly magazine.

Gen. MacArthur, Sen. Vandenberg says, "is a composite of all our necessities." He outlines this contention in three points:

1. The American people, in choosing a President next November, will be thinking of their choice more as a commander in chief of the army and navy than anything else. MacArthur's military history in the last war, as chief of staff, and in the present war qualify him in this respect.

Tremendous Job Ahead.

2. The next President will have a tremendous job—probably a one-term job—and must be free of political alliances and able to make hard and fast decisions. MacArthur, Vandenberg contends, "is granite in the face of duty."

3. MacArthur possesses spiritual values and a fine American mind.

"No one could be more a 'citizen of the world,' with an experience and vision that roam the hemispheres," the senator says. "Yet no one could have more faithfully dedicated a loyal lifetime to his own United States."

MacArthur, the senator went on, "has the know-how because he has dealt with government all his life. But my view of it is that he would be elected, in this emergency, as something vastly more than a Republican in any narrow, partisan sense. He is utterly detached from our party schisms and our party feuds and our interparty divisions.

"More than any other Presidential possibility, he would be elected as a great, unifying American who would win his country's unified support by deserving it. The very nature of his draft, void of any obligation save to his country, would dramatize and implement this selfless dedication.

'Pure Draft' Favored.

"That's the kind of President I want next time and, incidentally, perhaps that's the reason so many Southern Democrats tell me that he is the one Republican nominee who could crack the Mason and Dixon line."

Vandenberg suggests MacArthur be nominated in a "pure draft" and under no circumstances return to this country for the campaign, either before or after the nomination.

"The very nature of his draft, void of any obligation save to his country, would dramatize and implement this selfless dedication," Vandenberg says. He adds that no American can refuse such a draft, regardless of what he says ahead of time.

Commenting on the claim that MacArthur is needed as a field commander, Vandenberg said: "If he is indispensable to us as a four star general, then we simply give our country and the united nations the maximum use of his tremendous military genius when we promote him to commander in chief and thus give him sway over the military decisions which we think he is so incomparably qualified to make. He would not be deserting Bataan—which he would never do—he is simply given supreme command."

Mexican Divorce

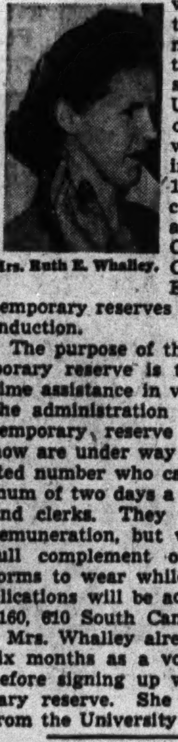
MARTHA RAYE.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 3 (AP).—Judge Xavier Ceballos of the Juarez, Mexico, civil court today granted Martha Raye, film comedienne, a divorce from her third husband, Capt. Neal Lang of the United States army. The divorce petition charged incompatibility. A property settlement was reached out of court.

FIRST WOMAN SWORN INTO NEW RESERVE GROUP

Mrs. Ruth E. Whalley, 2111 Harrison street, Evanston, yesterday was sworn in as the first woman member of the temporary reserves of the United States coast guard women's reserve in a ceremony at 10 a. m. in the coast guard office at 610 South Canal street. Lt. Comdr. Harold H. Elliott of the temporary reserves officiated at the induction.



Mrs. Ruth E. Whalley.

The purpose of the women's temporary reserve is to furnish part-time assistance in various offices of the administration and to conduct temporary reserve affairs. Plans now are under way to enroll a limited number who can serve a minimum of two days a week as typists and clerks. They will receive no remuneration, but will be given a full complement of tailored uniforms to wear while on duty. Applications will be accepted in room 1160, 610 South Canal street.

Mrs. Whalley already had served six months as a volunteer worker before signing up with the temporary reserve. She was graduated from the University of Iowa.

Two Carmi Youths Killed as Car Sidewipes Truck

Wadesville, Ind., Feb. 3 (AP).—Charles Slocum, 17 years old, and Harold Lloyd Wheeler, 17, both of Carmi, Ill., were killed today as their automobile sidewiped a gasoline truck east of here.

WILLKIE'S PLEA TO ZOOM TAXES DRAWS BARRAGE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] challenged Wendell Willkie today to give congress a specific program for raising the billions in additional taxes which he says the country should be paying.

Without mentioning the 1940, Republican Presidential nominee by name, Vandenberg asserted that "our tax consultants up and down the country who give advice ought to be specific and tell us where to get the additional revenue."

Willkie said in an address in New York last night that taxes should be hiked now "beyond any limit that we have hitherto imagined possible." He also called for a lowering of the American standard of living.

Easy to Generalize.

The remarks of Vandenberg, a member of the senate finance committee, were prompted by introduction of a resolution by Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.] calling for the finance committee to recommend a simplification of taxes.

Vandenberg arose to say that it is simple to agree that taxes ought "to be simplified." But simplification is something else, he said.

"It is easy to generalize, and difficult to particularize," Vandenberg added.

"We all have the desire to raise the maximum revenue, and our consultants up and down the country who give advice ought to be specific and tell us where to get this revenue."

Willkie indicated he had in mind additional war time taxes totaling around $16,000,000,000 annually.

Happy to Hear Him.

Willkie meanwhile, was challenged to lay before the senate finance committee any concrete suggestions he may have for increasing taxes. Sen. Taft of Ohio, a Republican member of the committee, told a reporter that he, for one, would like to have Willkie state in detail how he thought additional revenues could be extracted from individuals and business firms.

Chairman George [D., Ga.] said that if Willkie would like to appear the committee would be "happy to hear him." He told the senate that if Willkie's tax goal were achieved under the present structure, the withholding levy would have to be 40 per cent on the lowest wage earners.

"I don't think you can do that without destroying the morale of the American people," he said.

Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, Republican leader of the tax-framing house ways and means committee, promptly challenged the program, describing it as "unrealistic and unsound," and adding:

"All agree we must raise every possible dollar by taxation in order to minimize borrowing against the future, but there is a limit to our ability to pay taxes even in war time. Both branches of congress rejected the President's $10,500,000,000 tax program because it would have wiped out the middle class and jeopardized the solvency of all business, yet Mr. Willkie would raise double the amount proposed by the administration.

"He fails to show how any such amount could be raised, in addition to the $43,000,000,000 we now pay. We all know any increase would have to come from the lower income groups, as was the case with the treasury program."

JAPS PUSH EAST AND NORTH WITH COAST COLONIES

Citizens in Arms at New 'Invasion' Moves.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 3 [Special].—Japanese-Americans, who were moved from the west coast for security reasons, are now secretly buying and leasing some of the best truck crop land in eastern Oregon, western Idaho, and parts of Colorado, it was disclosed here today.

Citizens have held indignation meetings and a government investigation was made at their request. The high feeling included condemnation of the war relocation authority for its mild handling of the Japanese.

American growers and shippers, civic leaders, and officials today expressed fears that unless the invasion be halted, Japanese will possess or control after the war the choicest lowlands and irrigated districts in the affected areas.

Buy Up Cheaper Hotels.

Another indication that the center of Japanese-American activities is being shifted from California, where it was located in prewar days, was the disclosure that Japanese recently have purchased second rate hotels in Spokane and have added to their hotel holdings in Seattle and Portland since the war began. Their Seattle holdings now comprise about half of the city's hotels—nearly all the cheaper ones.

The anti-Japanese sentiment thruout the area was epitomized by Mayor Earl Riley of Portland, who commented:

"So far as I am concerned Portland had no place for 'Little Tokios' and Oregon no room for colonization. We simply don't want these people. They have proved by their conduct before and since the war that they cannot be assimilated and that to have them around is a constant public menace."

Merchants and others in small towns in Oregon, Washington, and Idaho were united in their assertions that they do not want the Japs "now nor ever."

Parade in Heart of Jap Belt.

In Auburn, Wash., for example, it was reported that aroused citizens held mass meetings and marched in parades in which the mayor carried anti-Japanese banners. Auburn is the heart of Washington's Japanese belt. Citizens there and at Kent, Puyallup, and other Washington towns now are seeking means of getting back into the hands of the whites the rich truck land the Japs have owned in that area since before the war.

The scene of the new settlement causing so much resentment is a district along the Oregon-Idaho border in the neighborhood of the towns of Ontario, Nyssa, and Vale in Oregon, and Weiser and Parma in Idaho.

Leaders of Ontario, seat of Malheur county, reported their investigations disclosed the following facts:

Demand Brings WRA Agent.

There were 137 Japanese in the county in 1940 but by 1942 the number had grown to 749. Since then 217 more have located on what government officials call "indefinite leave." On Oct. 7, 1943, seasonal harvest work brought 636 more Japs, making the total 1,602. Eliminating seasonal workers this leaves a minimum population of 1,000 Japanese for the county against 137 before the war.

Demands for an investigation brought William C. Moore, assistant superintendent of the WRA for Pacific and Intermountain states, to the scene. Citizens reported he told them there was no cause for worry because the Japanese had bought only about 700 acres in the county. Citizens reply that more and more land is being acquired in the area by Japanese.

While the Japs used piecemeal methods to acquire land in Oregon, they reportedly pursued their plans on a more elaborate scale in Idaho.

A Japanese was said to have been sent to Weiser, Idaho, with ample funds to buy a huge orchard where several scores of Jap families planned to settle. This was the method followed in some of the early California settlements. However, news of the Idaho undertaking leaked out just before the deal was closed and the negotiations were quashed by civic pressure.

But 25 Leases Are Signed.

But the Japanese have since signed 25 known leases in that community and an editor there said other deals undoubtedly have been made and concealed.

The feeling against the WRA apparently was accentuated by the anti-American demonstrations at the Tule Lake, Cal., relocation camp where the agency minimized Japanese outbreaks that later became so violent the army had to take control to restore order.

Most of those protesting the presence of Japanese declare that disposition of the Japs should be left for solution after the war and that meantime the Japanese should not be permitted to proceed with colonization schemes.

AGREE ON FUNDS FOR FARM LABOR RECRUITING PLAN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—House and senate conferees agreed today on a $30,000,000 appropriation to finance the government's 1944 program of farm labor recruitment, trimming $5,000,000 from the bill as it passed the senate.

Previously, the house had voted to limit to $27,000,000 the cost recruiting new farm laborers in this country and importing an estimated 120,000 alien workers to offset the man power shortage on American farms.

Retained in the bill by the conference committee was an amendment by Sen. Hayden [D., Ariz.] appropriating $1,359,200 to the war man power commission and authorizing importation of experienced loggers from South American countries to work in northwest lumber camps.

COURTNEY MUM BUT DEMOCRATS PULL SURPRISES

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Several surprises were pulled out of the Democratic organization grabbag yesterday in preparing for the first filing day tomorrow for county and state offices. But State's Atty. Thomas J. Courtney continued to keep his party in suspense on the question of whether he will run for a 4th term or for governor.

With four sanitary district trustee nominations at stake, the Democratic organization circulated petitions for six candidates. Those covered by the petitions are Trustees Ross A. Woodhull, John J. Touhy, and J. L. Friedman, and Neal T. Kelley for a vacancy. In addition the petitions are out for Christ A. Jensen and John A. Szumnarski.

Woodhull Not Well.

Chairman Woodhull of the sanitary district has long been ill and may ask that his name be withdrawn. Even so, there would be a contest, unusual in organization methods.

Some speculated that the struggle would devolve upon Friedman, first elected to fill a vacancy in 1930, and Szumnarski, who is 35th ward committeeman. Jensen is 40th ward committeeman and purchasing agent for the board of education. Kelley, slated for the vacancy, is 34th ward committeeman and manager of the real estate department of the sanitary district.

G. O. P. Judge Included.

Another but lesser surprise was the inclusion of Judge Samuel Heller, erstwhile Republican, on the petitions for 12 Municipal court bench jobs. The other 11 are regular Democrats. Circumstances under which Heller was picked by the Democrats for a vacancy in 1941 had led to speculation about his retention. He had been a G. O. P. judge from 1926 to 1938 and in 1934 was Republican nominee for county judge.

In 1940 Heller and former Judge Edward B. Casey joined in a recount contest of their proclaimed defeat as Republican candidates for the Municipal court. Error and fraud were charged. Before the case was terminated, Heller had been slated by the Democrats for the 1941 elections.

All Officials Backed.

Sitting judges now getting Democratic organization backing with Heller are N. J. Bonelli, William V. Daly, Frank E. Donoghue, John Gutknecht, John R. McSweeney, Eugene J. Holland, Victor A. Kula, Edward P. Luczak, Joseph H. McGarry, Cecil C. Smith, and Mason S. Sullivan.

Except for the state's attorney mystery, all county officials are backed for reëlection in the organization petitions.

Parents Receive Medal of Gunner Killed in Raid

The Purple Heart, awarded to Sgt. Irving Nartar, 23 years old, who was killed in a bombing raid on Wilhelmshaven, Germany, Nov. 3, was received yesterday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nartar of 2056 North Sawyer avenue. Nartar, a gunner on a bomber, lost his life on his 23d mission over enemy territory. He was credited with shooting down one enemy plane and had been awarded the distinguished flying cross with three oak leaf clusters and the air medal.

FEELING AGAINST JAPS RUNS HIGH, SENATOR WARNS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Asserting there is "deep resentment" by residents of Wyoming against Japanese at the Heart mountain relocation camp, Sen. Robertson [R., Wyo.] warned today against any decision to withdraw military police protection from that area.

Since publication of the Japanese atrocities against American troops from Bataan and Corregidor, Robertson told the senate "the feeling against the Japanese is much stronger and local citizens might move in."

Robertson said he had been advised by the sheriff at Heart mountain the war department was considering a withdrawal of military police to leave protection to camp and local police officials.

2 ESCAPE IOWA PRISON IN THIRD BREAK OF YEAR

Anamosa, Ia., Feb. 3 (AP).—The third break in five weeks occurred at the state men's reformatory tonight when two convicts escaped into darkness while working under guard at the institution's dairy barn.

The warden's office identified the pair as Bernard Sweet, 19 years old, Clarion, Ia., who was serving 10 years for forgery, and Paul Smith, 22, Spencer, Ia., who was serving a 10 year burglary term.

The men made good their escape without a shot being fired after them. The break occurred as a probe of two earlier escapes, one New Year's day and one Jan. 12, was under way on orders of Gov. B. B. Hickenlooper.

ASSAILS SOVIET CRY OF 'FASCIST' AGAINST POPE

Chicago Catholic Paper Quotes Msgr. Sheen.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Denial of the Moscow charge that the pope and the Catholic church are Fascists and assertion that communism and fascism are as much alike as burglary and larceny are made in an article in the current number of the New World, official publication of the archdiocese of Chicago. The article quotes the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen of Catholic university, Washington, D. C., a notable Catholic spokesman.

Msgr. Sheen turned tables on Moscow by declaring Premier Josef Stalin of Russia a friend of fascism, and offering as evidence a picture of Marshal Stalin shaking hands with Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, in 1939. The picture, as cabled from Moscow, carried the caption: "Fascism is a matter of taste. Our friendship is cemented with blood," the article declared.

"Chief Contributor to Fascism."

"No country in the world," said Msgr. Sheen, "has contributed so much to fascism as Russia. For it was only thru the soviets giving the Nazis the green light in the treaty of 1939 that the Nazis were able to extend their form of fascism all over Europe.

"Russia's condemnation of the Vatican on the grounds of being fascist is quite excusable and pardonable. Russia is the only nation in the world outside of Germany that does not permit freedom of press and freedom of religion. It therefore never permitted to be circulated within its borders any of the Vatican's statements condemning fascism and naziism.

"Every other nation knows that the Vatican condemned fascism in an encyclical written in Italian, Naziism in an encyclical written in German, and communism in an encyclical written in Latin. The soviets accuse the Vatican of fascism because the Vatican was silent when Italy attacked France. Why does not Russia accuse the Vatican of being communist because it was silent when Russia attacked Poland?"

"No Essential Difference."

"Fascism is really communism in its dotage," said Msgr. Sheen. "There is no essential difference in ideology between Nazis, Fascists, and Communists. All absorb the individual into the collectivity. There is as little difference between communism and fascism as there is between burglary and larceny.

"The soviet condemnation of the Vatican is merely an item in a pattern which Russia is skilfully working out. It is one piece with the recent soviet condemnation of the British for their alleged attempt to make a separate peace with Germany. It thus prepared for its own infidelity by accusing a spouse of infidelity. Having accused the political order of connivance with the enemy, it now accuses religion. Thus does Russia prepare politically and religiously for alienating itself from the allies and making a separate peace with Germany."

LAY ATTACK TO STALIN

Boston, Mass., Feb. 3 (AP).—The Pilot, publication of the Catholic archdiocese of Boston, will say in an editorial tomorrow that Stalin alone is responsible for the Russian newspaper attack against the Vatican and knows the charge the Vatican is pro-Fascist "is untrue."

The editorial titled "We Suspect Stalin Only Because He Invites Suspicion" reads in part:

"Russian newspapers 'think' as they are told to think, say what they have been instructed to say.

"It is because they love Russians that Catholics reprobate the system, communism, which robs Russia of liberty, which has tried to drive God and His mother from Russian soil. It is because they love Russia that Catholics distrust this man, Stalin, who seeks apparently to offer his people all the kingdoms of the earth but in exchange for their immortal souls."

London Suggests Motive.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Catholic Herald said today that attacks on the Holy See by the soviet newspapers Izvestia and Red Star came at a moment when the pope personally was endangered by approaching battle and surmised the "possible tragedy" of Russian annexation of Polish and Lithuanian Catholics might be the motive.

In the issue dated Feb. 4 the Herald quoted the Moscow radio charges that the "Vatican has adopted an attitude of direct support of fascism," and then replied:

"Moscow even less than the people in Britain and America, is unlikely to be able to understand the position or the Holy See."

Reds Trap Nazis; 50 Towns Seized

War developments reported yesterday from Russia.

Of Russia, Thursday's German war report, as broadcast by Berlin, said:

"While our troops at the Nikopol bridgehead [southern Dnieper bend] repulsed local soviet attacks, they are engaged in heavy defensive fighting with advancing enemy tank formations in the area southwest of Dnepropetrovsk [eastern Dneiper bend].

"In the area between Kirovograd and Belaya Tserkov [northern Dneiper bend], the attacking German group met with strong enemy counter-attacks. Embittered fighting which developed is still in progress.

"In the region south of the Pripet swamps repeated soviet attacks on Shepetovka [west of Kiev] have collapsed.

"Farther toward the northwest Rowne [Rovno] and Luck [Lutsk] were evacuated in the course of embittered defensive fighting. Between the Pripet and Berezina rivers [southern White Russia], as well as in the area northwest of Vitebsk, where the soviets renewed their attacks, our troops after a fluctuating struggle achieved a defensive success.

"Between Lake Ilmen and the Gulf of Finland our divisions continued to be engaged in heavy defensive fighting. The soviets with strong forces continued their attacks, especially west of Novgorod, where 22 enemy tanks were destroyed in a successful German counter-thrust, and east of Narva" [Estonia].

SOVIET'S 16 NEW REPUBLICS WILL EACH ACT SINGLY

MOSCOW, Feb. 3 (AP).—The soviet government expects each of 16 constituent republics to establish relationship with foreign countries and negotiate separate agreements abroad under their newly-granted autonomy, the official press indicated today.

Giving first official suggestion of the designs of the Moscow government's policy, leading editorials stressed the theory a single soviet ambassador can not handle affairs of the soviet's 16 republics.

Red Star Sees Need.

"The national needs of the republics will be better satisfied by direct relationships with the separate countries," said the army newspaper Red Star. The newspaper Izvestia and the navy organ Red Fleet followed the same line, indicating the way would be open for each foreign country to send its envoy to each of the 16 republics. Red Fleet associated the new move with the soviet's emergence into world affairs.

Republics' Growth Cited.

"Formation of the strong anti-Hitlerite coalition headed by the soviet union, Great Britain, and the United States and the success of the Moscow and Teheran conferences characterize the expansion of the international connection of our state," said Red Fleet. "In these relations a single, all-union representation abroad cannot fully guarantee the growing manifold and specific economic and cultural needs of the republics."

[A. E. Korneichuk, vice commissar of foreign affairs and husband of Wanda Vassilevskaya, president of the Union of Polish Patriots, was relieved of duty at his own request, the soviet press said today in Moscow. Korneichuk has opposed Poland's claims to pre-war eastern frontiers. He recently declared 'Only a hopeless fool can believe that Lwow and the population of the western regions of the Ukraine are waiting for returning to Polish rule." The Union of Polish Patriots was organized in Moscow and there has been much speculation it might rival the Polish government in exile in London.]

It would appear that when the republics' representatives present credentials to Washington and London, the United States and Great Britain would be expected to send representatives to the 16 republics.

London Withholds Comment.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—Officials maintained silence on Russia's program of autonomy for her 16 republics as the British press speculated today on its significance. Observers awaited a statement by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in commons.

Oh, Yeah?

Churchill Cheered as He Attends Sherwood's Play

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Making his first appearance outside commons since his return, Prime Minister Churchill tonight received a great ovation as he attended Robert Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night" at a London theater. The prime minister, wearing a dinner jacket and accompanied by his daughter, Mary, in her service uniform, responded to the ovation by giving the V sign. They were seated in the second row stalls.

M'NAUGHTON FIT, ASKS OTHERS TO EXPLAIN OUSTER

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 3.—Lt. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, who commanded the Canadian army in Britain until his retirement last month "on account of ill health," arrived in Canada today and stated "I am very fit; there is nothing the matter with me."

Pressed as to reasons for his resignation he answered: "It is up to those who made the statements regarding my health to explain them."

McNaughton promised a general press interview after he has seen the prime minister. "I shall follow the procedure I have followed during the last four years, and that is that I will be entirely frank and truthful," he said.

CASSINO BATTLE BEGINS; YANKS PUSH INTO FORT

Troops Withdraw, Set Up New Assault.

ALLIED HDQ. IN ITALY, Feb. 3 (AP).—American infantrymen thrust into Cassino today for an hour of bitter street fighting and formed their lines tonight for a second assault on the tottering German stronghold. Facing them were Nazi "suicide squads" fighting to hold this outflanked city on the 5th army front.

A field dispatch from a forward command post outside Cassino said American troops charged into the town just after dawn and took prisoners before they withdrew under heavy German tank fire.

[A Cairo broadcast said: "Street fighting is going on in Cassino Tanks have forced a break-thru and allied infantry is pouring into the town."]

Widen Breach in Nazi Line.

North of Cassino French troops widened the three mile breach in the Gustav line. Latest reports said American infantry had taken new heights on Mount Castellone, just northwest of Cassino, from which they could fire into its streets.

Of the Anzio, or beachhead front, south of Rome, headquarters said only that in "hard fighting" the British and American forces have enlarged their holdings. There was no indication where the gains were made or their extent. One German counter-attack west of Littoria, in the Pontine marshes, was thrown back.

[A dispatch from the beachhead said German casualties since the allied landings are believed to exceed 3,000].

Planes Land at Beachhead.

Small allied planes were disclosed to be landing within the bridgehead, carrying blood to field hospitals for transfusions, but there was no indication that allied warplanes yet were flying from there.

The allied air forces attacked Nazi communications and docks at Marino and at Formia, on the west coast between the two 5th army fronts. Mitchells blocked the Appian way 11 miles south of Rome at Albano and Warhawks bombed Cisterna, on whose outskirts American troops were reported fighting two days ago.

HARD FIGHT AT CISTERNA

BY HOMER BIGART.
[Representing the Combined U. S. Press.]
[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

WITH 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Feb. 2 [Delayed].—The battle for Cisterna is in its fourth day today. Already this little crossroads town south of Rome has witnessed some of the bloodiest fighting of the Italian campaign. Our casualties have been heavy.

The fighting for Cisterna recalls the battle of Troina in the Sicilian campaign. Here, as at Troina, the German strength was underestimated and in gains of a few hundred yards our casualties were grim.

To contain the Nettuno bridgehead the enemy has gathered parachutists, tankmen, disciplinary troops, flak gunners and reconnaissance units—and thrown them into the infantry line. The Germans now are strong enough to launch a counter-attack of considerable force.

So far their counter-blows have not caused concern, altho the British have been forced to withdraw slightly in one sector. The enemy seems content at the moment to probe allied lines seeking possible weak points for a major punch.

NAZI WAR BULLETIN

Of Italy, Thursday's German war report, as broadcast by Berlin, said:

"In south Italy the enemy in the landing head of Nettuno made some unsuccessful local attacks against the northern front yesterday [Wednesday]. By concentric counterattacks the success achieved by the enemy's attack was foiled.

"At the southern front there is an embittered struggle in progress for the Cassino mountain massif [mass]. The dominating heights remained in German hands. Both sides suffered heavy losses. The day was quiet on the rest of the front."

YANKS ON ITALY BEACHHEAD PUT OUT OWN PAPER

BY REYNOLDS PACKARD.
[Representing the Combined U. S. Press.]
[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

AT 5TH ARMY BEACHHEAD SOUTH OF ROME, Feb. 3.—The first newspaper to be issued in this sector is the "Beachhead Bugle," edited by a 5th army censor. Printed on a duplicating machine, it appears daily and deals with war news as picked up from correspondents' dispatches. It also gives official war reports, plus doughboy gossip and jokes.

The newspaper appeared three days after the invasion and since then has followed an editorial policy that this beachhead is a rather pleasant beachhead if you don't mind shelling and bombing most of the time.

The Bugle's editorial today praised American women nurses for their fortitude in coming to the beachhead and subjecting themselves to daily air raids and shelling.

NAZI REPRISAL BOMBERS RAID LONDON TWICE

LONDON, Feb. 4 [Friday]—(AP).—German reprisal raiders stabbed at the London area twice during the night, striking up the Thames in comparatively light force late last evening and returning in somewhat greater strength early this morning, causing some casualties.

The first alert, during which only a few raiders penetrated to the vicinity of the city, was of brief duration. Bombs fell in one suburban district, wrecking several houses. The second bombing came as rescuers still were digging in one section by the light of torches in an effort to save victims of the first raid.

More than 1,100 Flying Fortresses and fighters flew a round trip of more than 700 miles thru bad weather and dumped perhaps 1,500 tons of bombs on the big German shipbuilding and naval base of Wilhelmshaven yesterday.

This forenoon assault was followed by an afternoon attack on the French "invasion coast" by American and allied medium bombers.

YANK, BRITISH WARSHIPS TEAM UP TO SINK SUB

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Sinking of a German U-boat in the Mediterranean by the British destroyer Calpe and the United States destroyer Wainwright was reported by the navy today.

Before the destroyers joined in depth charging the submarine it had been harassed for 36 hours by allied aircraft. In the actual sinking, not a shot was fired. When the skipper of the Wainwright, Comdr. Walter W. Strobehn of Davenport, Ia., saw that the U-boat was about to sink he halted fire.

Earlier, the navy reported, the U-boat had been attacked with depth charges and it had surfaced to exchange shots with the two destroyers.

Sir Wimpleton Finally Gets Into U. S. Army

Five soldiers at Camp Stewart, Ga., soon will be greeting a new mascot, an English bulldog, Sir Wimpleton Mandrake, which yesterday was shipped from Chicago to the southern army camp. The dog was supplied by Mrs. Donald J. Donohue, 5965 West Circle avenue, after she learned that the soldiers' pet English bulldog was killed on Nov. 29 when he jumped out of a jeep in Chicago.

GUN POST LIKE A BIG BUSINESS —ONLY BETTER!

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Feb. 2 [Delayed].—As the battle for Cassino entered its final stages today, our infantry moved along prearranged courses to drive home the attack while the 5th army artillery pounded the town's defenses.

The scene from an observation post at first glance seemed excited and confused. Soon, however, it was apparent that the work was being carried on with a precision and attention to detail not even approached by big business enterprises. The officer whose unit was making the attack stood in the shadows watching the battle thru field glasses.

One Calmly Writes a Letter.

At his feet knelt an aide working the field telephone while couriers and minor officers hurried up, reported and hurried away. Other soldiers boiled coffee on a field stove, one private, a Canadian, lay on his belly, calmly writing a letter to his folks.

A reporter who blundered into the place got polite "hell" from the colonel because his climb under the noses of the Germans was liable to draw fire. This colonel is a tall, spare Virginian who, in another age, might have been at a Confederate outpost before Gettysburg.

After calling rapid fire orders to the man telephoning and to a courier, he took up a map and patiently explained the strategy, waving a pencil toward the town, the tanks, and the infantry.

Chicagoans at Front.

A leader of a reconnaissance patrol at this post told of being less than 100 yards from Cassino last night and finding himself confronting a Nazi armored car.

"They opened fire," he said, "and we hopped into a shell hole and returned the fire. Then they drove away. We got out alright."

Among the troops assaulting Cassino are Sgt. Raymond Kucera of 2439 South Springfield avenue, Pvt. James V. Archier of 3500 North Fremont avenue, and Pvt. Vincent Diamond of 7856 South Maryland avenue, all of Chicago.

ITALIAN FOOD STOCKS INCREASED BY ALLIES TO PREVENT FAMINE

NAPLES, Italy, Feb. 3 (AP).—The allied control commission announced today that increased food stocks would give liberated Italy a larger bread ration and relieve a threat of famine. The commission said that 70,000 tons of flour, sugar, milk, and other foodstuffs and medical supplies had arrived at Italian ports from the allied nations in January.

In the liberated areas of Italy, the bread ration will be increased from 4.4 ounces to 7 ounces daily per person. Arrangements are being made also to provide a midday meal for those doing heavy work in essential factories.

U. S. CASUALTIES IN ITALY SO FAR NOW TOTAL 23,407

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Casualties suffered by American troops of the 5th army since the landing in Italy last September now total 23,407, Undersecretary of War Patterson announced today. Of the total, 3,384 were killed, 14,879 wounded, and 5,144 missing. The casualties include those in the operations at the newly established beachhead south of Rome.

Estimate 25 Million Lost.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 3 (AP).—Military experts and civilian observers estimate the total allied and enemy casualties of the current war in excess of 25,000,000, the Baltimore Evening Sun said today, adding that United States casualties have been less than those of any other major combatant nation.

"In the two years since Pearl Harbor," the newspaper said, "our casualties have been less than those we suffered in the 19 months of fighting in World War I."

The chief comparison drawn was between United States and British empire casualties.

For the United States, the Sun listed a total of 146,186, including 33,153 dead, 49,518 wounded, 33,617 missing, and 29,898 prisoners, as of Feb. 1, 1944.

The British military casualties were fixed at 514,993 as of Sept. 3, 1942, with 92,089 dead, 226,719 wounded, 88,294 missing, and 107,891 prisoners.

SWEDEN SPURNS PLEA TO OCCUPY TWO NEIGHBORS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 3 (AP).—Foreign Minister Christian E. Guenther acknowledged today in a statement to the official Swedish news agency that a prominent Danish citizen had approached the Swedish government with the curious proposal that Sweden occupy Denmark and Norway and guarantee their neutrality in the event of a German withdrawal. Guenther asserted that Sweden was not interested.

The foreign minister revealed the proposal after the newspaper Eskilstuna Kuriren had published a story declaring it had been made by Rudolf Christiani, head of the Copenhagen engineering firm of Christiani and Nielsen, near the end of 1943. The article said the proposition had been inspired by the Germans and that Christiani had acted as an emissary of Werner Best, Nazi puppet leader in Denmark.

MARSHALL ISLES EXTEND RADIUS OF U. S. BOMBERS

Air Fields Put Japs Outer Defenses in Range.

The distance American bombers based on the Kwajalein atoll might fly in rolling back the Japanese outer defenses was widely discussed last night in the light of army and navy announcements portending quick conquest of the whole of the Mashall Islands.

Reconnaissance photographs have shown the runways on the Roi base at the northeast tip of the atoll to be 3,600 and 4,300 feet long. However, there may be sufficient space for American engineers to extend them to the length necessary for operating Liberator and Flying Fortress heavy bombers.

May Extend Runways.

With clear approaches and no obstructions requiring a sharp climb after take-off, the four engined heavies probably could operate if even one runway could be lengthened to 5,500 or 6,000 feet. War emergencies have forced bomber pilots to take off and land without the peace time safety factor of a runway into the wind.

Using heavy bombers, the air forces might extend their radius of operation from Roi to 1,000 miles. The radius probably would be about half that much if field limitations restrict operations to light and medium types of bombers.

Range and load are interdependent in any airplane. A full load of fuel for maximum range means fewer bombs. A near objective permits a greater part of the plane's gross weight to be devoted to explosive load.

Move Closer to Truk.

The Marshalls conquest is a vital step in preparation for attacks on the big Jap bases at Truk in the Carolines and Rabaul in New Britain, major sore spots which must be neutralized before American forces can be moved against the Philippines and thence to Japan. It is 975 miles from Roi to Truk.

Occupation of the islands means elimination of the threat to long American lines of communication from Hawaii, costly in time, as shipping was forced to detour en route to points of supply for the army and navy farther south. This supply line now can be straightened, and will be safer.

ARMY'S OFFICER SCHOOLS CUT TO 15% OF OUTPUT

Now Turn Out 2,500 a Month.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The army's officer candidate schools have been reduced to a monthly graduation list of 2,500 to 3,000 with a further cut in prospect, Undersecretary of War Patterson reported today. The schools, which gave enlisted men an opportunity to win commissions, reached a peak of 23,000 graduates in December of 1942.

Between June, 1942 and November, 1943, almost 15,000 of the graduates were enlisted men selected in the combat areas and sent home for training.

Has Four Overseas.

In addition, four officer candidate schools were established overseas and have graduated about 2,500 men. Three of these have been suspended, however, and the one in Australia is the only overseas OCS still operating.

In addition to OCS graduates, theater commanders overseas have given commissions directly to about 10,000 enlisted men, warrant officers and flight officers and a number of civilians, and the army of the United States has commissioned directly about 9,000 enlisted men and 5,000 warrant officers and flight officers.

Seven Now Discontinued.

Of the 26 officer candidate schools once operating in this country, seven have been discontinued and four are no longer accepting candidates. The latter are Fort Riley, Kas. [cavalry]; Fort Monroe, Va. [harbor defense, coast artillery]; Camp Hood, Tex. [tank destroyer], and Camp Davis, N. C. [anti-aircraft, coast artillery].

RED ENVOYS AT ALGIERS LEAVING AS SPLIT GROWS

ALGIERS, Feb. 3 (AP).—Russian envoys Alexander E. Bogomolov and Andrei T. Vishinsky leave shortly for consultations in Moscow. Their departure will coincide with the growing split between French Communists and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who has refused to give Communist party members a representative on the French national committee.

Bogomolov is the soviet's delegate to the French committee. Communist leaders charge French committee censorship had prevented their announcing the arrival of Maurice Thorez, pre-war French Communist leader, who has been in Moscow.

CLAPPER DIES IN CRASH COVERING MARSHALL DRIVE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Raymond Clapper, known as "the newspaper man's columnist," has been killed in a plane crash in the Marshall Islands area—victim of his belief that the way to write of war time was to see the war.

Raymond Clapper.

The navy's announcement said Clapper was a passenger in one of two planes that collided, crashed into a lagoon and left no survivors. Clapper's trip to the Pacific was his fourth to war theaters. He had been in Europe three times and left San Francisco on Jan. 1.

He said he chose this assignment because there was "unawareness" at home of the importance of the Pacific conflict.

Carried a Good Luck Bear.

Clapper covered the Pacific area in planes and confessed to a mild superstition; he never boarded a plane without a little brown bear his daughter had given him.

The Clapper family in Washington was advised of the tragedy thru associates. Tomorrow is Mrs. Clapper's birthday. They have a son, Peter Raymond, 17 years old, and a daughter, Janet, 20.

Roosevelt Cites "Fidelity."

President Roosevelt, in a letter to Mrs. Clapper, said the tragedy "emphasizes once more the constant peril in which correspondents do their work in this war. It was characteristic of Ray's fidelity to the great traditions of reporting that the day's work should find him at the scene of action for first hand facts in the thick of the fight."

Son of a Kansas farmer, Clapper rose in the newspaper profession thru the United Press and Scripps-Howard chain to a $100,000 a year career. He was the 16th American correspondent killed in action in this war.

Tribute Over MBS.

The Mutual Broadcasting system tonight broadcast a program entitled "A Tribute to Ray Clapper" over station WOR with Wendell L. Willkie, George Fielding Elliott, H. V. Kaltenborn, and Paul Schubert, speaking.

Others, including Sam O'Neil, president of the National Press club, and Roy Roberts, editor of the Kansas City Star, told of Clapper's career.

Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the United States strategic air force in Europe, broadcast a message from London.

ALLIES POUR 77 TONS OF BOMBS ON JAPS' BASE IN NEW GUINEA

ALLIED HDQ., THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 4 [Friday]—(AP).—Liberator bombers plastered Alexishafen, one of the few remaining Japanese strongholds on the northeast New Guinea coast, with 77 tons of bombs and left huge fires burning at the aircraft and supply base, allied headquarters said today.

The attack Wednesday was the principal one recorded in Gen. MacArthur's bulletin, which noted that adverse weather hampered air operations in the South and Southwest Pacific.

Other allied planes hit En Amele and Nabanob missions in the Alexishafen-Madang area, dropping 30 tons of bombs and strafing the targets. Enemy supply areas at Aorong, on the northwestern tip of Dutch New Guinea, were attacked by heavy bombers.

Allied light naval units meanwhile gave enemy bases and installations in the Solomons a pasting in three separate attacks. Destroyers bombarded Buka, air and supply base on the northern tip of Bougainville Island, Tuesday, and drew shellfire from the beach, where the Japanese have strong batteries. No damage to allied warships was reported.

PT boats came close inshore at the mouth of Mibo river, on the southwest coast of Bougainville, Tuesday night, and poured steel into installations there without drawing return fire.

REPORT CLEMENCEAU DEPORTED.

New York, Feb. 3 [AP].—The office of war information said today that the Swiss newspaper Gazette de Lausanne had reported the deportation of Michel Clemenceau, son of the French World war premier, Georges Clemenceau, from France by the Germans. The OWI quoted the newspaper as saying Clemenceau had been held in a concentration camp after protesting to Pierre Laval against use of his father's name for propaganda purposes.

TOKIO EXPECTS MORE AIR RAIDS, BERLIN REPORTS

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—A DNB [German news agency] broadcast today quoted the mayor of Tokio as declaring that officials of the city "anticipate and are prepared for air attacks."

"We are using not only the experience gained thru the bombing of Berlin and other German cities but above all our own practical lessons learned from the great earthquake of 1923," he was quoted as saying.

"Along with obvious air raid protection measures there also is a systematic dispersal of the population of this city of 8,000,000."

JAPS' BARBARITY AS BATAAN FELL TOLD BY DYESS

Relates Cruelty at Start of 'Death March.'

missioned officer, hand on sword hilt. These men were nothing like the toothy, bespectacled runts whose photos are familiar to most newspaper readers. They were cruel of face, stalwart, and tall.

"Sort of Unseeing Glare."

"This officer looked like a giant beside the Jap private," said my informant, who must be nameless because he still is a prisoner of war. "The big man's face was as black as mahogany. He didn't seem to be paying much attention. There was no expression in his eyes, only a sort of unseeing glare.

"The private, a little squirt, was going thru the captain's pockets. All at once he stopped and sucked in his breath with a hissing sound. He had found some Jap yen.

"He held these out, ducking his head and sucking in his breath to attract notice. The big Jap looked at the money. Without a word he grabbed the captain by the shoulder and shoved him down to his knees. He pulled the sword out of the scabbard and raised it high over his head, holding it with both hands. The private skipped to one side.

Captain's Head Chopped Off.

"Before we could grasp what was happening, the black faced giant had swung his sword. I remember how the sun flashed on it. There was a swish and a kind of chopping thud, like a cleaver going thru beef.

"The captain's head seemed to jump off his shoulders. It hit the ground in front of him and went rolling crazily from side to side between the lines of prisoners.

"The body fell forward. I have seen wounds, but never such a gush of blood as this. The heart continued to pump for a few seconds and at each beat there was another great spurt of blood. The white dust around our feet was turned into crimson mud. I saw that the hands were opening and closing spasmodically. Then I looked away.

"When I looked again the big Jap had put up his sword and was strolling away. The runt who had found the yen was putting them into his pocket. He helped himself to the dead man's possessions."

Throw Off All Restraint.

This was the first murder. In the year to come there would be enough killing of American and Filipino soldier prisoners to rear a mountain of dead.

Our Jap guards now threw off all restraint. They beat and slugged prisoners, robbing them of watches, fountain pens, money, and toilet articles. Now, as never before, I wanted to kill Japs for the pleasure of it.

The thing that almost drove me crazy was the certainty that the officer who had just been murdered couldn't have taken those yen from a dead Jap. He had been in charge of an observation post far behind the lines. I doubt that he ever had seen a dead Jap.

Gradually I got control of myself. By going berserk now I would only lose my own life without hope of ever helping to even the score.

500 Herded on Landing Strip.

The score just now was far from being in our favor. This was the the morning of April 10, 1942. Bataan had fallen 24 hours before. The 160 officers and men who remained of the 21st Pursuit squadron were assembled with about 500 other American and Filipino soldiers on the landing strip American forces had built by widening a road immediately north of Mariveles, at the peninsula's southern tip.

The American and Filipino soldiers with whom I was assembled on the air field that first morning were of all grades and ranks. They were dirty, ragged, unshaven, and exhausted. Many were half starved.

Swirling chalky dust had whitened sweat soaked beards, adding grotesquerie to the scene. It would not have been hard to believe these were tottering veterans of 1898, returned to the battlegrounds of their youth.

Assemble Labor Groups.

We stood for more than an hour in the scalding heat while the search, with its beatings and sluggings, was completed. Then the Jap guards began pulling some of the huskiest of our number out of line. These were assembled into labor gangs, to remain in the area.

I doubt that many of them survived the hail of steel Corregidor's guns later laid down on the beaches and foothills of Bataan. These were men who for months had faced American iron, thrown at them by Jap guns.

Now, it appeared, they were to die under American iron thrown into their midst by American guns. As the remainder of us were marched off the field our places were taken by other hundreds of prisoners who were to follow us on the Death March of Bataan.

East on National Highway.

We turned eastward on the national highway, which crosses the southern tip of Bataan to Cabcaben and Bataan air field, then veers northward thru Lamao, Balanga, and Orani. From there it runs northeastward to San Fernando, the rail junction and banking town in Pampanga province.

Ordinarily, the trip from Mariveles to Cabcaben field is a beautiful one with the grandeur of high greenclad mountains on the north and a view of the sea on the right. The white of the road contrasts pleasantly with the deep green of the tropical growth on either side.

But on this day there was no beauty. Coming toward us were seemingly interminable columns of Jap infantry, truck trains, and horse drawn artillery, all moving into Bataan for a concentrated assault on Corregidor. They stirred up clouds of blinding dust in which all shape and form were lost.

Snatched Out of Line.

Every few yards Jap noncoms materialized like gargoyles from the grayish white pall and snatched Americans out of line to be searched and beaten. Before we had gone two miles we had been stripped of practically all our personal possessions.

The Japs made no move to feed us. Few of us had had anything to eat since the morning of April 9. Many had tasted no food in four days. We had a little tepid water in our canteens, but nothing else.

The ditches on either side of the road were filled with overturned and wrecked American army trucks, fire gutted tanks, and artillery our forces had rendered unusable. At intervals we saw mounds of captured food, bearing familiar trademarks. These had fallen almost undamaged into Jap hands.

As we marched along I rounded up the 110 officers and men of the 21st Pursuit. I didn't know yet what the score was, but I felt we would be in a better position to help one another and keep up morale if we were together.

Rumor Factory Begins.

We hadn't walked far when the rumor factory opened up. In a few minutes it was in mass production. There were all kinds of reports: We were going to Manila and Old Bilibid prison. We were going to San Fernando and entrain for a distant concentration camp. Trucks were waiting just ahead to pick us up. We doubted the last rumor, but hoped it was true.

The sun was nearing its zenith and the penetrating heat was rapidly taking the strength out of us. To make matters worse, the road now was rising in a sharp zigzag. At the top of the hill lay Little Baguio and the blackened ruins of hospital No. 1, which had been bombed heavily a couple of days before.

Among the charred debris, sick and wounded American soldiers were walking dazedly about. There was no place for them to go.

Their only clothes were hospital pajama suits and kimonos. Here and there a man was stumping about on one leg and a crutch. Some had lost one or both arms. All were in need of fresh dressings. And all obviously were suffering from the shock of the bombing.

Wounded Forced to March.

They looked wonderingly at the column of prisoners. When the Jap officers saw them, these shattered Americans were rounded up and shoved into the marching line. All of them tried to walk, but only a few were able to keep it up. Those who fell were kicked aside by the Japs.

The Japs forbade us to help these men. Those who tried it were kicked, slugged, or jabbed with bayonet points by the guards who stalked with us in twos and threes.

For more than a mile these bomb-shocked cripples stumbled along with us. Their shoulders were bent and the sweat streamed from their faces. I can never forget the hopelessness in their eyes.

Eventually their strength ebbed and they began falling back thru the marching ranks. I don't know what became of them.

WE'LL FIGHT JAP WAR THRU, BEVIN TELLS COMMONS

Will Keep Troops After Victory Over Reich.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The impression of some members of parliament that British troops would be demobilized after the victory over Germany and only volunteers used against Japan, was scotched today by Labor Minister Ernest Bevin in commons.

During debate on a bill providing employment of service men after the war, Ellis Smith, Laborite, demanded they be reinstated in preenlistment employment. He asked assurance the bill would apply "until the Japanese war is finished and our men, who would be volunteers, return home."

Will Be Seen Thru—Bevin.

Bevin interrupted, saying:

"I think I ought to correct any false impression. There will not be any volunteers at all for Japan. This is one war and the national service acts will be applied until the whole thing is seen thru."

Since Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox complained recently at lack of emphasis the British press gave the Pacific war, the ministry of information has organized a committee to make the British conscious there will be no relaxation until the war with Japan is finished. Recent atrocity stories have stirred editorial comments and public feeling. Nonetheless latest editions of evening papers relegate the news, "Japs Driven from 10 Islands" in the Marshalls, to inside or back pages.

Minister of Home Security Herbert Morrison has been asked to repatriate all Japanese subjects in Britain because of anger caused by their continued residence here. He explained the number of Japs is small and repatriation hinges on willingness of the Japanese to repatriate British subjects.

Might Attack Japs, Says Tory.

William Davison, a Conservative, asked Morrison if he was aware there might be serious outbreaks "if Japanese were seen on our streets" which evoked cries of "No." Morrison replied he hoped the problem wouldn't arise for "if the public starts that sort of thing they may find themselves attacking some one who is not Japanese at all."

A petition expressing anxiety over the fate of prisoners held by the Japanese will go to parliament at the next series of sittings. It carries hundreds of thousands of signatures. The deputation hopes to hand the petition to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden personally.

The Evening Star editorializes that the Marshall Islands operations are "striking proof of American strength in all arms." The atolls which have been in Japanese hands represent, it says, "by far the strongest point in Tojo's vast outer defense perimeter. That an American offensive is possible when vast resources of men and arms must be sent into Britain and Italy, is proof American industry is now spilling out a flood of arms which no other power can equal," it adds.

ONCE LEFT FOR DEAD BY JAPS, SEAMAN IS BACK HUNTING A JOB

Eugene A. Wrobel.

Left for dead by Japanese soldiers who knocked him out with a rifle butt and then broke his legs while he was standing guard duty during the battle for Tarawa Island, Seaman Eugene A. Wrobel, 18, of 3925 South Kedzie avenue, returned to Chicago yesterday with a medical discnarge to look for a job in a war plant.

The youth, who joined the navy only last July 10 and was shipped overseas almost immediately, saw duty on 14 different islands in the South Pacific. As company mailman he traveled from island to island aboard a torpedo patrol boat.

Before his enlistment, Wrobel attended Thomas Kelly High school. He received a citation for his work in the South Pacific.

F. D. R. NOMINATES TEXAN TO FILL APPLEBY'S POST

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Grover Bennett Hill, Texas cattleman, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be undersecretary of agriculture, succeeding Paul Appleby, who recently became assistant budget director.

Hill has been serving both as first assistant war food administrator and assistant secretary of agriculture. Appleby, long an associate of Vice President Wallace, resigned Monday to become assistant director of budget.

It was learned that War Food Administrator Jones, also a Texan, has recommended to President Roosevelt that Hill be moved to the No. 2 spot in the agriculture department. Hill, in the event of his appointment, would continue to serve as Jones' right hand man in the food administration.

KIN OF 32 HELD BY JAPS BURN UP WIRES TO F. D. R.

Port Clinton, O., Feb. 3 (AP).—The kin of 32 Port Clinton men who fell to the Japanese on Bataan protested to President Roosevelt tonight it was a "grievous error" to wait 21 months before disclosing Japanese atrocities on prisoners of war.

The message, which also went to Secretary of War Stimson, was signed by Mrs. Agnes Below, president of the Port Clinton Bataan clan.

Protest Long Delay.

"We, the members of the Bataan clan of Port Clinton, O., protest the withholding of information concerning Japanese atrocities until this late date," the message said.

"It has been a grievous error to wait for a 'psychological moment' before loosening the screws on the lid of censorship. We gave our boys, and we had a right to know what was happening to them then, not 21 months later."

The message added a demand that reënforcements be sent Gen. MacArthur "so our boys may be freed from the horrors of Japanese imprisonment as soon as possible."

Tired of Red Tape.

"We are tired of red tape and promises. We want action," the telegram concluded.

The Bataan clan is made up of parents, wives, sisters, and brothers of the 32 soldiers, who were members of Company C, 192d Tank Battalion, on Bataan.

Return Suicide Verdict in U. S. Employe's Death

A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of Philip Gibson Cochran, 51 years old, a treasury department employe, whose body was found earlier in an areaway below his room in the Lakeside hotel, 839 North Dearborn street. He left an improvised will, a farewell note, and a history of the illness he blamed for his act.

PAPER COMPANY SALVAGING FILES IN ALL BRANCHES

Obsolete files, covering a period of seven years, were salvaged from the Chicago office of the Butler Paper company, largest merchandisers of printing paper in the world, to aid the Chicago wastepaper salvage program, John R. Robinson of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association, executive chairman of the program, announced yesterday.

Paul Butler of Chicago, president of the company, has instructed managers of the 26 branches of the company ranging from Detroit, Mich., to San Diego, Cal., to turn obsolete office records into the wastepaper salvage effort, Robinson said. The managers also are instructed to work with the organization's thousands of printer customers to increase wastepaper salvage.

"By working with our customers and our employes, we believe we can add many thousands of tons to the war time wastepaper salvage total," Mr. Butler maintained.

WAR BOND POSTER...
( from real life )

YOU'VE GOT your eyes. Then dare to use them!

Maybe it is natural to look away... to hurry a bit through the station...when you happen to brush elbows with such stark human tragedy as this.

Maybe, too, it's less heartbreaking to stare out of the dining-car window when the girl across the way cuts up the food, nursery fashion, for her soldier-husband with the empty sleeve.

And maybe it's easier not to see those parents waiting to meet an incoming train...with the station wheel chair waiting beside them on the platform.

But, remember, there's something you can do about all this. Of course you can't match such sacrifices with War Bonds. But you can make the sacrifices fewer...by helping bring Victory a day, an hour, even a minute closer.

That means staying on the job, and working harder at it. It means buying only what you absolutely need. And whatever else you do, it means investing more . . . more than ever before . . . in United States War Bonds. More than your spare cash. More than the money you'd save anyway. It means digging right down into the dollars that spell sacrifice.

Because only such full-scale effort can hasten the day when casualty lists will end...when hospital trains will cease to bring home their shattered human cargo...when little, official telegrams will no longer carry their bitter news to American homes.

Every productive minute, every fighting dollar helps get this war over ... in the one way it will ever end... complete and final Victory.

Let's all back the attack!... BUY AT LEAST ONE EXTRA $100 WAR BOND NOW!

PACIFIC THRUST 'MERE PREVIEW,' SAYS MARSHALL

Japs Learning Meaning of Power, He Asserts.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Gen. Marshall told the nation tonight that "great battles" impend in Europe and the Marshall Islands thrust in the Pacific is only the preview to more action there, but he asserted the people at home still fail to grasp the magnitude of the effort needed for victory.

The United States chief of staff, disclosing he had received "vehement protests" from the public because flame throwers were used against the Japanese, said that this shows a lack of "understanding of the meaning of our dead on the beaches at Tarawa."

Marshall was widely credited weeks ago as being the source of the statement by a "high authority" that strikes and threats of strikes had given the axis propaganda fuel.

Bulk of Force in Europe.

Gen. Marshall, reviewing the war situation globally, in a radio speech at an American Legion dinner, said the bulk of ground and air forces will be concentrated in Europe now "where the great battles which are impending will decide the course of civilization."

[Maritime commission chief reports 40 per cent drop in ship building. Story on page 25.]

Disclosing that more than 2,000 American heavy bombers are now being used against Germany and occupied Europe, Marshall reported that "the destruction of German industrial cities is proceeding at a constantly increasing pace."

"Between the R. A. F. night bombardment and the American daylight precision bombing," the general said, "the people of Germany are experiencing the horrors of a war, for which they are responsible, to a degree never before approximated in modern times."

The Japanese, he said, have had unusually heavy air and ship losses in the last six months, and in the Marshalls "they have suffered an expert demonstration of the overwhelming air and sea power which is rapidly developing in the Pacific and the perfect teamwork of our landing parties."

Demands Are "Pardonable."

Marshall said his demands for "stern resolution" at home are pardonable "in one who has a terrible responsibility for the lives of many men."

The general said: "The allied avalanche is at last in motion and it will gather headway with each succeeding month. What is now required is the ardent support of our forces by the people at home. I am not referring merely to the production of equipment or to the purchases of bonds, but rather to the need of a stern resolution on the part of the whole people of the United States to make every sacrifice that will contribute to the victory. I feel that here at home we are not yet facing the realities of war, the savage, desperate conditions of the battle fronts.

"Our soldiers must be keenly conscious that the full strength of the nation is behind them, they must not go into battle puzzled or embittered over disputes at home which adversely affect the war effort. Our small sacrifices should be personal even more than financial. They should be positive proof that we never forget for a moment the soldier has been compelled to leave his family, to give up his business, and to hazard his life in our service."

Pacific Offensive Is a "Pattern."

Adm. King, commander in chief of the navy, told the gathering that the rolling American offensive in the Pacific is according to distinct pattern which has "defeat of Japan" as its sole objective.

"The operations coat has had to be cut to the cloth of the means available and I may say that there have been times when we have had to skimp on the cloth," said the admiral. "We still have a long way to go. We must also remember that as we go on, the enemy's lines of communications grow ever shorter as ours grow ever longer, that the enemy defensive positions will be more thoroly dug in and that we will need all the fighting power that we can muster to attain the victory."

King said the British-American chiefs of staff have had for some time plans underway to shift allied fighting power to the Pacific as soon as Germany's defeat "becomes imminent." When that transfer begins to take effect, he declared, "our advance in the Pacific will really begin to move—we can then open the throttle wide."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Pvt. Edward J. Hill, Camp Adair, Ore.]

THE QUESTION.

What souvenir do you still have from the first World war?

WHERE ASKED.

The Advertising Men's post, No. 38, American Legion.

THE ANSWERS.

John F. Doggett, railroad officer, 1115 Lunt avenue—None of my war souvenirs was collected overseas as the armistice was signed before I could make it. But I do have some very fond memories, my honorable discharge papers and a pair of moth-eaten, woolen, wrap around leggings that gave me a lot of trouble.

Newton Rogers, manufacturer's agent, 505 North Michigan avenue—My most prized souvenir is a full set of the war time news publication, the Stars and Stripes. It was published by the AEF in Paris and contains all the small, interesting stories that I might have forgotten if I hadn't had so many issues of it.

C. E. Thorsen, insurance broker, 8319 Kedvale avenue, Skokie—I went overseas on the troop carrier the Walmer Castle, and still have a copy of my favorite dinner menu that was served aboard. It's autographed by the captain of the ship. Two of the dishes listed, I remember, are rare roast beef and Waldorf salad.

Howard R. Briggs, poultry producer, 4824 Mulford street, Skokie—One day before the armistice was signed, I collected several wounds during the battle of the Argonne. I was given the Purple Heart award, which I still have. Most of the men in our platoon were killed on that last day of the war.

F. C. Berk, sales engineer, 3432 64th street—I consider myself pretty lucky to have a copy of the field orders for the proposed attack on Metz. Just before the attack was carried out the armistice was signed. Otherwise, I probably never would have had possession of the orders.

O. A. Asman, insurance agent, 1900 Estes avenue—During my service in the first World war I wore a khaki colored woolen vest sweater. It was given to me by the Red Cross. It's quite moth-eaten now and in pretty bad condition, but I still hang onto it as a souvenir of my soldier days.

BRITISH FOOLED ON JAPAN, SAY NEW ZEALANDERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 3.—Britain views the Pacific war as remote, and Britons falsely believe Japan will be quickly conquered when the Nazis are beaten, say three New Zealand editors visiting Britain, in a dispatch today.

The editors report British forces expect to be transferred to the Pacific once the Nazis are ousted, and resent suggestions Britain isn't determined to throw full force into the Pacific. But the editors appear surprised at the idea the Japs will go down in a few months. They lay this belief to ignorance of Pacific geography.

The New Zealanders are disturbed because the British do not seem to realize the difficulty of bringing overwhelming forces to bear.

Back of this, the editors declare, is the opinion the Russians will either enter the war or allow the allies the use of Pacific bases.

12 ARMY UNITS GET CITATIONS IN ATTU RECAPTURE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The award of Presidential citations to 12 army units for courage and outstanding performance of duty in the recapture of Attu last May was announced today by Under Secretary of War Patternson.

Eight of the units are part of the 7th division, now participating in the attack on the Marshall Islands in the Central Pacific. Units cited are:

Company E, 32d division, 7th infantry—For action during the entire Attu battle, particularly May 19-21 on high ground south of Sarana valley-Massacre valley pass.

Comapnies I and K, 32d infantry, 7th division—For a vigorous attack in the Bahai region May 26.

Company D, 50th engineer regiment—For quick defense and successful counter-attack when Japanese forces sought to break thru in the Sarana-Massacre pass area. Capt. [then Lt.] Jack Dillon, Newcastle, Pa., commanded. The company also cleared the enemy out of the gorge northeast of Cold mountain.

Counter-Attack Foiled.

Detachment, combat intelligence platoon [detachment Alaskan scouts]—For its success as reconnaissance and covering detachment for the northern landing force.

Company A, 4th infantry—For its courage, endurance, and determination in the attack on Fish Hook ridge.

Company B, 17th infantry, 7th division—For its seizure of a precipitous hill and holding it against determined counter-attack during the attack on the ridge separating the two valleys of Holtz bay; led by Capt. [then Lt.] William R. Davis, Manhattan, Mont.

Company F, 17th infantry, 7th division—For determined and courageous attacks in the Sarana-Massacre pass area and the ridge between Chichagof harbor and Holtz bay.

Company F, 78th coast artillery [antiaircraft—Capt. [then Lt.] William E. Beilke, Green Bay, Wis., commanding, for shifting two pack howitzers over extremely difficult terrain, taking "two nights of super-human effort," to support an infantry batalion which then was able to take Chichagof pass.

Troop Commander Killed.

Seventh reconnaissance troop, 7th division—For successful scouting and support operations under difficult conditions with the northern landing force. The troop commander, Capt. Emory A. Austin, Erie, Pa., was killed and a number of officers and men wounded. Lt. James Mahoney, Newton, Mass., commanded one platoon.

Seventh medical battalion, 7th division—Accomplished rapid evacuation of wounded, under fire, despite extremely difficult terrain and unfavorable weather conditions.

Service company, 17th infantry, 7th division—Operating a supply dump in Massacre-Sarana pass, was assaulted by enemy forces May 29, but "by their prompt, courageous, and determined defense this company stopped one of the enemy's major thrusts against our forces." Capt. Charles J. Davidson, Madison, Kas., company commander, was killed.

WORLD TAUGHT CHRISTIANITY BY JAPS, THEY SAY

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Tokio radio, in a fantastic propaganda broadcast, quoted an unidentified "Filipino commentator" today as saying that "the Japanese, who don't profess to be Christians, are making Christian teaching patent here on earth, even in such a horrible time as this."

The broadcast—an ironic sequel to recent disclosures concerning Japanese war atrocities—said the commentator had written an article "severely criticizing the un-Christian practices of the Anglo-Americans."

The broadcast was transmitted in English and recorded by the United States foreign broadcast intelligence service.

U. S. AND MEXICO SIGN TREATY ON USE OF 3 RIVERS

Californian Hints Protest at Provisions.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The United States and Mexico today signed a treaty for conservation, distribution, and use of the waters of the Rio Grande, Colorado, and Tijuana rivers, a step toward possible settlement of a long-standing dispute between the two countries.

There was immediate indication, tho, that the treaty might hit a ratification snag in a statement by Sen. Downey [D., Cal.] that when the treaty is laid before the senate, he would "use every effort" to protect interests of his state.

The state department said the treaty "marks a step of epic importance in the practical application of the policy of the good neighbor" and added that the two governments, by terms of the treaty, will undertake the construction of additional facilities for better control of the rivers.

Fear Effect on California.

California interests, meanwhile, declared southern California would suffer most from additional diversion of Colorado river waters and said it would be unfair to give Mexico more water than she was using prior to construction of Boulder dam.

Terms of the treaty were not disclosed by the state department, but authoritative sources said the treaty would guarantee Mexico approximately 1½ million acre-feet of water annually from Colorado waters, plus about 200,000 acre-feet of surplus waters on a provisional basis.

The treaty they said, also would settle long-standing differences between Mexico and Texas concerning usage of waters from the Rio Grande river and would, in this way, indirectly benefit Texas at the expense of California.

Would Apportion Water.

The announcement said: "This treaty provides for urgently needed works and facilities, and improvements to those now existing, for the conservation, control, and use of the available water supply of the Colorado and Tijuana rivers, and of the Rio Grande below Fort Quitman, Tex., and for the equitable apportionment of such water supply, thereby not only confirming present beneficial water uses, but also assuring additional developments in both countries."

California interests said federal officials had attempted to allay their fears that southern California would suffer most from additional diversion of Colorado river waters and expressed the fear that the six other states sharing Colorado waters would align themselves against California in any fight which might develop over water contracts and the international water treaty.

At the same time it was pointed out that one of the hardest fights against the treaty probably would be in the senate foreign relations committee, headed by Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], whose state would stand to gain by the terms of the agreement.

Chinese Capture Jap Post

Developments in Burma drive to clear highway route.

Six Day Battle

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 13 (AP).—American trained Chinese forces driving across northern Burma have captured Taipha Ga, strongly defended village on the main Japanese supply route after a six day battle, allied headquarters announced today. The victory of Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's forces placed the Chinese forces about a third of the way across North Burma in their drive to clear Japanese forces from the route of the new Ledo road to China which will connect with the old Burma road to the southeast.

The Chinese are consolidating their forces within the village area and are now striking on southward, the allied bulletin said. Other allied successes were reported farther to the south, where more than 200 Japanese officers and men were killed when they attacked allied positions in the Mualbem area.

Allied artillery fire broke up an enemy attempt to strengthen positions in the Tiddim area of the western China hills front. A large formation of American fighter-bombers knocked out runways at the Myitkyina airport in northern Burma, setting fires within the town itself and also starting fires in the Japanese transport depot and storage areas at Radhpur, three miles northwest of Myitkyina.

ARNEY IS NAMED ACTING HEAD OF BROADCASTERS

The directors of the National Association of Broadcasters yesterday announced the appointment of C. E. Arney Jr., secretary-treasurer, as managing director of the organization pending the assumption of the presidency by John Harold Ryan, assistant director of censorship in charge of broadcasting. Ryan was named president at a meeting of the directors Wednesday at the Palmer House. He succeeded Neville Miller, who has held the post for six years. Miller's term runs until July 1, but he asked that Ryan take over the position on Feb. 15. Ryan indicated in Washington that he was uncertain how soon he could wind up his affairs with the office of censorship.

The directors announced that the "Victory conference" which had been scheduled April 10-13 in New York has been postponed. The meeting has been rescheduled for Aug. 28-31 in the Palmer House, Chicago.

TWO SENTENCED TO THREE YEARS IN DRAFT CASES

Fred J. Hawrysko of 4644 South Winchester avenue, and Louis Rylewicz of 1344 West 18th place, each 20 years old and members of the sect of Jehovah's Witnesses, were convicted by a jury yesterday of violating the selective service laws and were sentenced by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan to three years' imprisonment. On the motion of their attorney, Victor F. Schmidt, both were given until Feb. 17 to close their affairs before beginning sentences.

BEDROOM DOOR FEATURES TRIAL OF 'DANCE KING'

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 3 [Special].—Whether the bedroom door was closed during an amorous meeting provided the principal controversy at the trial today of Harry Schooler, "swing shift dance king," who is charged with three statutory morals offenses against Patricia Frey, 17.

The young complainant, whose alleged betrayal evolved into a criminal case after her father made her report it to authorities, has testified that Schooler seduced her during their visit at the home of friends. She insisted that the bedroom door was closed during the 2 a. m. episode on Aug. 18.

Because of conflicting testimony about what took place, Superior Judge Edward Brand, the jury and attorneys made an inspection of the residence occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Tomago Tuschieda, entertainers and friends of Schooler.

Dancer Changes Testimony.

Mrs. Queda Tuschieda, a Negro actress and interpretative dancer, testified that the "door was open all the time," but later changed her testimony and admitted that it might have been closed for about three minutes.

She said Schooler, who is reputed to have parlayed his $35 a week aircraft factory job into a $16,000 a week business of operating dance ballrooms for "swing shift" workers, arrived at the Tuschieda home with Miss Frey at 2 a. m. She said her husband, who was ill in bed, had been expecting Schooler to visit him about a proposed radio contract.

She told of serving Schooler a drink of bourbon and Miss Frey a soft drink. Some time later, she said, the young couple "went into a bedroom and sat on the edge of the bed for about 12 minutes."

Says Door Was Open.

"I sat nearby," Mrs. Tuschieda testified. "The door was open and I saw everything that went on. They did not remove any garments. When Mr. Schooler tried to close the door, my husband called to him and told him not to."

She declared that both Schooler and the girl appeared fully clothed when they emerged from the room and that Schooler apologetically offered her a small sum of money for the embarrassment he had caused her and her husband, but she refused it. She said she had been angry at their entering her bedroom.

Under cross-examination Mrs. Tuschieda admitted that the door might have been closed a few minutes.

"You didn't have a watch in your hand, did you?" she was asked. She replied, "No."

BROTHER CATCHES UP WITH MODEST STEVE AND FILLS IN BLANKS

Sgt. Stephen Hollis.

Sgt. Stephen Hollis, 24 years old, of the marines hasn't been home since he entered the service three and a half years ago and modestly has written little about his activities. But his brother, John, 25, who became an army private 20 months ago, met Steve Jan. 8 in the Southwest Pacific, according to letters received by their parents, John and Julia Hollis of 977 West 18th place. Steve spent three days at John's camp, then both spent a day at Steve's camp. John wrote that his brother's outfit had been in 12 engagements and was recommended for a Presidential citation. The parents recently recognized Steve in a Tribune photo from the Pacific.

U. S. RAILROAD EXPERTS SPEED UP BURMA LINES

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 3 (AP).—American railroaders are preparing to take over the 700 miles of line immediately back of the Burma front to see if they can't drive more supplies to the fighting fronts in China. One of the first results of American efficiency is the appearance of a far greater number of double engined trains.

Col. M. E. Sheahan.

Maj. Gen. William E. R. Covell of Crossette, Ark., is in general charge of the American service of supply, India-China, but the job of speeding up deliveries belongs to Brig. Gen. Thomas B. Wilson of Lawrence, Kas., and San Francisco, Cal.

Col. M. E. Sheahan of Chicago, who worked with Gen. Wilson on the Southern Pacific, later for the Greyhound bus lines and the Alaska Steamship company, is assisting. Sheahan was with the interstate commerce commission and a Chicago trucking concern, and was sent to China to act as adviser on communications, including the Burma road.

A President is Born

HE is so small and helpless. So dependent on you for his life and well-being. And yet you are able to look at him and say—

"Someday he may be President."

Put it down as foolish sentiment. Put it down as parental pride. But where else in the world could you envision for your child the possibility of his attaining, one day, the highest office in the land?

Maybe your child won't make it. But one child, very much like him, will One child out of the three million babies born this year—or the next—or the year after.

Whether or not he attains this high position is not so important. What matters is that here, in America, he is born with that opportunity. He is born in the stubborn tradition of free men—men who felt that in government, the wisdom of the many is preferable to the ambition of the few. He is born in a tradition of self-reliance—where he may succeed or fail, win or lose, rise or fall, according to his own efforts.

Because of that, you will train him to think for himself, to fight his own battles, to make his own way.

You will teach him that responsibility is inseparable from freedom. And that if he joins with other men in an enterprise he should demand the same responsibility and freedom for his business that marks his birthright as an individual.

Someday he may hear, as you have heard, voices that say, "Surrender your opportunity for the certainty that you shall always have bread"—as if man lived by bread alone. As if the country were better served by limiting all to mediocrity—instead of assuring to all, under law, an equal chance to rise by their own efforts, conscious of their obligations to others.

What that son of yours learns at your knee will decide whether or not he will ever have to bend his knee before dictation and tyranny.

And because of what you teach him, he too may one day look with that same foolish pride on his own son to say, "Someday he may be President—"

—in the "wood"

"Aged in the wood" is a familiar expression, but few people really know how important a part barrels play in the maturing of whiskey. Some time ago we wrote a little piece entitled "BARRELS," but we could only scratch the surface of this subject in an article of 300 or 400 words. So this is—more of the same.

As you know, whiskey is colorless when it comes from the still. At this stage it is drawn into charred, oak barrels. Then the casks are placed in bonded warehouses. (All whiskey is so stored.) In the warehouse the whiskey usually remains for four or more years, under controlled conditions of temperature, humidity and ventilation. The minute the whiskey gets into the barrels things begin to happen—slowly of course. Color gradually begins to appear, and the color of whiskey is derived exclusively from the charred, oak staves. At first the liquid appears yellowish, then it takes on an amber shade, and later, when it is properly matured, it has a deep reddish-brown color.

While whiskey is in the "wood" it also undergoes definite and intended changes in aroma and taste characteristics, because of continuous reactions occurring in the barrel. For instance, the liquid takes certain extractives from the wood; then there is oxidation of the organic substances in the whiskey and of the materials extracted from the wood. Some new products are formed in the whiskey as a result of a reaction among the various organic substances. All of these "constituents" in whiskey, produced by nature, contribute to the well-known flavor—so easily recognizable by you as "whiskey taste."

And may we remind you again that nature does most of the work; man controls the natural processes—importantly.

Sometime soon, in another article, we will tell you more of these scientific controls exercised in our very modern distilleries. "Men in white" are constantly working objectively to keep our Industry under the canopy of the slogan—AMERICA MAKES THE BEST OF EVERYTHING!

WAR BOND SALE TOPS 50% MARK IN CHICAGO AREA

Bataan Clan to Hold Rally in Loop Today.

Past Half Way Mark

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The biggest day for both individual and corporate purchases of bonds sent the $14,000,000,000 4th war loan well beyond the half-way point tonight with a total of $8,502,000,000 in cash subscriptions. Individual sales jumped $260,000,000 to $2,201,000,000 or 40 per cent of the $5,500,000,000 goal, while $2,082,000,000 in new corporate subscriptions boosted that total to $6,301,000,000—a shade more than 74 per cent.

A Bataan war bond rally at Treasury center, 72 West Adams street, will be held at noon today in connection with the 4th war loan bond campaign, which yesterday had reached slightly more than 50 per cent of the $721,818,400 quota for Chicago and Cook county.

Among those to take part in the rally will be A. C. McArthur, Villa Park, president of the Bataan clan, whose son was lost on Bataan; Police Lt. John Peterson, Maywood, past president of the Bataan clan, whose son is a prisoner; Mrs. Lenore Vertuna, Maywood, whose son is missing; Mrs. Charles Peterson, Elmwood Park, son missing; Ernest Ehrngern, 3400 North Harding avenue, son a prisoner, and Mrs. Clara Kuncl, 1628 South St. Louis avenue, son a prisoner.

4% Hike Over Night.

Frank McNair, chairman of the drive, reported figures on purchases which showed a 4 per cent advance toward the county quota over night. Corporation sales reached $275,746,000 and individual sales, $86,833,000, for 58 and 35 per cent, respectively, of quotas for the two categories.

Thousands of persons witnessed a ceremony at State and Madison streets yesterday noon, in which marines returned from Pacific battles were honored. Six hundred sand bags supplied by the city were used in building a machine gun nest on the southwest corner of the intersection. The marines showed how to storm such an enemy position.

Machine Guns Rattle.

Many bystanders heard real machine guns operate for the first time as machine guns mounted on two jeeps opened up as they approached the intersection. Blank ammunition was used.

Joseph Vogel, newly named flying bondsman of the United States treasury department, suggested fund raising plans to the local war activities committee of the motion picture industry yesterday noon at the Stevens hotel.

The E bond campaign will continue to Feb. 26, it was reëmphasized yesterday, with corporation bonds to be withdrawn Feb. 15.

SCHOOLS BUYING EXTRA BONDS TO GET COPY OF LAW

The war finance committee of Illinois will furnish public parochial schools in which 90 per cent of the pupils buy extra war bonds and stamps a facsimile of one of the four original copies of the Bill of Rights, it was announced yesterday.

The original was purchased recently by Barney Balaban, president of Balaban & Katz theaters and of Paramount Pictures, who attended Jefferson school, 1522 Fillmore street.

A public school bulletin yesterday asked principals to report 90 per cent subscriptions by Feb. 18.

Bond Purchase Pledges at Rally Total $496,500

Pledges for the purchase of $496,500 worth of bonds were signed by the 150 men who attended a stag party and bond sale rally last night at the Westmoreland Country club at Wilmette. Officers from the Great Lakes Naval station and Fort Sheridan and Mayors Harry S. Kinne of Wilmette and S. G. Ingraham of Evanston urged the men to make every sacrifice in order to purchase as many bonds as possible.

THEATER OF AIR'S FRIML PROGRAM TO HONOR SPARS

2,000 Will Be Guests at 'The Firefly.'

For the second time this season an entire production of W-G-N's Chicago Theater of the Air will be dedicated to the women's reserve of the coast guard tomorrow when the cast of 100 presents Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly" before 4,000 guests in Medinah temple.

Among the guests will be 2,000 SPARS and prospective SPARS. A post-broadcast program of entertainment will be presented by the coast guard.

Marion Claire, prima donna of the Theater of the Air, will be starred as Nina in "The Firefly." Attilio Baggiore, noted tenor, will be cast as Jack Travers, and Bruce Foote, baritone, will sing the part of John Thurston. Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus. The broadcast portion of the program will be aired over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

A navy orchestra will be featured in the after-show and will be joined for the entertainment by Songstress Connie Russell and the Coast Guard Cutters, an instrumental quartet. The Cutters are recipients of a treasury department citation signed by Secretary Morgenthau for selling 45 million dollars worth of war bonds.

The speakers on this portion of the program will include Ensign Donna Gill of the SPARS recruiting office in Chicago, and Signal Man 3d Class Robert Guthrie, a coast guard man.

BROADER WORK OF RED CROSS IN WAR LAUDED

In view of the many activities of the Red Cross, the 200 million dollar goal of the 1944 Red Cross war fund drive is not excessive, Leon Fraser, president of the First National Bank of the City of New York and national chairman of the Red Cross drive, told two groups of Chicago civic, business and industrial leaders yesterday.

Leon Fraser.

The first meeting was held at noon at the Palmer House, the second in the evening at the Chicago club. Both were preludes to the 1944 drive, which will open officially on March 1 and continue thru the month.

Tells of Many Services.

"The Red Cross is at the service man's side from the moment he is inducted," Fraser said at the evening meeting. He told how the organization acted as liaison between the service man and his family in times of trouble, how it stood ready to lend money when necessary, how it provided comforts and small luxuries for troops embarking for overseas and followed them into the combat zones with its help and service, how it recruited nurses to tend the wounded and provided encouragement and the means of rehabilitation for the disabled.

"The sun never sets on the American Red Cross," he said. "It goes wherever our defenders go."

He emphasized that the Red Cross could provide the services it does on its relatively modest budget only because it has hundreds of thousands of volunteer workers and obtains many free services. He asked his hearers to calculate what the 11 million pints of blood which the Red Cross had provided would cost if they had to be purchased at the standard price of $30 a pint.

Generals Laud Work.

Fraser said he was confident that the 200 million dollar goal would be reached. "The American people will respond," he declared. "Give at least 50 per cent more than you did last year."

Fraser stressed that the bulk of the contributions must come from people in the low and medium income brackets—that 76 per cent of the gifts made in this country, according to government figures, come from those earning less than $5,000 a year.

He quoted the opinions of men who have observed Red Cross work at close range.

"The Red Cross never has failed the American soldier," Gen. MacArthur said. "It has helped him in danger, sustained him in pain, and comforted him in dejection."

"Wherever the 5th army has moved, the American Red Cross has kept pace with its advance," Gen. Clark asserted. "I want the folks back home to know that the 5th army is grateful for the splendid work of the Red Cross."

Other speakers at both meetings were James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, and Martin H. Kennelly, campaign chairman. Fred A. Preston, chairman of the chapter's special gifts committee, presided.

WOUNDED YANK HAS MOTHER INVEST HIS $1,000 IN WAR BONDS

Lt. Anthony Griggins, who lies severely wounded in a hospital in North Africa, invested $1,000 in war bonds yesterday. The purchase was made by his mother, Mrs. Frank Zabrowski, 806 14th street, North Chicago, who has been saving the money which Lt. Griggins sent home since he enlisted in the army in February, 1941.

Lt. Anthony Griggins.

Recently Mrs. Zabrowski wrote to her son, asking how he wanted to invest his savings. He replied: "I want to put the money into bonds of the 4th war loan and show my appreciation for my country. There is no land like our land."

Lt. Griggins served thru the North African campaign and was slightly wounded in the fighting in Tunisia. Later he suffered a serious leg wound in Italy. He holds the Purple Heart medal and the silver star for gallantry.

2 WOMEN FREED AS DRAKE CASE RUNS INTO WALL

2 Weeks of Investigating Add Up to a Zero.

The Drake hotel murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, wife of a Washington diplomatic aid, fell back again yesterday to a state of bewilderment, contradictions, suspicions, and virtually no clews, with the release of two women who had been held since Monday night.

"We're just about back where we started from," admitted an investigator. The start was made Jan. 19 when Mrs. Williams was fatally shot in her hotel room by a mysterious gunwoman, who also fired, but without effect, on her daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody.

The women freed were Mrs. Ellen Bennett, red haired desk clerk at the Drake, and her sister, Mrs. H. R. Minck, better known as Miss Anna Valanis. With their release, detectives turned to a new development — the mystery of a vanishing and reappearing key to Mrs. Williams' room.

Unwavering During Quiz.

Mrs. Bennett, who was once placed on probation for an attempted holdup with a gun, and Mrs. Minck, who was once acquitted of murder, and once convicted of burglary, insisted from the moment of their arrest that they knew nothing of the crime. They stuck to their denials against dozens of interrogators, lie detector tests, and eyewitnesses.

Police released Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. Minck just as their attorney sought a writ of habeas corpus. Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan, who has appeared in the investigation now and then, personally escorted them from the detective bureau.

Meanwhile, detectives started to pry more deeply into the mystery of the vanishing key. Mrs. Williams' slayer entered her apartment presumably with a key, a theory at first ridiculed by the hotel.

Key Clew Being Pursued.

However, Sgt. Jack Hanrahan of the detective bureau has established that the duplicate key to Mrs. Williams' room had disappeared for a few hours the night of the murder. Mrs. Williams picked up her room key at 6:20 p. m. A duplicate key should have been in the box. It was discovered missing at 8:30 p. m., and probably had been gone some time before. At 10:30 p. m. it was back.

Another twist developed as Mrs. Williams' husband reported from Washington that a black pearl and an aquamarine were missing from her brown jewel box when it was found in her apartment there.

FIND BODY IN LAGOON.

The body of a man, bearing a ration book issued to Paul Mayer, 72 years old, 2135 Cleveland avenue, was recovered yesterday from the Lincoln Park lagoon at Fullerton avenue.

JURY OF WOMEN HEARING MURDER CASE TESTIMONY

Panel Qualified for Death Penalty.

Edward Damiani, 28 years old, and Alvin Krause, 29, went on trial in Criminal court yesterday before the first all-woman jury in Cook county qualified to inflict the death penalty. They are charged with slaying Miss Agnes Olsen, 53, with poison gas last July 3 when they attempted to rob a currency exchange at 311 North Pulaski road where she was cashier.

Opening of the trial was threatened with delay when one of the jurors, Mrs. Bernice Bartosik, 27, of 938 West 52d street, asked to be excused, because of her five month old baby, when she learned that the jurors were to be locked up. She told Judge Harold G. Ward tearfully that she was worried about preparation of the formula for the baby which had been left in the care of the child's grandmother. She was permitted to telephone her sister to enlist her aid in caring for the child.

Reports Insanity Defense Plan.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard B. Austin disclosed during his opening statement that Damiani had tried to lay the groundwork for a plea of insanity after he was captured and lodged in the county jail. In a letter which he tried to smuggle out to his wife, but which jail authorities intercepted, Damiani wrote that the only way "to beat this rap is to go to an insane asylum for a few years," Austin said.

Early witnesses for the state brought a definite identification of Damiani as one of the men who poured the poison gas into Miss Olsen's cage, but a witness who pointed out Krause weakened in his identification when he was cross-examined by Defense Atty. Harold Levy.

Damiani was identified as the robber who carried the gas cylinder by Bert Simmons, 4210 Washington boulevard, who was a customer in the exchange at the time.

Describes Gas Attack.

Simmons described the gas as appearing "like steam with a blue-gray color," and told how Miss Olsen collapsed as she tried to make her way to the door. At that time, Simmons said, he felt a burning sensation in his lungs and throat and heard Damiana say to his companion:

"She's got too much gas. Let's get out of here."

Albert Laikin, owner of a gasoline station at Lake street and Pulaski road, across the street from the exchange, testified that he saw the robbers and later identified Krause as one of them. He was not able to identify Damiani.

Under cross-examination by Atty. Levy, Laikin admitted that he was "bothered" about the identification.

"Didn't you tell me Jan. 23 when I visited you at home that you were not sure of your identification of Krause?" Levy asked.

"I might have told you something like that," the witness replied.

FOUND DEAD; THROAT SLASHED.

Albert C. Kenning, 61 years old, 5025 West 31st street, Cicero, a trucker for the Western Electric company, was found dead with his throat slashed, supposedly suicide, in the pantry of his home yesterday.

MAYOR TO NAME GROUPS TO MAN WAR FACTORIES

In an effort to spur recruitmen of war workers in the Chicago area, Mayor Kelly will name 10 or 15 committees from among religious, civic, and industrial groups, he announced last night after a conference in his office.

John Nuveen Jr., regional director of the war production board, said that 1943 war production in the midwest region, embracing Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, and Wisconsin, exceeded by 15 per cent the production of any other region and that 1944 schedules call for a 20 per cent increase.

Other speakers included Victor Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor; Maj. Gen. John F. Davis, chief of staff of the 6th service command; William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission; Col. Chester L. Fordney of the marines, and the Rt. Rev. E. J. Randall, Episcopal suffragan bishop.

FILM OPERATORS ELECT GANG FOE AS UNION BOSS

International Head Will Relinquish Control.

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

Eugene Atkinson, who was expelled from the Chicago Moving Picture Machine Operators' union, local 110, for trying to rid the organization of gang control in 1935, was vindicated by the members last night. He was elected business manager and nominal boss of the union.

Eugene Atkinson.

The election of a complete set of new union officers took place in the Hamilton hotel. Six hundred twenty-nine members voted. The election was held because the former officers were forced to resign in December when the members rebelled against them. The rebels charged that the officers had formed a combine with the theater owners to prevent the operators from getting pay raises.

All Former Officers Defeated.

Several of the former officers sought election yesterday, but all were defeated. Richard Walsh, international president of the union, was in charge of the election. Walsh announced that as soon as the new officers learn their jobs he will release the union from the international's supervision. Local 110 has been under the control of the international union since the resignation of the former officers.

Atkinson, who has been a member of the union for more than 30 years, is an operator at the State and Lake theater. In 1935 when Tommy Maloy, then business manager of local 110, was assassinated, Atkinson formed a club within the union to fight against its being taken over by the Frank Nitti gang syndicate.

Willie Bioff and George E. Browne grabbed control of the union for the Nitti mob, however, and expelled Atkinson from membership. It wasn't until 1941, after Bioff and Browne had been convicted in New York of extorting more than a million dollars from Hollywood movie producers, that Atkinson was given his membership back by the international executive board.

Pledges Defiance of Gangsters.

"I will never let the union be taken over by outsiders or gangsters," Atkinson pledged last night.

Other officers elected are: James Gorman, president; Frank Galluzzo, vice president; and Ora D. Bebb, secretary-treasurer. Phil Kore, another leader in the fight against gang control of the union, who brought suit against former officers of the union years ago, was elected chairman of the board of trustees. The two other trustees elected are Edward Shultz and Edward Reilly.

Joseph Mucek was elected sergeant-at-arms and the four new executive board members are Charles Funk, Sam Klugman, Arthur Tuchman, and Charles B. McNeill.

IOWA DEMOCRAT NAMED REGIONAL DIRECTOR OF OPA

Rae E. Walters, director of the Des Moines, Ia., district of the office of price administration, will take over as Chicago regional administrator in charge of seven states, on Monday, the OPA announced yesterday. He will succeed Raymond S. McKeough, who resigned Dec. 15 to become regional head of the political action committee of the CIO.

Rae E. Walters.

An official of the regional office of the civil service commission said Walters was disqualified for his new post on the basis of his own statements made in his application, which was one of 56 filed. This official said he was not sure how the Iowan, who is a neighbor and close political associate of Jake More, Iowa state Democratic chairman, had been selected for the job.

Revision Held Possible.

A civil service spokesman said, however, that findings and recommendations of the regional office are not binding on the Washington office, and it was possible that the latter had revised Walters' rating at the request of the OPA to provide a Democratic successor to McKeough, who was that party's unsuccessful candidate for United States senator from Illinois two years ago.

Only seven of the 56 applicants were qualified by civil service, it was learned. Under CSC regulations government agencies are required to select one of the top three qualified persons for any job, or discard all three and consider the next three, and so on thru the qualified list. Walters, it was said, was well down among the 49 who failed to qualify.

It also was learned that early in December two OPA officials from Washington called on 50 or more Chicago executives in an attempt to draft some Democratic business leader into the job, but none would take it. At that time Sheriff Michael F. Mulcahy, then area OPA director, was willing to take the regional post and filed an application at the request of close associates.

Call on Mulcahy Omitted.

The civil service spokesman said Mulcahy's name headed the list of qualified applicants sent to Washington three weeks ago, but it was learned that he had not even been called on by the two recruiters from Washington. When the Cook county board offered him the sheriff's post, he accepted.

Mulcahy's resignation was followed closely by those of several executives in his office who left to take private jobs. Resentment over developments also was felt in the regional office, altho it was tempered by the naming of Alex Elson, regional attorney, as acting administrator. The selection of Walters for apparent political reasons was expected to be a new blow to the morale of both regional and area offices.

Walters, who has been serving without pay, is reputedly wealthy. Originally a farmer, he went into business during the last war but was wiped out by the depression of the early '20s. He recouped his fortunes in a rendering business, which he still owns, together with a feed business and two farms.

Washington OPA officials said he was chosen "entirely on merit" which included proved administrative ability and knowledge of the OPA program. Regional CSC officials said they had disqualified his application because of his lack of business experience.

Walters became an OPA board chairman two years ago and was named district director last June.

'CHICAGO'S LAST LIQUOR STORE' WILL DISSOLVE

Chicago's last liquor store is going out of business. But there'll still be some left. The store is a corporation —Chicago's Last Liquor Store, Inc. 10500 South Indianapolis avenue— which yesterday filed a statement of intent to dissolve with Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes. Felix M. Buoscio, attorney who filed the petition, said some members of the corporation may continue the store as individuals.

Back up Gen. Eisenhower in his call for every home front American woman to do her full duty! To win in '44, our fighting forces must have more radar and radio equipment—the secret electronic devices which every ship and plane must have before it can fight the enemy! To do this demands YOUR help!

If you are not employed full time in war-useful work, take an important job now in one of Chicago's radar-radio industries. This work is ideally suited to women, since it is clean—easy to do—no heavy lifting—and pays well, with no experience required! And—you can select hours which will allow time for your other responsibilities.

Don't hesitate! Winning the war calls for action on your part right now! Visit your nearest United States Employment Service Office and ask for a "RADAR JOB"!

MORE RUSSIAN SURPRISES.

Russia continues to be an interesting, often inexplicable, and never predictable ally. Mr. Stalin and his council of commissars were entirely too much for the comrades in this country, who couldn't keep hold of the party line and were often off in the wrong direction because they didn't know what the right direction at the time was. For instance, they were still damning the imperialistic war when Russia joined it, and altho the American Communists made a quick recovery, it was one which left them dazed.

Mr. Browder has tried to solve his own troubles by announcing the Communist party is no longer a party, it's merely a cultural institution. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill can't take that line, so they must remain to wonder at the infinite ways in which Mr. Stalin can come to startling decisions. They can merely smile their encouragement that all will be found to be well in the end.

Simultaneously the soviet authorities have launched two attacks on the peace of mind of their collaborators in war and peace. They have made one on the Vatican, and thereby on Catholics the world over, and they have amended their constitution, ostensibly to increase the autonomy of the constituent republics so as to include independence in foreign affairs. The 16 republics enumerated include five of which the territory is yet to be occupied by the Russian armies. These represent some of the frontier claims in Finland, the Baltic states, and part of Rumania, where Russian decisions forestall any arrangements the peace conferees may have had in mind.

It has been remarked that Mr. Stalin has borrowed an idea from the commonwealth of British nations, which in form permits the dominions to maintain their own armies and to conduct their own foreign relations, tho in fact they behave like submissive colonies. On paper Stalin's new scheme of federation seems to give each of the little soviet republics the right to make treaties with other powers. We are asked to understand, apparently, that the republic of Kazakh or Azerbaijan could make an alliance without interference of the great Russian, or Moscow republic. That we hesitate to believe, in spite of the fact that the supreme soviet, or federal assembly of the union, adopted the proposal unanimously and incorporated it in the constitution.

Puzzled outside observers of the performance think that it has two meanings: One, that it sugar coats the absorption of other peoples as proposed in the Russian post-war settlement and will permit Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill more easily to accept the swallowing up of Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, parts of Rumania and Finland, and parts of Poland, promoting the fiction that these territories are not put under the Russian dictatorship but are incorporated as autonomous republics having their own say-so in nearly everything that affects them; second, that if the post-war arrangement takes the form of a constituent assembly in which Great Britain, as a congregation of free dominions, has six votes, Russia will have 16 as a composite of that many independent nations.

The United States as a federalized republic with 48 states, none of which has foreign relations with any other country, would have one vote. Such an arrangement is not preëminently astute as a peace proposal, because a great many Americans who now look fondly upon the idea of a world federation might be persuaded not to make such an outrageous surrender of prestige, influence, and fair dealing in any world organization. Some of our enthusiasts wouldn't balk at it, but others who might otherwise go along could be at least shamed into rejecting such an absurdity. At least we could hope that there would be such an effect in this country. Mr. Associate Justice Roberts might be a better authority on the question. He has announced his willingness to subordinate the sovereignty of the United States to the authority of a military super-state. Would he do so in spite of this frame-up of voting blocs?

It is to be noted that the policy of the soviet dictatorship has been to gain strength by recognizing the many races and nationalities in the soviet union. They have enjoyed at least a parade of equality in the soviet lineup and in representation on federal commissions and have not been made to feel that they were inferior to the Russian elements. That was a wise move in promoting the federated solidarity of so many races. We still wait for proof that it has been carried to the extent the British empire found it expedient to carry it after the other world war. It is proof, however, that the Russians are thinking several stages ahead of their collaborators in the post-war arrangements and it raises the question whether Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill has either the will or the adroitness to meet these Russians in a post-war settlement of Europe's problems.

The attack on the Vatican will not make it any easier for the American contingent in the arrangements to submit to Russian demands. Altho Stalin seemed to smooth out the religious question when he recognized the Orthodox Russian church and permitted it to have real existence and rights which included the training for the priesthood, he has raised an external religious question which will increase the strain on American diplomacy, even if there had been any intent to use diplomacy in trying to pull any of the pretentious declarations of the charter of freedom out of the fire which the Russians have built around them.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull may still feel that the conferences at Moscow and Teheran cleared up all the ambiguities of the situation, but events since these meetings seem to indicate that they didn't discover much of what was in the Russian mind and are in for a series of surprises.

MR. EDEN TAKES THE STUMP.

Anthony Eden, the No. 2 man in the British cabinet, has undertaken to carry Yorkshire, England, for the fourth term. The Post of that county is his family property. In addition to appraising Mr. Roosevelt as an "irreplaceable" national leader, it bewails the fact that the President is "handicapped by the American Constitution" to the extent that he cannot give America the kind of leadership Mr. Churchill gives Great Britain.

The Constitution galls Mr. Roosevelt at times, as may be verified from his own statements, but his acts indicate that as a rule he seems to be unaware of its existence. Mr. Churchill may derive advantage from the fact that the British government, in the recent words of D. W. Brogan of the London Weekly Spectator, is "a dictatorship tempered by editorials," but Americans will tend to ascribe his superior leadership to certain personal qualities that Mr. Roosevelt has been denied. Fundamental honesty is one.

However ill founded, the remarks of the Yorkshire Post can be welcomed as further evidence of the intention of the British government to interfere in, and if possible, dominate domestic political action in the United States. The propaganda campaign is being furthered on this side of the water by a handful of publications under open or secret British domination.

This anxiety over the outcome of our national election campaign can be explained on only one ground. There is not a candidate among Mr. Roosevelt's potential opponents on the Republican ticket who can, by the farthest stretch of the imagination, be classified as anti-British. The empire runs no risk of finding an enemy in the White House after next Jan. 20. Mr. Roosevelt's successor is, however, going to be pro-American. That explains the activity of the empire statesmen and publicists and their social climbing associates in this country.

TAFT'S COMPROMISE.

The compromise proposal on soldier voting put forward by Sen. Taft has plucked the last thread of logic out of the cloak of deceit with which Mr. Roosevelt and his partisans have surrounded their vote stealing attempt.

The Taft proposal is simple. State and federal ballots would have the same mail privileges, but the bobtailed federal ballot would be issued only to soldiers from states that fail before July 1 to make adequate provision for voting under their absentee ballot laws. No ballot would be issued except upon application from the soldier voter, and mass voting would be prohibited—necessary precautions against fraud. Candidates, not merely political parties, would be listed on the ballots.

Actually, few if any of the federal ballots would be used. None should be, since they are unconstitutional, but the concession destroys the last argument of the New Dealers—namely: that current legislation for federal coöperation with the states in conducting a legal election is meaningless, since it merely "recommends" measures to be followed by the states.

The states have not waited for congressional recommendations. Sen. Byrd, in a telegraphic poll of the states, found that 41 of 46 have either passed or contemplate passing absentee voting laws adjusted to the needs of service voting, with the other two states yet to be heard from. Earlier, Rep. Johnson of Illinois asked governors of the states whether they favored a state or a federal ballot, and the 30 replies he received were unanimous for the control by the states, which is prescribed by the Constitution.

The cry of the fourth term propagandists that soldiers will be deprived of their votes unless Mr. Roosevelt gets his way is thus exposed as the fraud that it has been from the beginning. Their contention that the state ballot system is unworkable boils down to the fact that they can't work it to their partisan advantage. It will give an honest election, and they dare not risk an honest election. They want a federal ballot commission, named and controled by Candidate Roosevelt, to dump millions of ballots into the laps of state election officials without giving those officials any means of determining whether the ballots are honest or fraudulent. They wouldn't be honest.

There has never been the slightest doubt that the federal ballot proposal is unconstitutional, and the palaver of the New Dealers about "unwritten law" does not change the fact. We have no unwritten Constitution. We have a written one, and that plainly reserves to the states the control of voting for Presidential electors.

More than soldier voting is involved in Sen. Lucas' proposed vote stealing commission. The underlying question is whether we shall continue to live under our Constitution, or shall be subject to a dictatorship. If congress can violate the Constitution to give the federal executive control over his own election, it can violate the Constitution to pass ex-post facto laws, by which citizens are punished as criminals for acts which were not crimes when they took place. It can pass bills of attainder, laws which declare men guilty of crime without trial, confiscate their property, condemn them to death, and disinherit their children.

It was not accidental that the Constitution placed control of Presidential elections in the states. If the federal government controled them, the party in power would never be ousted, no matter how inefficient and corrupt it might be. Congress must not give way. If it does, the Republic will be at an end and the first American dynasty will have been founded.

New York never will become a world fashion center until somebody persuades Mayor La Guardia to buy a new hat.—Indianapolis News.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 16.

1. The Golden Gate should make one think of which city? Miami New Orleans Nome San Francisco.
2. The active ingredient in smelling salts is Ammonia Mustard Camphor Chlorine.
3. A gumshoe would normally be associated with which one of these? Observatory Conservatory Dormitory Reformatory.
4. A smog would least likely be observed in which city? Chicago Tulsa Cleveland Pittsburgh.
5. The sunny side of the moon gets very hot chiefly because of No soil No atmosphere No water No trees.
6. Here is another problem in practical mathematics. You are entitled to five points if you can solve it.

Rosemary and Judith are friends. At Rosemary's 24th birthday party a young man took an especial interest in Judith and asked her to tell him her age. She smilingly declined, so he asked Rosemary for this information. Rosemary replied, "I am twice as old as Judith was when I was as old as Judith is now." Can you readers answer the young man's question from what Rosemary said to him?

HOME FRONT TRAVELOG.

The Marshall Islands, where your boys are now fighting and winning, are like an assortment of mixed noodles that have been twisted into various shapes. Each noodle, or atoll, incloses a small portion of the Pacific ocean, called a lagoon. The inner shore of the noodle is usually the inhabited portion.

* * *

Altho their land area is only 160 square miles, the Marshalls trail over a large expanse of water. Running diagonally in two parallel chains, they knock off about five degrees of latitude. Without consulting the navigating officers in the chart-room, this column's guess is that the archipelago is about 350 miles long. There are 15 major islands in one chain and 18 in another, and the task of thoroly delousing them will require time and patience. It will be like treating a large litter of pups that have become heavily infested with ticks. The best tweezers for Hirohito's ticks seem to be hand grenades and flame-throwers.

* * *

The natives of the Marshalls belong to the Micronesian division of Pacific aborigines. They are brown types, fairly close to the Hollywood standard for South Seas films. Heretofore our forces "somewhere" in the Pacific have been seeing the Melanesians, who are black, often wild, and always woolly.

* * *

This group of islands was named after a Capt. Marshall of the British navy, an early navigator in those waters. He teamed with a Capt. Gilbert, hence the near-by and recently acquired Gilberts, a smaller group than the Marshalls. These two captains seem to have been average British naval officers, about whose careers popular reference books are silent.

* * *

The animal and vegetable kingdoms of the Marshalls are skimpy affairs. After palm trees, there is little to talk about. No large sized animal has thrived there. Cattle and chickens are scarce. But the fishing in the lagoons is prime.

* * *

Robert Louis Stevenson visited the Marshalls briefly on his cruise in the S. S. Janet Nicoll in 1890.

THE ANCIENT GODS AWAKE.

Make now a noble drinking cup,
Sheared from the iceberg's hold;
Thor with Odin tonight shall sup
Mighty the draft and cold.

The hammer of Thor shall clang and ring
Against the massive bowl,
And icicles from their beards shall swing
When Thor to Odin gives "Skoal!"

Thor and Odin have sworn a pledge
While they drink their giant's brew
To sweep all tyrants over the edge
Of the glacier's walls of blue.

The swords from Valhalla's walls are gone;
Norse heroes bear them on earth
Until they have swept the coward's spawn
From the land of the Norsemen's birth.

S'Amuser.

The Answer Is "No."

"Is this the manager of the Nofood restaurant?"

"That depends upon what you want."

"I want to ask a favor——"

"The answer is 'No.'"

"Why do you say 'No' before I've told you what I want?"

"We always start with 'No' and build up from there, if necessary."

"Well, I was about to ask if you would permit me to eat lunch at your restaurant occasionally."

"No. Too many others have the same idea."

"But, don't you recall that there was a time when you were begging people to patronize you?"

"Those days are gone."

"But don't you realize that those days will return?"

"They are not here now."

"But I have excellent references from waitresses who once served me, certifying that I do not complain, drink only one glass of water, without ice; if I am not provided with a spoon I cheerfully stir my coffee with the handle of my fork; if I am overlooked when the napkins are passed around I gladly resort to my coat sleeve, and——"

"The answer is still 'No'."

"You are the most arrogant individual it has ever been my misfortune to——"

"Flattery won't get you any place. The answer is 'NO'!" W. L. Hudson.

I CAN'T TELL YOU.

I wish that I could tell you, but I can't;
It came to me in strictest confidence . . .
Tho keeping it from you makes little sense,
I wish that I could tell you, but I can't.

I wouldn't even breathe the faintest tip. . . .
Of course, it can't be helped if you should guess;
If you'd ask questions, I'd say "no" or "yes,"
But I'll never, never let the secret slip.

I wish that I could tell you, but I can't . . .
So that's your notion—maybe you're not wrong—
Don't tell me you didn't know it all along!

The First Electrical City?

Linemaster: A few days before reading your paragraphs about Tsarskoye Selo [Jan. 24] I had been browsing thru some clippings dealing with the history of the old Hungarian provincial town of Temesvar, since the peace treaty of Trianon the emporium of the Rumanian province of Banat, the city of the golden days of my adolescence. It is stated that Timisoara [Rumanian for Temesvar] was the first city on the continent of Europe to introduce electric lighting, having done this in 1886, one year before Tsarskoye Selo put hers into operation. They also lay claim to having been the first city to introduce lighting of streets [1760]. Gas lighting was introduced in 1856. Electric streetcars made their appearance in 1899. Suevius Viator.

THE SUCCESSFUL REMOVAL OF BIRTHMARKS.

JUST why birthmarks seem to be strikingly fond of the head and neck region is beyond understanding. This area, which represents less than one-seventh of the entire surface of the body, will harbor more than half of these defects. It is fortunate that females are afflicted only half as frequently as males.

Vascular blemishes—nests of blood vessels which lack a thick layer of true skin over them—are referred to as "port wine" stains. Sometimes they disappear coincident with the growth process. Many a dot no larger than a pinhead, observed in infancy, will vanish during the next few months.

The "strawberry" patch is quite different. Here the cells are raised above the surrounding parts. These lesions tend to enlarge—occasionally at a rapid rate. Should such a discoloration go on a rampage, immediate attention will be demanded.

The so-called cavernous tumors are deep and may be covered with normal epidermis, altho they are usually purplish in shade and somewhat swollen.

Regardless of the type, if the lesion is likely to become a personality handicap or to increase in size, treatment should be begun without delay. The best time for restoration is during infancy or early childhood. Watchful waiting, all too often, will prove disappointing. The blemish may double or quadruple while we are hoping that it will vanish.

The procedure of choice must be decided by a skilled dermatologist. While surgery is valuable, it need not be invoked in every case. If the imperfection exists about the eyelids, cosmetic excision is preferred. Furthermore, we must recall that skin grafts can now be transplanted with great accuracy and with every chance that perfect healing will result.

The coagulating electric current has come to be relied upon, but here again experience and training must determine the amount of "cooking" to which the tissues will be subjected. Carried too far, an ulcer may result, leaving an unsightly scar.

Next in importance are solutions which will constrict the blood vessels and obliterate them, and the same preparation frequently advised for varicose veins has been used. But, unless the operator is enthusiastic about the method and has had excellent success, some other cure may be well considered.

Many of these pigmented imperfections are extremely sensitive to X-rays and the trial of a light dose may be required to judge the effect. If nothing happens we may have recourse to radium, and a properly filtered "pack" has frequently proved salutary. So useful is this therapy that one or two exposures may bring about the elimination of a moderately sized tumor without injury to the epidermis.

It is safe to say that the usual variety of birthmark can be diminished or eradicated. The management adopted will depend upon its location, character, and extent. The objective, of course, is not to leave a disfigurement and to oblige the site to assume as near as possible the texture and shade of the surrounding cuticle. This demands judgment on the part of the expert in charge.

TRENCH FOOT.

M. M. writes: Is trench foot a lifelong problem?

REPLY.

It may be, unless exposure can be avoided. If the extremities are subjected constantly to dampness and chill, the parts may swell and resemble frostbite. Bacteria then move in and complicate the situation. Dry garments and waterproof footgear are preventives.

NOT DIRECTLY.

L. S. writes: Could an overactive thyroid condition be responsible for a growth of hair on the face of a woman?

REPLY.

The endocrine glands are responsible. Altho the thyroid is a part of the system, its rôle in this disorder is unimportant.

UNHARDENED.

S. E. writes: What kind of a person is termed "softhearted?"

REPLY.

One who lacks courage or exhibits kindness and solicitude for others. In the same sense, one who is easily imposed upon. From the standpoint of the heart muscle, degeneration can occur—myocarditis.

CLEANING HELPS.

N. K. writes: If a person has the teeth cleaned regularly by a dentist, are they more likely to turn yellow?

REPLY.

Quite the reverse. If the "ivories" are healthy and spotless, undesirable color changes will be retarded.

DISEASED.

D. L. writes: What is meant by "septic tonsils?"

REPLY.

Infested with organisms and hence sources of pus and poison.

The Carriers.

Millenniums ago, when ships were young,
The very first of aircraft carriers sat,
After the ebbing Flood, on Ararat;
And from her flight deck hopeful Noah flung
His feathered aviator. Bards have sung
Of how that flying, questing diplomat
Returned at last with happy tidings that
Are celebrated since in every tongue.

Millenniums have passed, and carriers now,
Steel-sinewed, engines pulsing without cease,
Furrow far wider waters; and from prow
Leveled and steadied, in a swarm release
Great fleets of tougher doves that will somehow,
Somewhere, some brighter day, reconquer—Peace!

Guess Who Dropped In?

Euclid—of all people!—descended from a dusty bookshelf the other night to console a friend of ours who had a toothache.

"But that's not unusual," the sufferer told us. "Euclid has been for years my favorite midnight dentist. There's nothing like a good tough problem in geometry to lure the mind's attention away from an offending molar. And for getting right into the heart of geometry, no writer equals Euclid. For a mild toothache I take him in translation, but when I've got the jumping kind that almost tears one's head apart, I tackle him in Greek to make it harder. Three hours will be plenty. After that you'll sleep like a kitten. Try it some time."

We would, and gladly, but—
Riming's more fun:
When wicked imps of pain go on the loose,
What boots the square of the hypotenuse?

How's That Again?

The Germans are by nature an honest, hospitable people, passionately fond of liberty, and very little versed in dissimulation and artifice. The Germans are brave, and when led by able generals, particularly by Italians, have often performed great achievements.—E. R. Ward [in a letter to the New Statesman and Nation of London, quoting a German writer whose book was published in 1776].

Paper Shortage Footnote.

"This check is bad," the banker whined,
"But I'll pay something on it, John.
It's worth, at any rate, I find,
The paper it is written on."

A Highland Park boy just entering service as an aviation cadet is figuring on the law of averages to bring him a reasonable number of happy landings, the idea being that he already has had at least a share of his normal expectancy of mishap. [A] For a few dollars he bought a ramshackle motorcycle—and it slid out from under him and burned. [B] In partnership with two friends he bought an ancient automobile for $10, fixed it up, made it run, only to have it sideswiped by a truck on its maiden expedition.

Slightly Personal.

A rose, Miss Winn, will serve, I think,
In lieu of lark or bobolink
Whose song, more eloquent than mine,
Might bring a gentle anodyne
To dull the pain from which you shrink.

Some better day we'll surely drink
A nectar, poured to goblet's brink—
But at the moment, more benign—
A rose, Miss Winn.

Yet roses red and roses pink
Are costly now, and so I think
I'll slightly alter my design
And send one that's not quite so fine,
And yet, tho made of printer's ink—
A rose, Miss Winn.

MUNDANE DISTRACTIONS OF A PROPHET or THE VICTORY TAX ELUCIDATED.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 29.—I now predict a great explosion in New York state on the morning of Feb. 10, caused by young saboteurs, around 24 years of age, expecting a death rate of around 302.

I also predict a conspiracy involving strike violence to effect an occultation of the popularity of Gov. Dewey.

I also predict a manifestation of that category, connected with a theory of earthquakes featuring Illinois in particular, on Wednesday, Feb. 16, which may involve explosions and, as I see it, a slight earthquake, death of a United States senator, and other manifestations.

However, I do admit that I have been slightly distracted by the necessity of learning all over again to make the new income tax form 1040. I am an accountant or auditor or something or was. But this form took valuable time. I cannot believe that it is entirely the product of the human mind. Same is far more complicated than the laws of nature. I felt fully justified in neglecting the extrados until I arrived at the solution of this mystery. The clew given in the last fireside chat makes the solution of the victory tax problem astonishingly simple. "Half an I" plainly refers to the $624 question; "the other I and a half" must be treated likewise so that 312 plus 936 gives $1,248 credit to be considered before entering the amendment passed after the last election. I checked this theory with the Arabian Almutez exactly as if it had been the forecast of an earthquake, entering with the ninth term of the quaballah and received spontaneous decumbency, entered decompression stage, paused for station identification, and saw Eros, chief signicator of the New Deal, not only in via combustia but on Right Ascension Maximum.

I know one man who emancipated his children because he despaired of complying with the demands of the victory tax problem. That is, he made adults out of them so that they would have to figure their own.

RAY C. WILLIAMS.

TURNING THE OTHER CHEEK.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Now that the story of the Japs' brutality has been released, isn't it about time for some overworked member of one of the alphabetical bureaus to come forth with the bright idea of removing the soldiers from the Jap internment camps, or to increase their food rations, or install some new means of entertainment? Better still, maybe the lend-lease crowd could purchase one of the Boston or St. Louis baseball franchises and install a big league team right in their camp so as to keep them amused. As long as we are going to continue to practice the method of turning the other cheek, why not do it in a big way?

WM. C. CROOKER.

DRAFTING JESSIE SUMNER.

Seaman, O., Jan. 28.—As an American citizen I am fervently hoping that the voters of Miss Jessie Sumner's district will use every legitimate means to persuade her to reconsider her decision to retire from congress, and to stand for reëlection to the house. This nation needs Miss Sumner in this time of crisis, and it will be nothing less than a tragedy for her to leave her post in Washington. J. C. STITZEL.

LABOR AND ANARCHY.

New Holland, Ill., Jan. 29.—There have been several letters in the Voice of the People lately discussing the so-called national service act. There is one angle, however, that I have not seen discussed. Secretary Stimson, in his plea before the senate committee, advocating this bill, referred repeatedly to "labor anarchy." His "plea" no doubt had the indorsement of Mr. Roosevelt.

Because perhaps one-half of one per cent of labor struck, or threatened to strike, Mr. Stimson has the audacity to brand all laboring men and women in the country as anarchists. According to his viewpoint, the only law abiding citizens are the millionaire playboys. All the rest are anarchists. If labor does not resent being called anarchists by a high official of the government, presumably with the approval of the President, then its case is hopeless.

D. F. HUGHES.

CONTRAST IN COMMAND.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Some say it is not safe to change horses in the middle of the stream. England did and got Churchill, who now in fact is commander in chief of all the allied forces overseas.

Mr. Roosevelt was commander in chief of our soldiers and sailors when they were slaughtered at Pearl Harbor, as he was when they were mutilated and slain at Bataan. The Pearl Harbor tragedy should have prompted the commander in chief to send to Gen. MacArthur more men and the materials of war which all America pleaded with him to do. But he preferred to oversupply England first, hence the horrors of Bataan! ESTHER MORGAN.

GUN TOSSING COPS.

Great Lakes, Ill., Feb. 1.—It seems a terrible disgrace to us, nearly a thousand Chicago policemen, who are serving in the uniform of our country, that a few imbeciles in the department are disgracing our splendid organization by their cowboy tactics.

These drunken, cowardly villains should be punished to the fullest extent of the law. Let us hope that the people of Chicago do not hold those cowardly assaults by a few rats against those who remain on duty every day, braving danger for the people of Chicago.

IS THIS THE RECORD?

Wauwatosa, Wis., Jan. 28.—I have not worn glasses for reading up to the time I wrote this note and I am reading your paper every day. I would like to know if you have heard of any one my age who has done this. I am 87 years old and will be 88 on Aug. 2.

AFL LASHES OUT AT BRIDGES AND CURRAN AS REDS

Stand for Labor Draft Is Termed Treachery.

BY PHILIP WARDEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Two CIO leaders, Harry Bridges and Joseph Curran, indorsers of the President's draft labor plan, were denounced today by an AFL spokesman for what he termed "one of the most despicable betrayals" of organized labor "in the staggering record of treachery perpetrated by the Communist party in America."

The charges were made in the American Federation of Labor weekly news service by Philip Pearl, AFL director of public relations and official spokesman. Writing in his signed column, "Facing the Facts," Pearl referred to Bridges and Curran as "Communist leaders" and said:

"For the events of the last few weeks have proved even to the most broadminded that several CIO unions are infested with a type of verminous leadership that is dangerous to the health and safety of the workers of America.

"Betray Basic Freedoms."

"Without conscience, without scruple, without the least vestige of principle, these so-called union leaders have betrayed the basic freedoms of the American labor movement in a major crisis.

"This crisis was precipitated by the proposal for a national service act, an ill-considered measure which, if enacted, would throw the nation's amazingly successful production program into confusion, disrupt the war effort, and deprive American workers of the freedom and independence that makes them superior to the enslaved workers of the axis."

Pearl said that William Green, president of the AFL, and Philip Murray, president of the CIO, did not hesitate to denounce the draft labor proposal. A "united front" was presented on this issue until the "Communist lice of the CIO spoke up," Pearl said.

Success as Draft Evader.

"First we heard from the illustrious Joe Curran of the National Maritime union, who has been hailed far and wide as one of the great heroes in this war because of his successful fight to evade the draft. Mr. Curran announced that the patriotic thing for labor to do was to consent to enslave itself under the terms of the national service act.

"This might have been considered merely an individual aberration, but then we heard from Harry Bridges, the supremely loyal leader of the CIO longshoremen's union, who also has assumed heroic proportions in American life for his long and successful fight to evade deportation. Mr. Bridges also indorsed the draft labor law."

Compares with Red Slavery.

Pearl compared the President's draft labor proposal with Russian labor conscription during the first five year plan. He said the Russian workers reportedly were executed for failing to meet production schedules.

"Such conditions may be acceptable to the people of Russia and the so-called Russian trade union movement," he said, "but we can do without them here in America.

"And the CIO can do without the counterparts of Russian trade unions. Unless it rids itself of the Currans and the Bridges, they will stab the CIO in the back at every opportunity. And until the CIO succeeds in delousing these unions, there is little hope of a united labor movement in America."

VAIN HYDE PARK TOURS IN SEARCH OF GAMING TOLD

Casimir Cwiklinski, an assistant state's attorney, told the city civil service commission yesterday he toured the Hyde Park police district with two policemen from the state's attorney's office on numerous occasions during 1942 and 1943 without finding any gambling houses running. He was called as a witness in support of charges against Capt. Walter F. Healy, former police commander of that district.

The prosecutor said he, with Detectives James Donnelly and Arthur Walsh, visited suspected gambling places at the following addresses: 830 East 43d street, 838 East 43d street, 1643 East 53d street, 1372 East 55th street, 1414½ East 55th street, 1408 East 55th street, 1516 East 55th street, and 3979 Cottage Grove avenue.

When he testified to finding the premises at 1414½ East 55th street closed, Civil Service Commissioner James B. Cashin asked him if he knew who closed the gambling house. Atty. Michael F. Ryan for Healy objected and said in due time he would show that Capt. Healy and his men closed the place.

Asst. Corporation Counsel Earle Downes said Ryan wouldn't be able to show any such action. The hearing will be resumed today and is expected to proceed during all of next week.

Mrs. T. B. writes: "My husband is a private in the marine corps. He is now on the west coast and does not expect to be in this country very much longer. I have returned to the home of my parents in Michigan and am expecting a child some time this summer. Could you tell me if free maternity care is available in this state, and where to apply?"

ANSWER: The program providing free maternity and infant care for wives of service men in the four lowest pay grades went into effect in Michigan last June. It is being administered by the bureau of maternal and child health of the Michigan department of health at Lansing. Complete maternity care is provided, and eligible women may obtain application blanks from their physicians or the Red Cross.

Mrs. K. H. writes: "I have been told that the family allowance which I have received since my husband entered the service a year ago is entirely tax free and need not be declared on my income tax. My husband is overseas. Can you advise me?"

ANSWER: Your husband's contribution toward your family allowance is considered a part of his taxable income. The remaining amount which is contributed by the government is not taxable. Since your husband is overseas, he does not need to file a return until after the war, or after his return to the United States. You may also postpone filing, unless you have an income of your own of $1,200 or more. Men in the service do not have to include in their incomes or pay tax on the first $1,500 of their service pay.

Mrs. G. H. inquires: "Some time ago my husband was promoted to the rank of staff sergeant in the army. At that time, the family allowance was discontinued, and he applied for and received a quarters allowance. I understand that under the new rulings I may continue to receive that allowance but he must allot the same amount to me. He was receiving $37.50. Does that mean that he must send me $75 a month?"

ANSWER: No. Service men who receive a monetary allowance in lieu of quarters for dependents may continue that allowance only if they authorize a class "E" allotment of pay on behalf of their dependents, in an amount at least equal to the allowance they receive. The quarters allowance is paid directly to the soldier, but he, in turn, must allot that amount of money to his dependents. Allotment of pay checks will go directly to the dependent. In other words, if your husband has been receiving $37.50 a month as a quarters allowance, he must send you at least that amount to continue receiving it.

We have a bulletin which explains this ruling and gives complete information on the family allowance and voluntary allotments of pay, in general. Interested readers may obtain it by sending in a stamped addressed envelope.

VOTE TO INDICT LOOP JEWELER AS LOOT BUYER

Acted in Good Faith, Says Lebolt.

Jack Lebolt of Lebolt & Co., jewelers at 33 North State street, and three other merchants were reported named in true bills yesterday by the county grand jury on charges of receiving stolen property. The reported true bills were the result of the roundup of a gang of juvenile thieves by Fillmore police.

Lebolt admitted that he purchased two rings and a watch from Leo Weintraub, 22 years old, of 3618 13th street, who was named on five counts charging burglary and larcency. The jeweler denied, however, that his company had knowingly purchased stolen goods.

$225 Paid for Two Rings.

Lebolt cited the fact that Weintraub was paid by check as evidence of the company's precaution against dealing with thieves. Weintraub, he said, was paid $175 for one diamond ring, $50 for another, and $20 for a watch. The true bill, it was understood, listed only the purchase of the rings.

Capt. Thomas Alcock of the Fillmore station said Weintraub, Irving Penofsky of 1320 South Harding avenue, and Irving Lasky, a juvenile, were charged with stealing the rings and a watch and $50 from the home of Irving Drogan at 1344 Komensky avenue Jan. 14. One ring was insured for $1,200, the other of lesser value.

The others named in true bills as receivers are Henry Singer, 24, of 4802 Bernard street, a furrier at 1223 South Halsted street; Ben Feinstein, 46, of 6330 North Oakley avenue, a jeweler at 808 Maxwell street, and Alfred Paull, 30, of 1630 Lunt avenue, a furrier at 662 Maxwell.

Two More Face Action.

Weintraub was charged by Alcock with being the leader of a gang of nine juveniles. He said he had confessed about 30 robberies. He had acquired the name Boomtown among his associates because of his recent affluence, Alcock said. Penofsky was indicted on two robbery counts.

It was understood grand jury action against two other merchants accused by Alcock of handling foods stolen by the gang is pending. Some of the juveniles already have been sentenced.

$49,500,000 CUT FROM COUNTY'S TAXABLE REALTY

County Assessor John S. Clark announced yesterday that the Cook county real estate assessment roll for 1943 taxes would total $4,605,344,181, about 49½ million dollars less than in 1942.

The personal property assessments for 1943, before adjustment by the board of tax appeals, totaled $1,193,901,757, and the grand total of all property assessed by Clark was $5,799,245,938. All Cook county assessments for tax making purposes will be made at 100 per cent of value, in contrast with previous years when taxes were levied on 37 per cent of full value.

Chicago real estate, the figures show, is worth some 79 millions less than the assessment a year ago. Particularly drastic was the cut in valuation in the loop and the district south to Roosevelt road, which were lowered by more than 87½ millions.

North Side Areas Reduced.

Hyde Park and the Town of Lake, on the south side, were raised in value while two north side areas, Rogers Park and Lake View, were reduced sharply. The country town realty assessments, previously announced, showed an increase in value of 29 millions.

"Careful studies and affidavits by property owners showed that south of Van Buren street, west of Wells street, and north of an alley between Randolph and Lake street there has been in recent years a large loss of value," Clark said.

"Also the city's purchases, buying property for a Congress street highway and by acquiring title, has taken 2½ millions off the rolls. We won't have the Stevens hotel this year—a 6 million assessment—because the government owned it thru nearly all of 1943. It will be back on for 1944 taxes.

"In Rogers Park and Lake View land values have deteriorated and many apartment sites had to be revalued in the light of present conditions.

Income Bigger Factor.

"Income has been given much more weight and construction cost less. Generally speaking, owners of single family homes and small apartment buildings will find their assessments lowered, while multistory buildings and commercial structures will be increased.

"A table showing the 1942 and 1943 realty assessments in the city and the country towns follows:

| | 1942 | 1943 |
|---|---|---|
| Hyde Park... | $ 535,499,556 | $ 550,191,093 |
| Jefferson ..... | 503,185,551 | 483,067,981 |
| Lake ......... | 509,856,824 | 527,306,909 |
| Lake View... | 373,273,340 | 363,440,543 |
| North ......... | 261,243,349 | 260,642,825 |
| Rogers Park.. | 110,838,735 | 101,147,338 |
| South [ex. loop].. | 129,214,037 | 136,522,317 |
| South [loop]. | 558,844,916 | 471,195,229 |
| West ......... | 678,335,120 | 687,767,327 |
| City total.... | $3,660,291,428 | 3,581,281,562 |
| Country total. | 994,690,228 | 1,024,062,619 |
| Grand total.. | $4,654,981,656 | 4,605,344,181 |

NOT GUILTY PLEA TO BE ENTERED BY MRS. DILLING

Elizabeth Dilling, Chicago authoress and lecturer, left for Washington, D. C., yesterday to plead not guilty next Monday on a charge of plotting with 29 others to overthrow the government and set up a Nazi regime.

At the same time her attorneys, Floyd Lanham of Chicago and Bellmore Lessard of Portland, Ore., will argue a demurrer attacking her indictment as vague, insufficient, and unprovable. Thru this move she hopes to have the charge against her dismissed.

Should the demurrer be sustained, the case would end as far as she is concerned, she said. Otherwise she will have to go to trial in April.

The indictment was voted by a grand jury on which, it was charged, a number of New Deal pay rollers sat. It was indicated the indictment may be attacked on that ground.

BROWN U. HEAD WARNS AGAINST SCHOOL SUBSIDY

Henry M. Wriston, president of Brown university, Providence, R. I., warned against federal subsidies that bring government control of education, in a speech last night before the Chicago alumni club of the university at 105 West Madison street.

He said the main hope for the continuance of academic freedom after the war lies in the privately endowed universities and colleges, which are independent of government subsidies. Even the state universities' academic freedom depends on the endowed schools, he said.

Wriston ridiculed government red tape, asserting that school men want to avoid dealing with Washington after the war because the federal bookkeeping system is so bad.

Wriston said the speedup program now in force in universities is like other war time sacrifices—necessary for the emergency—but he expressed opposition to a continuance of the speedup after the war.

Wriston said the speedup system, if continued after the war, would flood the labor market.

REPORT $110,000 IN CASH, JEWELS STOLEN IN HOME

Providence, R. I., Feb. 4 [Friday]—(AP).—Theft of approximately $110,000 in cash and jewelry was reported to Providence police last night by Mrs. Ellie C. Miller, according to Chief of Police James J. Cusick.

Cusick said Mrs. Miller told him the loot was taken from a steel cabinet in the dining room of her home and included $75,000 in cash and $35,000 in jewelry.

Mrs. Miller is the widow of John M. Miller. They were sole owners of the Progressive Ring company, a jewelry manufacturer.

VARIOUS LOSSES CAN BE CHARGED AGAINST INCOME

Fire, Casualty and Storm Damages Deductible.

(This is the fifteenth of a series of articles on the individual income tax.)

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Property losses from fire, storms, shipwreck, accidents, and other casualty, or from theft, are deductible from income subject to normal tax and surtax, but not from income subject to the victory tax.

No limit is placed on the amount of loss that may be deducted, but there are certain restrictions as to the method of measuring the loss, and as to circumstances surrounding the loss.

A loss which results from a wilful act or from negligence of the taxpayer is not deductible. Thus, damage caused to the taxpayer's automobile in an accident would not be deductible if he was driving while intoxicated. Mere faulty driving, however, would not be considered negligence.

In claims based on the loss of property by theft or burglary it must be established that the property actually was stolen. No deduction is permitted when the taxpayer "loses" something, such as a wallet or a ring.

Deductible Same Year.

A loss from theft or casualty is deductible only in the year the loss was sustained, even tho not discovered until a later year. The deduction is allowed only to the owner of the property.

If the property involved was insured, the taxpayer must, of course, take into account the amount recovered thru insurance in determining the net loss.

The amount of loss sustained, as a general rule, is the difference between the value immediately before and after the casualty. In the case of a wrecked automobile, the loss is the difference between the market value before the accident and the market or salvage value afterward.

Loss is not always measured by the value of the specific item damaged or destroyed. As an illustration the treasury department gives the following example: "In the case of trees or ornamental shrubbery destroyed by storm, the measure of the loss is the value of the property of which they were a part, that is, the reduction in the value of the property arising from the casualty. This may or may not be the same as the value of the particular trees or shrubs destroyed."

Sentiment Doesn't Count.

Sentimental values do not count. This means, in general, that there must be a determinable cost or market value for the property if a loss deduction is to be allowed.

Altho personal losses from casualty or theft are not deductible in computing the victory tax, losses of this type are deductible, for victory tax purposes, if incurred in [1] a trade or business, [2] in the production or collection of income, [3] in the management, conservation, or maintenance of property held for the production of taxable income.

The amount of casualty or property loss incurred in a trade or business would be entered in schedule C [2] on form 1040 and used in determining the net profit or loss shown in item 8. Losses of a personal nature would be entered as item 14 in the list of deductions.

[Tomorrow's article will be on expense deductions allowed in figuring the amount of income received from wages, salary, and other compensation for personal services.]

GUILBERT, NOTED FRENCH SINGER, IS DEAD AT 79

LONDON, Feb. 4 [Friday]—(AP).—Yvette Guilbert, 79 years old, a French singer and actress, died yesterday at Aix-la-Provience, the Vichy radio said today.

From a Parisian shopgirl, Miss Guilbert rose to become the toasted entertainer of royalty as a singer and imitator. She first toured the United States successfully in 1895-'96 and made numerous subsequent appearances on American stages.

She was also known for her frequent spats with Sarah Bernhardt and as a friend of Eleanora Duse. As an interpreter of French folklore she was made a chevalier of the French Legion of Honor.

Neighbor Fires on Pair After Doctor Is Held Up

Two bandits who robbed Dr. Richard H. Lawlor, 9243 South Bell avenue, of $200, a wrist watch, and his automobile at the rear of his home last night escaped in a hail of bullets fired by Dr. Lawlor's neighbor, Fred Walter, 9242 South Leavitt street. Walter, whose home adjoins that of Dr. Lawlor on the rear, heard a commotion and ran out with a revolver. He emptied the gun at the car, as the bandits drove off. Dr. Lawlor reported the holdup to police.

AUTOIST KILLED, 4 SAILORS AND 2 WOMEN INJURED

Crash Occurs in Fog Near Waukegan.

An automobile crashed into the side of a freight train early yesterday, causing the death of the driver and injuries to four navy hospital apprentices and two young women. The accident occurred during a heavy fog two miles west of Waukegan, at the Belvidere street crossing over the North Western road.

Charles L. Spoo, 39 years old, 528 Cummings avenue, Waukegan, was the man killed. Charles E. Langston, 18, one of the navy men, was injured critically.

Two Pennsylvania Women Hurt.

The other injured sailors were Houston Haywood, 20, of Covington, Ky.; Richard M. Kremm, 18, of Columbus, O., and Herbert J. Robb, 17, of Brunswick, O. The women victims were Rosella Rodicella, 18, of Meadville, Pa., and Ruth Bargar, 19, of Franklin, Pa., both living recently in the Commercial hotel in Waukegan.

Vincent Vicari, 6 years old, 2722 Congress street, died in County hospital of injuries he received when, according to police, he ran into the side of a Railway Express company truck at Van Buren street and Campbell avenue. The truck was driven by John Ferrin, 45, of 7735 Haskins avenue.

Killed as Auto Hits Street Car.

Martin O'Leary, 42, of 2804 South Union avenue, died in People's hospital an hour after his automobile skidded against a street car at Halsted and 27th streets.

Injuries suffered Jan. 29 when he was struck by an automobile at Fillmore street and Kedzie avenue caused the death of Myles Perz, 24, of 2425 South Trumbull avenue, a buffer. He died in Mount Sinai hospital. The driver was Gerald Horwitz, 18, of 3502 Van Buren street.

Two Winnetka Churches Plan Joint Parley

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

"'When I step inside a church I enter the land of make-believe.' More than one man has said that in days gone by, and with some reason. But today the churches are facing the world and their own approach to it is far more realistic."

Thus opened an announcement by Dr. Samuel Harkness of the Winnetka Congregational church, which told of a conference Sunday, thru Tuesday, to be held jointly by his congregation and that of Christ Episcopal church of Winnetka, devoted to "A New Approach to Christian Fellowship in the Post-War World." The announcement contained leadership names known thruout the world of Protestanism.

Future British imperialism in Singapore, Burma, India, and Hongkong will be discussed at the conference in relation to its effects on missionary effort in those areas. This topic comes under the announced heading of "What Are We Going to Do About Foreign Missions?" Related to this general topic is the question of desirable relations with governments in mission areas. The question also will be raised as to the possibility of reinstatement of missions in Japan.

Other sensitive nerve points in the thinking of Christian leadership to be touched on are the effects of new assertions of racial dignity, autonomy of missions churches, and the long submerged hot spot question, "What right have we to substitute Christianity for any other religion?"

At simultaneous services in the two churches Sunday morning, Dr. Newton Chiang, president of Nanking [China] Theological seminary, will speak at Christ church and Dr. Henry Smith Leiper of New York, secretary of the World Council of Churches, at the Congregational church. At night a youth mass meeting at the latter church will feature an address by Ruth I. Seabury of Boston, Mass., a secretary of the American board of foreign missions [Congregational]. Dr. Chiang and Dr. Leiper also will speak Monday night at the Congregational church.

Ruth Ure, former secretary of the National Christian Council of India, will address a women's meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Congregational church. The closing session will be a panel discussion Tuesday night at Christ church parish house, led by missions leaders from India, Africa, Burma, Borneo, and China.

Religious News Notes .... By the Rev. John Evans

Among highlights of the annual meetings of the International Council of Religious Education, beginning Monday at the Stevens hotel, will be a fellowship luncheon Tuesday noon, when the Russell Colgate distinguished service citation will be awarded for the first time. It will go to J. L. Kraft, Chicago manufacturer, who has been acting president of the council since last May and for many years its treasurer. Mr. Kraft was elected overwhelmingly by the award's thousand electors as the country's most distinguished Protestant leader in the field of Christian education. Another highlight in the complex setup of meetings will be Dr. Luther A. Weigle's report on the new American Standard version of the Bible, the first revision since 1901. . . . The Madonna Della Strada Women's sodality will attend its quarterly mass at the University college, 28 North Franklin street, at 9:30 a. m. Sunday. The Rev. Thomas A. Egan, S. J., will speak on the parable of publican and pharisee.

Weekday church schools thruout Chicago have 3,100 public school pupils enrolled. About 50 local churches are used for the studies, with 40 denominations and 370 churches represented in the enrollment. This was reported by Thomas H. West, chairman of the department of education of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago. . . . Dr. Robert Taylor, secretary of the Chicago Bible society, is receiving reservations for the society's annual dinner next Friday night at 32 West Randolph street. . . . The 20th anniversary of the Chicago board of Jewish education will be observed Sunday night at dinner at the Standard club. Special honors will be tendered to the memory of the first president of the board, James Davis, and to Louis M. Cahn, second president who has served the board continuously thruout its existence. Rabbi James G. Heller, Cincinnati, O., and Prof. Richard McKeon and Prof. Louis Goettschalk of the University of Chicago will be principal speakers. Prof. Goettschalk is present president of the board. A panel discussion will be held before the dinner.

The Chicago committee on war services of the Congregational church will hold a conference Sunday afternoon and night at First Congregational church, Washington boulevard and Ashland avenue. Col. Harry W. Taylor, state occupational adviser for selective service, and Lt. William S. Bishop, in charge of reemployment committeemen of selective service, will discuss what the church can do and what is being done for returning service men. . . . Prof. Wilhelm Pauck of Chicago Theological seminary, Dr. Henry Smith Leiper of New York, secretary of the World Council of Churches, and Dr. Frederick K. Stamm, pastor of First Congregational church, also are on the conference program. . . . The Rev. William C. Burhop, Lutheran student pastor at the University of Wisconsin, will be the 60th anniversary preparation preacher Sunday morning at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. Luke, Belmont and Greenview avenues. First Sundays of each month until October are devoted to the preparation period. . . . The Rev. H. Conrad Hoyer, head of American missions of the National Lutheran council, will be a principal speaker at the biennial meeting of the Lutheran brotherhood of the eastern district, meeting in Milwaukee tomorrow and Sunday. . . . Three gold stars will be added to the service flag of Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 63d street and Marshfield avenue, Sunday night. . . . "Christian Science: the Revelation of Christ" will be the subject of a lecture by William G. Kilpatrick, C. S. B., Detroit, this noon at 32 West Randolph street.

A spiritual sponsor for each person in military service has been named at St. Peter's Episcopal church, 521 Belmont avenue, who will represent them at the corporate communion at 11 a. m. Sunday. The Rev. R. Everett Carr, rector, will describe the service in personal letters to the service men and women. . . . Viewpoints of a minister, a physician, and a service man in relation to "An Ideal Marriage in Time of War" will be outlined during the next three Sunday nights at the University of Life, First Baptist church, Oak Park. . . . Dr. Howard Thurman of Howard university, Washington, D. C., will be the Rockefeller Memorial chapel preacher, University of Chicago, Sunday morning.

Catholic Women's Club.

Mrs. E. L. Gramlich will open her home at 4215 North Sheridan road at 1:30 p. m. Monday, Feb. 14, to members of the Buena Park Catholic Women's club. Mrs. George J. Aste will preside at the business session.

Million Is Goal in 'Oklahoma!' Bond Benefit

BY JUDITH CASS.

ODD rationing problems: that of the women's division of the war finance committee of Chicago and Cook county, which will allow only four tickets for each person to its benefit performance of "Oklahoma!" the afternoon of Monday, Feb. 14, at the Erlanger theater. The division, headed by Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, has set a goal of $1,000,000 in war bonds from this performance, by sale of the 1,300 seats in the house.

With tickets at a premium for this popular musical, the women in charge of the benefit expect a rush of business in room 400 at 105 West Adams street, the only place where seats may be obtained for this special performance. Bonds purchased during the 4th war loan drive must be presented in exchange for tickets, which are priced at from $5,000 down to $25.

Today's Events.

So many interesting events are on today's calendar that this Friday seems like pre-war days. First there is the Emerson Settlement house benefit tea-dance at the Ambassador East from 5 to 7 p. m., when a large group of young persons will meet to make merry and raise money for the settlement's work.

The Arts club will be crowded from 4 to 6 p. m. for the opening of an exhibition of paintings, drawings, and architecture by Le Corbusier [Charles-Edouard Jeanneret], which was assembled and installed by Carl O. Schniewind. From 4 until 7 p. m. members of the Chicago chapter of France Forever and other interested persons will gather at the Roullier Art galleries for a preview of an exhibition of self-portraits by Chicago artists.

At 12:15 p. m. in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House, members of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations will meet for luncheon and to hear Karl Brandt, economist of the Food Research Institute of Stanford university, speak on "Feeding the World." From there, many will hurry to Orchestra hall for the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert, before going on to the late afternoon's events.

Mrs. Edward V. Platt is chairman of the Emerson house tea-dance, at which a sable scarf will be the grand door prize. Admission of $5 per couple includes tea, which will be served at 4:30. A number of pretty young women will raise additional funds thru the sale of individually styled corsages.

Mrs. Winterbotham Badger is decorating the tea table for the Arts club. Mrs. Arthur G. Cable is hostess. Other teas following the symphony today will be given at the English Speaking union, where Mrs. Harry Nott will be hostess, and at the Cordon, where an exhibition of photography by club members and of textiles by Elsa Ulbright will open simultaneously.

Some of the Chicago artists who will see themselves at the France Forever party are Arthur Heun, Francis Chapin, Jean Crawford Adams, Edgar Miller, John W. Root, Alfred P. Shaw, Dudley Crafts Watson, Maude Phelps Hutchins, and Rainey Bennett. Mrs. Walter Brewster, president of the chapter, will receive, assisted by Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Paul Magnuson, Mrs. Philip Miller, Mrs. John U. Nef, Mrs. Daniel Catton Rich, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, and Mrs. John Wentworth. Admission to the preview is $2, which includes tea.

On the Calendar.

The Society for Contemporary American Art has planned an interesting program for its annual meeting at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday in Gallery 52 of the Art institute of Chicago. Following the election of officers,

White Collar GIRL

Typewriter Drawing.

Here at our sea-washed sunset gates shall stand
A mighty woman with a torch . . .

Perhaps Emma Lazarus, who wrote the foregoing words which have been inscribed on the base of the Statue of Liberty, might alter them thus today:

Cries she with silent lips:
"Buy bonds!
Buy bonds!
Buy bonds!"

MILDRED D. KRUEGER.

Relaxation?

Why is it when the boss is gone
And you have time to spare—
To call some friends or write a note—
A day without a care—

That he's been planning far ahead
And thinking, too, of you—
Instead of having lots of rest
There's twice as much to do?

ELSIE M. FARR.

This Settles It.

Tho the matter probably is of too little consequence to pursue further, it may be pertinent to mention that, on the authority of the Oxford English dictionary, a virgule is "a thin sloping or upright line occurring in medieval MSS. as a mark for the caesura or as a punctuation mark [frequently with the same value as the modern comma]."

Indeed, virgule is the contemporary French word for comma. The solidus, far from being something peculiar to the language of mathematicians, was the name, originally, of a Roman coin and at one time was used as an alternative term for shilling. The typewriter character called a solidus is defined by the Oxford English dictionary as "a sloping line used to separate shillings from pence, as 12/6; a shilling mark; used also in writing fractions and for other separations of figures and letters. It presumably derives from the script 'long s' once used to abbreviate 'shillings.'"

JOHN G. CURTIS.

Dis and Data.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company not long ago received in the mail a candy box containing an operator's receiver and headband of a design not in use for years. Mailed from an eastern state, a note explained that the sender had taken it in 1920 and now found it weighing heavily on a troubled conscience. . . . Lil Oswald reports "There's a gal in our office who shirks overtime." . . . How many people know that a woman edits the magazine Sales Management? She is Ruth Hahn, a University of Illinois graduate. . . . The Goodyear Aircraft corporation at Akron feeds 30,000 people every day in the week and at all hours. It's one of the nation's largest cafeterias, using approximately 160,000 ration points for meat per week. . . . A reader complains that data is pronounced "dayta" but my dictionary gives both long and short a. Besides, can't a columnist have a little fun?

Arche Club Will Meet at Art Institute Today

The Arché club will meet at 11 a. m. today at the Art institute to view the winter exhibits there. Following luncheon at the institute, the art tour will be continued at 2 p. m. under the direction of Miss Helen Parker. The club's Red Cross unit will work from 10 a. m. until 3 p. m. Monday, with Mrs. Joseph M. Allen and Mrs. Charles C. Clark in charge.

Weskits of Old Win Favor with Girls of Today

BY REA SEEGER.

Weskits, those clever feminized versions of the masculine waistcoats of bygone days, are being gleefully grabbed for by the girls for wear with their separate jackets and skirts. You'll find them in swank tweed mixtures, checks, plaids, and stripes, to wear with sweater slipover or with thin crepe shirt and a tailored skirt and jacket as a perfect office uniform or something warm and woolly for winter spectator sports clothes.

There are dazzling white pique affairs complete with tailored details, slit-pockets, buttonholes, and pointed ends to extend down over a skirt belt. They'll do white magic for sleek dark suits of navy blue, brown, or black and the giddy plaids and checks. Gleaming satin honeys come in beige, ivory white, and high colors and there are enough red shades to satisfy any yen for brilliance. All of them are made just like the waistcoats or weskits of long ago, with wide arm holes, super-fitted, deep, narrow vee necklines, and the details of real pockets.

New, very early spring veilings also are here—all the very mistlike meshes in gay, lilting colors and plenty of neutrals like dove gray, pale ivory, beige, and lime green. Snow flake specials include the fine meshes with tiny dots of contrasting color, the most sensational are traffic red with spots of vivid green. Bigger chenille dots, the size of tapioca, and larger dots, like popcorn, feature all kinds of interesting and effective color contrasts, from white and black to French pink on navy blue.

Interest High in Tribune's Style Contest

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The 1944 American Fashion contest bids fair to be the most important of far-reaching competitions which have been conducted by THE TRIBUNE to promote America as the leader of the fashion world. This prediction was made yesterday by Mrs. Grace Pickering, prominent Chicago fashion expert and guiding spirit behind all of THE TRIBUNE'S fashion competitions.

Mrs. Pickering based her opinion on the number of entry blanks mailed upon request to prospective contestants since the contest opened Jan. 1 and upon the comprehensive scope of the present competition.

"We have received more requests for entry blanks and contest rules so far for this American Fashions competition than ever before in a similar period," she said. "I believe the increased interest this year is due to many factors. First, we are granting contestants more time to execute their sketches. They are being given from January to May. Second, we are offering larger cash awards than last year and, third, we have enhanced the contest to include styles for both the spring and summer seasons. Formerly our designs concentrated on the fall and winter markets."

Amateur and professional designers, both of whom are eligible to enter, have been given a wider scope for their talents in the present contest. They may design any number of sketches for any number of outer garments to be worn by women during the fall and winter of 1944 or the spring and summer of 1945. The costumes may look to war or peace for their inspiration, as all good styling must have something of the essence of permanency.

Cash prizes totaling $5,000 will be awarded for the finest of the sketches, the first three grand prizes being $2,000, $1,000, and $500, respectively. Prizes of $50 each will be granted to winners of 30 sketches selected as the best from among all entries by a committee of fashion experts. These sketches will be made up into exclusive models at the expense of THE TRIBUNE and will be modeled at a colorful fashion show to be held some time in autumn. The grand prizes will be selected by the public from the finished costumes.

Proof of the national interest in the competition comes to Tribune Tower in the mailbag daily. Each day brings hundreds of requests for entry blanks from towns thruout the country. The blanks have been distributed upon request to towns and cities in 16 states, from coast to coast, and from the gulf to the Canadian border.

Copies of contest rules and the entry blanks will continue to be mailed upon request. Application should be made to "American Fashions, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, Ill."

LINCOLN DISPLAY TO START TODAY IN W-G-N LOBBY

Painting, Manuscript Will Be Shown.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

An illuminated manuscript of the Gettysburg address and a portrait of Lincoln will be placed in W-G-N's lobby today for a two week display, which covers Lincoln's birthday on Feb. 12. The manuscript and painting are the work of Edward Gentile of Oak Park, an illustrator, whose specialty is painting manuscripts in water colors.

While viewing the manuscript the other day, Francis Marion Smith, 91 years old, recalled several visits by Lincoln to his father's farm near Lincoln, Ill. Smith said that Lincoln was introduced by a friend as "a promising young lawyer from Springfield."

"I was just a little fellow then," Smith, who lives at 2044 Burling street, recalled. "Lincoln liked kids and spoke to me several times."

W-G-N-Mutual each Sunday at 3:30 p. m. broadcast "Abe Lincoln's Story," with McKay Morris as Lincoln. The manuscript on display is one of several patriotic works by Gentile that have been exhibited in connection with war bond drives.

Bond salesmen: Kate Smith on Tuesday interrupted every program on CBS for 18 hours to issue war bond appeals. Yesterday the network announced that her persuasiveness had resulted in the sale of more than $100,000,000 worth of bonds. . . . Eddie Cantor, a day or two earlier, brought in $37,000,000 thru KPO-NBC in San Francisco. He stuck with the mike 24 hours. He was given a rubdown by a masseur at the end of his 21st hour.

Reports that Joel Kupperman, 7 year old Quiz Kid mathematics specialist and sports fan, got lost during the paper salvage campaign are groundless. Altho he was missing for hours he was found eventually sitting on a curb reading old sports pages from papers he had collected.

How did the term "Nazi" originate? Konrad Heiden, author of "Der Fuehrer" and former Austrian newspaper man, gave the answer to Commentator Mary Margaret McBride the other day. He said the word was coined from "Naso," an abbreviation for National Socialist party. This later became Nazi, an expression of derision. The literal translation, he said, is "a dope."

The Solid Side Solves a Few More Problems

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Here are a few helpful hints on the "who does what and when" angles of dating; questions sent in by fellows and girls who are checking "on the beam" high school etiquet. If you have any questions send them in—we'll try to find the answers.

Q.—"Should a girl ask a boy in after a date if her parents are not at home? The parents have just met the boy earlier in the evening and don't know what kind of a boy he is."

A.—Come again—what's this story, morning glory, that the parents "don't know what kind of a boy he is"! He must be a fine fellow, otherwise, being the smooth chick you are, you wouldn't have made the date at all, would you? But remember that a good date ends on the front steps—and [especially] if your parents aren't home, say good night there. You've been out for the evening and had fun, so thank him for the good time and call it a day. After all, you could use a little duty sleep.

Q.—"What do you think of a girl who refuses one boy to go with another, to such an affair as a school dance? The boy she refuses has asked her first, but the other she likes much better."

A.—Any girl who breaks a date with one boy to go out with another, especially to a school dance, is a goon gal, strictly from hunger. But if a girl refuses a date with a boy simply because she does not care to go out with him—that is, of course, her privilege. Fellows are never forced to ask certain girls for dates—and neither are girls forced, by convention, to accept dates with boys just because they are asked. Works both ways.

Q.—I have an English teacher whom I like very much and because her birthday is next month I would like to give her a present. Would it be all right to make the gift a book? One I know she would like to own? However, I don't want the rest of the class to think I'm apple-shining.

A.—Your teacher will appreciate your thoughtfulness and will certainly appreciate the book. Why not get some of your friends, fellows and girls in the class, to give the present with you? Undoubtedly some of them would like to remember her birthday, too, but hadn't thought of it. Your teacher should like the class spirit behind such a gift. And no question of "apple-shining" will come up.

INSTALMENT XXIII.
TERMS OF WILL.

Frank went on doggedly.

"I think we're entitled to know as much as you do. I'm not asking how you know."

Mark said, "That's offensive, Frank." Then, in a curiously abstracted voice, "He gave me a draft. I can't remember everything. Phyllida gets five thousand—he was very fond of her. Dicky gets 10 and the Crossley shares. Aunt Clara's diamonds are to be divided between Dicky and myself—two-thirds to me and a third to him. Albert gets a thousand pounds of legacy duty. You and Brenda get two thousand each as a mark of affection. He said he'd settled money on both of you when you came of age. That's all I can remember offhand."

"Who gets the rest?"

"I do. I'm the residuary legatee."

"You get the house?"

"Yes. You see why the police are going to suspect me. Let's get back to the question of Miss Silver. She's been extraordinarily successful in other cases. She's easy to get on with—nothing aggressive about her. I'm asking you all to make things as easy for her as possible."

Nobody said anything.

When the silence had lasted long enough to make it clear that nobody was going to break it, he turned and went out of the room, almost running into Albert upon the threshold. A collision having been narrowly avoided, Albert advanced and approached Miss Paradine.

"Mr. Moffat is below. He asked whether you would see him."

Grace Paradine waited for Robert Moffat. She had moved nearer to the fire, and stood there facing the door thru which he would come. She had not been alone in a room with him for 30 years—not since the brief bitter interview in which she told him that she knew about Carrie Lintott, and gave him back his ring. Across the gap of years it still pleased her to remember that it was he who had wept, not she. It was just a month before the day which had been set for their marriage. Her wedding dress hung, covered with a sheet, in the room which was Phyllida's now. Her wreath and veil reposed in the top long drawer of the tallboy. But it was Robert Moffat who contributed all the emotion to that interview. He had begged, implored, protested.

You cannot live in the same place and never meet. Robert Moffat's father was a partner in the Paradine-Moffat works. In due course Robert succeeded him. They were bound to meet, but she never ceased to remember that she had had him on his knees to her. When he married, she paid a formal call upon the bride, leaving her father's cards. Mrs. Moffat, a pleasant rosy little person, smiled and dimpled, and made herself very agreeable. Meetings between the two households were few and formal. Never till this moment had there been any approach to a personal relationship.

The door opened and he came in—a big bluff man, fresh colored and hearty. He came up to her with an outstretched hand. He was both shocked and horrified, but he was plainly nervous too. Even a murder in the family didn't prevent him from thinking how formidable Grace Paradine looked, and what an escape he had had. Extraordinary to think that he had once been so madly in love with her. Something in him chuckled. He'd been much better off with his comfortable Bessie. Kind, that's what she was—comfortable and kind. A woman ought to be kind.

Miss Paradine ignored the outstretched hand. To his "This is a terrible thing!" she replied that it was very good of him to have come. He thought how impassive she was, how controlled. He would have thought the better of her if she had broken down.

"It's been a horrible shock. If there is anything that we can do. . . . It's a terrible break-up for you, Grace. I can't think what it's going to be like without him—I can't realize it at all—he has always been there. And it's worse for you—I don't know what to say about it. I hope you've got Phyllida here—she'll be a comfort. Elliot's with you, too, isn't he? James rang me up last night and said he was staying. Dreadful thing for young people to separate like that. James felt it, I know—wanted to see it made up. Hope he had the satisfaction of knowing he'd brought them together again. Never could understand what went wrong myself. She's a charming girl."

"Yes, I have got Phyllida."

"You will like to see Mark, Robert."

Mark had reached the head of the stairs, when Elliot Wray caught him up.

"Here—wait a minute."

"What is it?"

"Where have you put this woman?"

"In the study. I've told Lane she's to have the bedroom next to yours."

Elliot said abruptly:

"I want to see her."

"All right, come along."

Elliot's first view of Miss Silver gave him a shock of surprise. She wasn't in the very least like anything he had expected.

He said, "Miss Silver?" and received a pleasant smile and a slight inclination of the head.

She was seated at the table with a green copybook before her. It was curious to see her there in old James' chair. The police had occupied the room all the morning. Photographs had been taken both here and on the terrace, everything had been gone over for fingerprints. Now the room was straight and tidy again. A little way off on the left, one of those small pocket diaries which Miss Paradine had been handing out last night. It was the blue one. He couldn't remember who had had the blue one—he hadn't been noticing. He thought it would be Mark, or Richard. He came over and picked it up. As he turned it in his hand, it fell open, as a book will do when it has been bent back to make a place. A date sprang into view—Feb. 1.

With the diary still in his hand, he was aware of Miss Silver saying,

"Is it the date that interests you, or the book?"

He put it down at once.

"O, mother. Miss Paradine was giving these diaries as presents last night. I wondered—"

"To whom this one had been given?"

"I don't know."

He took a chair and sat down.

"I believe you have a list of all our names. I am Elliot Wray. Mark Paradine said I could come and talk to you."

"O, certainly."

Wise Working Mother Wears Burden Lightly

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

I know much of what goes on behind the scenes when a mother is raising her family alone—especially when the war figures in that problem. But I do want to say a few things to those women that, I hope, will help them a little.

The working mother, we know, has her hands full with her triple job, that of breadwinner, parent, and homemaker rolled into one. At one time in the past she was the exception. Today her number is legion.

Any one of a number of things, financial straits, divorce, death, illness, the war, has forced her to carry a heavy load. Nothing but devotion and the endurance that the human race has demanded of mothers could give her the ability to swing the triple job.

Now we all know that there's more than one way of carrying your responsibilities. They can be carried as a dead weight, a burden bearing you down. Or, they can be carried with an absence of self-pity which makes it possible to stride thru life with a sense of "lift" and enjoyment, provided of course you are a strong, well woman. It would be ignoring reality not to admit that there are conditions of ill health, marital unhappiness, or grief which make it possible for some women to carry on only with a dogged gritting of teeth.

But all working mothers are not so unhappily placed as that. Many of them have the right combination of job and children, but instead of enjoying life and their children, they allow themselves to be weighed down by it. An injured feeling colors their attitude toward everything. Housework becomes an insurmountable task, the children a chore and a nervous strain.

This is not necessary, especially when one's boys and girls are past little childhood. Of course you get terribly tired at times, and weary and cross. You're only human. But with a real interest and delight in your children these times will be only occasionally, and you will feel almost always a glow of anticipation when you look forward to the end of each working day.

Children have much to give if only you are not too inwardly involved, if only you are receptive, and ready to be chummy and cheerful. They can be a source of fun, real pleasure and of strength.

Try to be a little like the comedian in the old musical show "I've gotter motter—always merry and bright—look around and you will find—every cloud is silver lined," and so forth.

Why We Dare Put Richelieu Alone Against the Field!

In a recent survey, 8 out of 10 husbands preferred Richelieu. Here's why they chose this expertly tailored, distinctive blend.

All coffees contain certain acids which can ruin rich, full-bodied, mellow flavor.

These undesirable coffee acids can be "cured out" by aging the coffee in hot, humid, tropical climates. Richelieu pays the price to get coffees thus properly cured. Then blends them with a skill gained through 82 years of experience.

A delectable coffee cake, fresh from the oven, is able to cope with any situation, whether it's family breakfast, afternoon tea, or Sunday night supper. And a slice of home-made coffee cake packed in the lunch box is reason enough for carrying a lunch to work.

Quick coffee cakes qualify for honors in the dessert class, too, when they're glorified with a pungent cinnamon sugar filling and icing, glazed with sweet orange marmalade or baked with a crunchy peanut topping. Bake the cake in a casserole, if you like it served piping hot at the table.

Filled Cinnamon Coffee Cake.

[One 7x11 inch cake.]

Batter:
- ¼ cup shortening
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 2 cups sifted enriched flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup milk

Filling and topping mixture:
- ½ cup sugar
- 3 teaspoons cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons enriched flour
- 2 tablespoons melted shortening

Cream together shortening and sugar. Add egg. Mix well. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Add flour mixture and milk alternately to creamed mixture. Spread half the batter in greased 7x11 inch pan. Mix all ingredients for filling together until crumbly. Sprinkle half the mixture over batter. Cover with remaining batter and sprinkle with remaining topping. Bake in moderately hot oven [375 degrees] for 30 minutes.

Marmalade Glazed Coffee Cake.

[8-inch square cake.]

- ¼ cup shortening
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 2 cups sifted enriched flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup milk
- ½ cup orange marmalade

Cream together shortening and sugar. Add egg. Mix well. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Add flour mixture and milk alternately to creamed mixture. Put orange marmalade in a lined greased 8 inch square pan. Cover with batter. Bake in moderately hot oven [375 degrees] for 40 to 45 minutes.

Peanut Coffee Cake.

[9-inch round.]

Batter:
- 2 cups sifted enriched flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 egg yolk
- ¾ cup milk [approximately]
- ¼ cup margarine, melted

Topping:
- ½ cup peanut butter
- ¼ cup margarine
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ½ cup salted peanuts, chopped
- Evaporated milk, to moisten

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Stir in egg yolk and milk. Add melted margarine. Place mixture in greased baking dish, 9 inches in diameter. Bake in hot oven [400 degrees] about 15 minutes. Spread with topping made by blending ingredients in order listed. Return to oven to finish baking, about 10 minutes longer.

Beef and kidney stew made with red wine and garnished with a snowy border of whipped potatoes is a spectacular yet inexpensive dish for company meals. It's low on ration points, too, for it uses unrationed kidneys and only ½ pound of beef. Add cooked kidneys and ½ cup red wine to prepared beef, carrot, potato, and onion stew. Turn into baking dish, garnish with potatoes, brush potatoes with egg yolks mixed with a little water, and bake at 450 degrees until browned.

'Thru the Looking Glass

We're all under a peculiar obligation these days to help keep the wheels turning everywhere—at home, at work, in the shops. And it seems to us—and to the harassed beauty shop operators and managers—that if we want to keep the beauty salons as a smooth working service that in turn helps us retain our composure and our apperance, we have to do our bit there, too.

The bit consists of consideration. The lack of it on the part of some, not all, women clients is playing a pretty large part, we suspect, in some of the confusion that exists in some salons. Manicurists and beauty operators and hairdressers, who have plenty of troubles of their own, even as the clients, find the unreasonably exacting woman so hard to bear that they're tempted to throw up their jobs.

Promptness about appointments is more than ever necessary these days, when help is short and work is doubled. The fact that you've been patronizing a shop for 15 years, let's say, may have, in the past, permitted you to feel that you deserved a little special treatment in this respect. It doesn't now. Please, please be prompt, for your own sake, for the sake of the clients who follow you, and for the sake of the operator.

And remember, too, that the old leisurely days are over for the present. Beauty shop business appears to have tripled. The help must work faster, the customers must be sped thru the mill and must take it. Fussing unnecessarily or smoking deliberately while the girl waits to apply your nail polish is a little beauty shop luxury every woman should forgo for the duration.

Huge Canning Program Set in Motion for '44

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 [Special].—Plans for conserving 1944 food crops commercially, by home canning, and by community canning have been set in motion here. The war man power commission today announced that the United States employment service in 25 states will coöperate with the canning industry by helping to recruit 500,000 workers.

"We propose to make sure that this year, as last, there is no wasting of food because man power cannot be supplied for the processors," said Paul V. McNutt, WMC chairman.

At the height of the processing season last year, he said, about 500,000 workers were employed, recruited with the aid of USES. Recruiting plans, McNutt said, will be submitted to the National Canners' association convention later this month in Chicago.

Continued stimulation of home canning and safeguarding of the product from spoilage is being pushed by the war food administration thru its extension service. Because of spoilage reported last year thru oven and open kettle methods of canning, WFA is urging that oven canning be abandoned; open kettle canning be used only for relishes, preserves, jams, and jellies; boiling water bath be recommended only for tomatoes, tomato juice, rhubarb, fruits, and fruit juices, and that the pressure canner method be used for processing of all low acid vegetables and for such products as meat, poultry, and fish. WFA will seek as wide recognition as possible for these home canning principles which safeguard the product.

The war production board allocation of 400,000 new cookers, made of aluminum if enough of that metal is available and equipped with dial gauges, will be a highly important factor in making 1944 home canning plans possible, according to experts of the bureau of human nutrition and home economics of WFA. The bureau also notes that the pressure cooker companies are willing to repair old cookers in preparation for the canning season, and that all gauges should be checked, as faulty gauges cause much spoilage.

A new handbook for community food preservation centers is being prepared by WFA for the use of the rural war production training program of the office of education, which administers a grants-in-aid program under which volunteers can for school lunches and neighbors band together to save local surpluses and take advantage of canning equipment not available to the individual householder. A marked rise in such centers is expected this year due to increased plans for school war gardens and the promised manufacture of more pressure cookers.

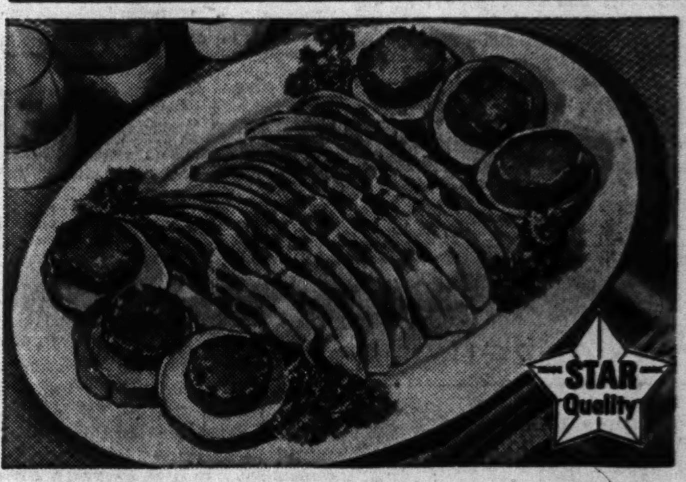
Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat



Star Bacon with Sweet Potatoes and Apples

Here's a point-easy dinner that's mighty easy to prepare. Everything you need for it is easy to get—your market is sure to have these foods on hand. And what a wonderful combination of fine flavors—bacon, sweet potatoes and apples! All favorites!

Ration-wise, this meal is a real bargain—takes so few meat points per person! It takes just a few slices of Armour's Star Bacon to provide the satisfaction of a big meat meal—because Star Bacon is richly flavorful—sugar-cured in its own juices, then slow-smoked over fragrant hickory and hardwood fires!

Cook 2 unpeeled, medium sized sweet potatoes in boiling water until tender—then peel and slice in thick crosswise slices. Core 2 tart apples and slice in half inch slices. Place ½ lb. of sliced Star Bacon in cold frying pan. Fry slowly over low heat for 10 to 12 minutes, turning frequently and pouring off fat as it accumulates. When crisp but not brittle the bacon is done. Using some of the bacon drippings, fry the apples and slices of sweet potatoes. Serve as illustrated. Serves 4.

President and Mrs. Franklyn Bliss Snyder of Northwestern university are entertaining from 4 to 7 p. m. Saturday, Feb. 19, to meet Rear Admiral and Mrs. Arthur S. Carpender. The party will be in the nature of a welcome back to Adm. and Mrs. Carpender, for he was in charge of the naval R. O. T. C. at Northwestern until the United States entered the war.

Mrs. Irving Kreutz is giving a tea and shower today for Miss Joan Hixon, who is to be married to Ensign Joseph Thomas Martin Feb. 12 in North Bend, Ore., where he is stationed with the naval air corps. Miss Joan Potter, who will go west to be a bridesmaid, is giving a dinner tomorrow for Miss Hixon, and Miss Lucia Winston is giving a luncheon Sunday at the Onwentsia club. Friends of Miss Hixon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon, will drop in at their Lake Forest home Sunday afternoon to bid farewell to the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Hixon and their other daughters, Mrs. Milton Wilson Jr., and Mrs. Maurice Hanson, will go west for the ceremony. Mrs. Wilson will be matron of honor.

The Winter club has postponed its annual skating carnival for another week because of the absence of ice.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

To lose a finesse and thus lose a trick is one thing; to give up control of the hand thru an unsuccessful finesse is quite another. Consider this deal:

East, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
East-West 60 on score.

NORTH
♠ 8 7 4
♥ 6 3
♦ 9 8 5 3
♣ A 10 7 4

WEST
♠ K J 10 9
♥ J 8 7 2
♦ 10 7 4 2
♣ 9

EAST
♠ 5 3
♥ Q 10 9
♦ A K Q J
♣ K Q 5 2

SOUTH
♠ A Q 6 2
♥ A K 5 4
♦ 6
♣ J 8 6 3

The bidding:

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 diamond | Double | 2 diamonds | Pass |
| Pass | 2 spades | Double | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

South's two spade bid was a decided stretch, even considering the score. However, with the dummy North put down for him, the risky bid should have turned out beautifully.

West opened the diamond deuce; East won and correctly switched to a trump. Declarer, a dyed-in-the-wool finesser, hopefully played the queen, and the hand blew up in his face! West won with the king and led back a trump, and now declarer could ruff only one heart in dummy. He made both of his low trumps on diamond ruffs, but at the end he still was short the vital trick.

Even without the warning of West's double, declarer should have declined the spade finesse. The correct play of the ace would have resulted not only in a fulfilled contract but in an extra trick! After putting up the spade ace, declarer cashes the A-K of hearts, ruffs a heart, ruffs a diamond, then leads his last heart. East has to sit by impotently while dummy's eight of trumps takes care of this trick. Now declarer cashes in the trump six on a diamond ruff, and, rubbing it in to the opponents, leads to the club ace and wins another trick with the now-blank spade queen. At the end West has the dubious pleasure of ruffing his partner's club tricks!

Horowitz Plays Rachmaninoff Work Superbly

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Désiré Defauw conducting; Vladimir Horowitz, pianist. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Feb. 3, 1944, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:
Overture to "The Tempest" .. Honegger
[First performance in Chicago.]
Two Nocturnes .......... Debussy
Clouds, Festivals.
Symphonic Suite, "Lieutenant Kijé" .......... Prokofieff
Concerto for Piano, No. 3, D minor .......... Rachmaninoff

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

If I could choose just one thing in the music season, I think it would be to hear Vladimir Horowitz play. I know of no other one thing at once so beautiful, so brilliant, so tingling with excitement and so supremely satisfying to hear and to remember. In the 16 years since his breathtaking debut with the Rachmaninoff Third Concerto he has won and held a vast, almost a universal, public. Last night, playing that same concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Désiré Defauw, he made the piano magnificent.

Now that Rachmaninoff is dead, the Third Concerto is uniquely Horowitz's own. He has the clean, singing poetry to bring its opening to life, the prodigious velocity and cascading wealth of tone to take full command of one of the most difficult scores in existence, and the untapped reserve of shining splendor to surge triumphantly into the great climax, held so cannily and with such pianistic craftsmanship to the very end.

Horowitz, too, for all the spectacular brilliance of his playing, its audacity and its burning intensity of mood, was no reckless virtuoso riding on the surge of excitement. He was a master of the piano, always in command, never forced, never rushed, an emperor in his own realm.

If the orchestra has not been rehearsing valiantly this last week, at least it sounded like it, which is all that counts. It played a good concert. True, the Rachmaninoff lacked the old surging splendor, but as far as know, this was Horowitz's first concert with Désiré Defauw, and perfection of synchronization takes time. The accompaniment was adequate, sometimes vividly incisive, and it permitted the soloist to take command.

So the concert ended like a tornado with shouts, and it began like a storm with Honegger's Prelude to "The Tempest," a purely theatrical score, all winds and waves and roaring orchestra, a curtain raiser worth knowing. The Debussy nocturnes, played earlier in the season at a Tuesday concert, found "Clouds" delicately played and more effective than "Festivals." Mr. Defauw's way with Prokofieff's brilliant "Lieutenant Kijé" coincided with the romantic conception of Fokine's "Russian Soldier" rather than the waggish, tongue in cheek style of the mythical lieutenant whose demise is scarcely more tragic than the premature taps for Pvt. Tussie. But both styles are worth hearing, and it was a good performance, evoked and silenced by a trumpet call of singular beauty, ideally played.

It was announced yesterday that Mr. Horowitz will return to Orchestra hall in recital Monday evening, May 20. Tickets are now on sale at the box office.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 3.—Anne Shirley's friends believe that when Victor Mature arrives in a few days they'll hie themselves to a preacher. They've been corresponding like mad ever since he went away, and he was hurt and humiliated when she announced three days after their engagement that there would be no wedding. Incidentally, Anne and Faye Emerson were cementing South American relations at Romanoff's by dining with three important men from Brazil. . . . Dolores Moran will take quite a leap upward when she plays opposite Humphrey Bogart in "To Have and to Have Not" for Howard Hawks. . . . Remember Peggy Diggins, who tried so hard to be an actress? Then she got a job taking photographs in England, put on a WAC uniform, went over and got married to Lt. Col. John S. Davis. . . . If Lou Smith, who recently resigned from M-G-M, signs up with R. K. O., it will be with Bill Goetz and his international setup. . . . Kate Smith moves west in two weeks.

Out in Blaze of Glory.

Claudette Colbert, with only four days' rest, begins "Practically Yours" with Fred MacMurray. They'll bow out of Paramount together. This is the last picture there for both. MacMurray starred there with Claudette in "Gilded Lily." Claudette is delighted that I badgered her into doing "Since You Went Away." She's doing raves about it and everybody in it. Her husband, Dr. Joel Pressman, says it's the first time he's seen her on the screen looking the same way she does at home. For three months she never looked at her daily rushes, which is something that's never happened before. It's unglamorous, but mighty human. When she saw the picture she said, "I cried like a baby and you will, too."

Signed One—Got Four.

Fibber McGee and Molly fans have wondered whatever happened to the old timer, Mr. Boomer, Mr. Wimple, and Nick. Well, when Bill Thompson volunteered for the navy, they all volunteered with him. He played 'em all. Bill's now at Great Lakes. His kid brother's also in the navy. "I was in boot camp three weeks," Bill writes, "before one of the fellows found out what I did in civilian life. But the gang were swell about it. None of them held it against me." Well, all I can say, Bill—we sure do miss you. . . . Capt. John Hamilton received a citation of merit because of combat action in the South seas. I'm wondering if that isn't our Stirling Hayden. He sure wants to forget he ever was a movie actor.

This You Would Have Loved.

Wish you could have heard Command Performance, with Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra. [It goes to our men overseas.] Glenn Wheaton filled it with humor, and the audience roared. I must say, Frankie stood up against the old master very well indeed. When Bing asked Dinah Shore what Sinatra was doing there, Dinah replied, "Sinatra's a great singer. A singer like that only comes once in a lifetime." "Yeah, but why did he have to come in my lifetime?" asked Bing. "But Bing, don't you think he has great presence at the microphone?" "O, sure. Only trouble is, tho, you can't tell where the mike leaves off and Sinatra begins." Frankie's gags were just as good. . . . I spotted Mrs. Jack Benny, Mrs. Jack Warner, and Mrs. Jules Stein among those present.

Eddie Mannix introduced Betty Hutton to Capt. Clark Gable, and there was instantaneous combustion when Betty went into action. . . . Marlene Dietrich is mighty concerned over her husband's illness. She's really serving as a trained nurse these days. . . . Ann Sheridan and Jane Wyman of "Doughgirls" put the pitch on Mark Hellinger to have Faye Emerson to play the Russian girl in the picture. And wouldn't she be swell? . . . Roddy McDowall sent his first Valentine to Juanita Quigley, who's in "National Velvet." . . . Bill Bendix, working as a stoker in "The Hairy Ape" five days, didn't take any hair off his chest, but it sure reduced that spare tire around his middle. . . . Right cute earrings Lt. John Alder sent Janie Withers. They're shaped like P-38s. . . . When Pierre Aumont left to join the "Fighting French," he took a print of "Cross of Lorraine" across to Africa with him and presented it personally to Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Never Too Late.

Arthur Schwartz got the assignment of the year producing life of Sime Silverman, called "Mr. Broadway." Sime was as picturesque as George M. Cohan and the great stage stars. In fact, they were intermingled. When the crash of '29 came, his description of it, "Wall Street laid an egg," traveled around the world. And I've been wondering why somebody didn't buy his story. Now Warners has. . . . Tony de Marcos is coming back for another picture.

Declares Talk of Delinquency Harms Youths

"Too much talk of delinquency is thrown into the teeth of our young people today," Mrs. Mary Lee Lerch of New York, senior adviser with the National Association of Girl Scouts' program division, said yesterday. She spoke before executives and camp committee members of the association's Great Lakes region, who are conducting an outdoor activities planning conference in the Hotel LaSalle.

Because so much is said about it, Mrs. Lerch declared, the percentages of juvenile delinquency probably are much lower than the average person thinks. To emphasize the detrimental effect of such talk, she cited the instance of some youngsters flippantly giving what they termed a "juvenile delinqency" party and saying they did so "because we belong to that age."

Mrs. Lerch expressed the belief that the biggest job Girl Scout workers face today is that of helping girls under their jurisdiction to find creative recreation. Current wholesale employment of teen age boys and girls is tending to make them increasingly dependent upon money bought pleasures instead, she explained, adding that nothing counteracts this trend more effectively than outdoor and camping activities.

She urged the workers to plan their camps so youngsters would not become so involved in schedules and programs that there would be no time for actual relaxation.

Established Girl Scout camps operating for a week or longer in the last year totaled 373, according to statistics quoted by Miss Lucille Cannon of Chicago, regional staff member.

Navy Mother Contest Will End Monday

More than 7,000 candidates have been nominated for the title "Navy Mother of 1944" in a nation-wide search to find the typical mother of a navy man or woman. The winner, who will be selected immediately after the contest closes Monday, will be a guest for one week at the United States Naval Training station at Great Lakes.

A board, made up of five women—the wives of naval officers at the Great Lakes station—will select the winning candidate from those nominated in letters. Every woman who has a son or daughter in the navy, whether officer or enlisted personnel, is eligible for consideration. Nomination may be made by the mother herself, or by a friend, relative, or local Navy Mothers club.

Typical of the letters received is one which nominates Mrs. Ruth Ringis, 1216 Astor street. Mrs. Ringis, an employe of Marshall Field & Co., is 39 years old, and has two sons, Richard E. Smith, 19, and Russell Smith, 17, in the navy. Richard is in the submarine service. Russell is stationed at Great Lakes.

From Mrs. Ann Purdy, Sawyerville, Ill., comes a nomination naming herself for the title. Mrs. Purdy's only son was killed Jan. 3 in the explosion of the U. S. S. Turner off the Atlantic coast.

"I have never been to Great Lakes," she writes, "but I would like to see it."

Her son received his "boot training" at the station. Her letter was written after she attended memorial services for her son.

A true navy wife and mother is Mrs. Otto Schmoeger Sr., 551 8th street, La Salle, Ill. Mrs. Schmoeger and her husband, Chief Specialist Otto Schmoeger of Great Lakes station, have five sons in the navy. She was nominated for the title "Navy Mother of 1944" by a member of the Navy Mothers club of Peru, Ill.

Others nominated were Mrs. James Leininger, Mason City, Ill., who had four sons in the navy, one of whom recently was reported to be dead; Mrs. Martha Kerske, 2753 Fullerton avenue, three sons, one of them a prisoner of the Japanese, in the navy, and Mrs. Price Blakely, Eau Claire, Wis., who has four sons in service, two of them in the navy.

FASHIONS
By Angela

No Chicago woman's wardrobe is complete unless it has raincoat protection. These three models offer fashion plus a positive guarantee against both wild winter rains and the milder ones of spring. All three represent a trio of new rain weather styles.

The model sketched left is a red gabardine type with comfortable slide-over-suits raglan shoulders. The fly front is echoed in the bindings on the deep pockets. Stitching accents the turn down collar. It is also available in natural, navy, and powder blue, in sizes 12 to 18.

In the center is the favorite Chesterfield with weatherproof ideas. It is fashioned of red and white checked taffeta, with black velvet as contrast on the notched collar. Three buttons offer security against wild winds. This model has capacious pockets and is available in blue and white and brown and white checks. Priced under $10.

Cadet blue gabardine makes the double breasted trench coat with saddle pockets at right. Shoulder straps and tabs on the sleeves carry out the military inspiration of this coat fashion, which has the pinched-in belt typical of officers' handsome coats.

Militant Moms of 'Apron Shift' Fill Need for Radar Workers

Now it's the "apron shift" in war plants, newest wrinkle in Chicago's efforts to get every possible woman out of her home for at least a few hours a day to help send vitally needed war materials to the fighting fronts.

The "apron shift" originated at the Zenith Radio corporation plant at 6001 Dickens avenue. It runs from 9:15 in the morning, after the kids are off to school, to 1:15 in the afternoon, in time to let mother get home and prepare for their return.

"It's pretty popular, too," said Comdr. Eugene McDonald, head of the company and one of the radio industry's pioneers. "Lots of mothers want to do war work, but can't leave their children for nine or 10 hours. They can't fit themselves into regular jobs, so we fit the jobs to them.

"We've got another shift we're proud of. It's the high school girls' special. They come in after school and work for four hours, and on Saturday they work eight or more, and thus get paid for perhaps 30 hours a week. Some of these girls are our best producers."

One of them is Mary Lou Johnson, 17, who not only led her division in work output but was named queen of the plant in the radar-radio industry city-wide contest.

Comdr. McDonald is sold on the belief that most war plant workers will be able to keep their jobs after peace is declared. He said 20 years of technical development have been squeezed into two under war time pressure, and that so many new products will be made manufacturers will be kept busy for years trying to meet the demand.

"That will be true in dozens of lines, including radio," he said. "Radio sets are wearing out at the rate of 20 per cent a year, and growing more obsolete every day. In addition, every plane, every railroad engine, every intercity truck, and every ship larger than a rowboat will have one or more radar units.

"There will be no more train or ship collisions, and planes will not run into mountains, because radar will give them positive protection. There will be no more need of hand operated or telegraphed signals on trains, because engineer and conductor will be in radio communication with every other train within miles. Ships will be automatically veered away from icebergs.

"All the devices that now control our planes, ships, guns, tanks, and other weapons will be put to peace time uses. Then there will be frequency modulation radios, which will rival the automobile industry in volume, and later television, when it is perfected. It's exciting work, with an appealing future."

Most radar plants in Chicago have been able to meet production schedules, Comdr. McDonald said, but have been called upon to add 35 per cent to their output in the next six months. This will require an estimated 10,000 workers, of whom a part have been obtained in the current recruiting campaign.

"We met every one of our production schedules on 11 different units in January," Comdr. McDonald said, "but we must have 700 more full time workers, as well as some who can put in part of their time, within a month.

"I wish we could make more people, particularly unemployed women and both men and women who are not in essential industries, realize that the factory jobs that are waiting for them are just as important to victory as the fighting jobs their sons and husbands are handling so well. It would be criminal to send our men to fight without the very finest equipment.

"The allies are far ahead in radar. The Germans haven't got good radar equipment any more because our army knocked out the plants in Holland that were giving it to them. The Japs can't produce the quality that we do, but before we can get over there and destroy their factories we have to make enough to get our ships and planes there with as little loss as possible.

"And there's no more important job for any civilian than that!"

Women in War Work

—By Kate Massee

Because many of the 60 day care centers for children of mothers engaged in war work are opening at 6 a. m. and closing at 7:30 p. m. and new centers are scheduled to open in the near future, Miss Mary Murphy, chairman of the child care committee of the OCD, is appealing for 500 more volunteers.

Registrations for a training course to begin March 6 are being accepted at the volunteer office, OCD and Council of Social Agencies, which is handling the interviews, at 53 West Jackson boulevard, Wabash 0528. All who wish to volunteer are urged to call in advance for an appointment.

The centers needing assistants are operated by private institutions or have been established for the war emergency with the aid of Lanham act funds, administered by the board of education.

Trained child care aids will be placed in centers as close to their homes as possible, and hours of service will be arranged to suit the volunteer.

The training has been organized by experts in the fields of education, psychology, psychiatry, and health. It is a 78 hour course offered at the National College of Education, Evanston, and the University of Chicago, with other training centers established strategically thruout the city if registrations indicate the number of applicants would make such a procedure feasible.

The course consists of 30 hours of lectures and observation, followed by 48 hours of practice teaching. Trained volunteers are asked to pledge a minimum of six hours' service weekly for six months in a year. According to the committee, the principal qualifications are interest in small children and good health.

Middle western chairmen of salvage yesterday opened a three day conference in the Morrison hotel to discuss ways of increasing collections of greases, paper, and metals from householders.

Miss Helen Blankenhorn, chief of the women's unit of the salvage division of the war production board, Washington, D. C., paid tribute to the state chairmen who volunteer their time to meet quotas within their districts.

In 1944, Miss Blankenhorn said, American housewives will have to salvage 30 million pounds of kitchen fats, raise the tin can collections by 50 per cent, and concentrate on salvaging rags in addition to waste paper. Rags are vital to the prosecution of the war, she explained, because they are used to wipe and clean machinery and guns.

WACs Will Follow Invaders of Europe, Col. Hobby Declares

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 [Special].—WACs will follow into Europe and other global fronts immediately after the invasion troops, Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, WAC director, said at a press conference today on her return from an inspection tour which included units now working behind the invasion lines in Italy.

Many more WACs will be sent abroad because there are more of them trained for certain specific jobs than there are soldiers, and their abilities are needed overseas, Col. Hobby asserted. Thousands of others will shoulder new responsibilities at domestic installations as troop movements to foreign stations continue, she said.

Reporting on the morale of the corps abroad, Col. Hobby said WACs don't get homesick, don't get serious illnesses, and don't let the devastation of war "get them." She said they are satisfied with their jobs and feel themselves an important part of the army.

Referring to the increased rate of WAC enlistment, which now averages about 800 a week, Col. Hobby said she thought it might have been accomplished thru the new plan which permits a girl to enlist in the branch of service she desires and to choose the locale of her first assignment.

City Club to Make Study of Convalescent Homes

At a 1:30 p. m. meeting today of the Woman's City Club of Chicago, arranged by the club's public health committee, the study subject will be "Convalescent Homes for the Aged." Miss Edna Nicholson of the Council of Social Agencies will lead a discussion on the problem of properly regulating housing and care of the aged, chronically ill, and indigent. With Mrs. T. H. Ludlow presiding, reports will be given by members of the public health committee regarding visits to some of the homes and interviews with residents and operators.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

YOU probably have read and heard that Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, has no sympathy for competitive athletics. . . . We had been told he was the one who had banned the participation of army specialized training students from intercollegiate sport. . . . Our information was erroneous on both counts. . . . We have it straight from a man who ought to know—Robert P. Patterson. . . . Dutch Bergman, coach of the Washington Redskins, and Owner George P. Marshall had been feudin' for several weeks before Dutch's recent resignation. . . . Gus Dorais' quest for future Detroit Lions up and down the Pacific coast has been slowed down by daily invitations to address local luncheon clubs. . . . Bill Steinkemper, former Notre Dame and Chicago Bears tackle who expects to be called to active duty as a navy ensign within a few weeks, meanwhile is assisting Mike Dwyer, athletic director at the Medinah club of Chicago. . . . Nick Burke, captain of the 1942 Northwestern university football team now in the marine corps, has received a lieutenant's commission at Quantico, Va. . . . Sen. A. B. [Happy] Chandler of Kentucky says that abandonment of sports in the United States would be one of the most damaging moves that could be directed at the morale of Uncle Sam's overseas forces. . . . The Russian embassy last week reported in its information bulletin that the iceboat sport season is in full swing in Moscow and that elimination matches had started for the boxing title. . . . Skiing and speed skating contests were held in various parts of Russia in December and January. . . . Death has taken Michigan's oldest living "M" man, Arthur G. Bishop of Flint, who was a catcher on the 1870 Wolverine baseball team. . . . Charley Peterson has been playing billiards 45 years. . . . Gene Sarazen, one of golf's most popular figures, has sold his Connecticut farm to Gabriel Heatter, radio commentator. . . . If you are interested in sports records or predictions, consult Bernie Cummins whose band is now entertaining Stevens hotel patrons. . . . He has them at his finger tips. . . . Doc Newton is on his way out as North Carolina State football coach and will be succeeded by his assistant, Farmer Johnson. . . . George Lloyd, 76 year old sportsman who for many years has escorted Golden Gloves boxers from the ring to their dressing rooms, is seriously ill in West Suburban hospital. . . . This from Lt. Comdr. Jimmy Crowley somewhere in the South Pacific after a meeting with Lt. Col. Dick Hanley of the marines: "Cast my vote for Dick Hanley as coach of the 1944 College All-Stars. He hasn't lost a game this year and looks to be in great shape." . . . Both Crowley and Hanley were members of the original All-Star coaching staff, headed by the late Noble Kizer of Purdue, in 1934. . . . Their team held the Bears to a scoreless tie, which had much to do with the continued success of the enterprise. . . . The death yesterday of Jimmy Corcoran of the Herald American robs Chicago sports circles of one of the most popular columnists and reporters this area has developed.

OHIO, WISCONSIN TO TEST PURDUE, N. U. TONIGHT

Wildcats Visit Madison; Indiana Plays Michigan.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern and Purdue, which share the leadership in the Western conference basketball race with Iowa, will be put to the test tonight. The Boilermakers open a series at Ohio State and the Wildcats play in Madison against the Badgers, who have vastly improved since they were beaten by Northwestern, 60 to 38, a month ago in the Stadium.

Indiana's hapless Hoosiers begin a series tonight at Michigan to complete the conference three game program. In addition to the double headers already mentioned, Iowa will be host to Chicago tomorrow evening and Minnesota plays Northwestern in the first game in the Stadium double header at 8:15 o'clock. De Paul and Notre Dame clash in the second Stadium contest tomorrow evening at 9:45.

Wendland Important Factor.

Coach Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern is apprehensive of tonight's game in Madison. While the margin of victory in the first contest would seem too great on which to base fear of a licking, Lonborg knows from long experience that Wisconsin always is difficult to beat on its own court. Moreover, the Badgers, after dividing games with Illinois and losing to Northwestern, have moved along smoothly with two victories over Michigan and one over Minnesota.

Russ Wendland, star guard for the Wildcats last season, has had sufficient time to fit into the Badger quintet and his long distance shooting, as well as his defensive play, may be an important factor.

Purdue Anticipates Trouble.

Northwestern will be at full strength for Wisconsin with the possible exception of Ronnie Schumacher, who is the first substitute at the guard positions held by Jerry Carle and Ben Schadler. George Felt, exceptionally valuable to the Wildcats on rebounds under both backboards, will be at center. Principally because he works on offense from the corner with Capt. Otto Graham handling the ball on the pivot, Felt has not received the attention his steady performance deserves.

While Purdue has won six conference games, five of their remaining six will be played away from home and the Boilermakers particularly anticipate trouble this week-end at Ohio State. The Buckeyes, led by Don Grate, who has scored 108 points, have been defeated only by Northwestern, 42 to 40, in six games and their height advantage and familiarity with their own court point to victory over the Boilermakers.

Michigan Is Favorite.

While Michigan has lost seven of its eight games, the Wolverines have a better team than the record indicates. They were beaten by four points by Ohio State in one contest and by two points in overtime in the first Purdue game. Michigan is picked to whip Indiana on its defensive record. Indiana's opponents have averaged 61 points while Michigan's opponents' average is 49½ points.

WARRIORS' RING STAR LOSES, BUT TEAM WINS, 4-3

Camp Grant, Ill., Feb. 3.—Charles Busalacchi, Golden Gloves star fighting for the Camp Grant team, tonight was the victim of a freak technical knockout, but the Warriors defeated Camp Custer, four bouts to three.

Busalacchi, appearing in the wind-up match, knocked down Oscar Hodnett, the Michigan team's welterweight, for a nine count in the first round. Hodnett got up and a few seconds later the two collided, Busalacchi suffering such a severe cut on his nose that he could not continue. Results:

Ted Varnadoe, Fort Custer, featherweight, beat Fred Conti [3]; John Miller, Fort Custer, lightweight, beat Dominic D'Acyuisto [3]; Joe Chuckro, Camp Grant, light heavyweight, beat Oliver Phelps [3]; Mickey Grod, Camp Grant, welterweight, stopped Anthony Cascerta [2]; Fred Contreras, Camp Grant middleweight, beat Nello Sensoli [3]; Tim Dalton, Camp Grant, lightweight, beat Albert Solas [3]; Oscar Hodnett, Fort Custer, welterweight, stopped Charles Busalacchi [1].

Sailor Boxers Are Cheered by Shipmates

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Three sailor boxers from the U. S. S. Wolverine, aircraft training carrier anchored inside Chicago harbor, were reënforced by a cheering gallery of 50 shipmates and officers for their bouts in the north sectional Golden Gloves tournament in Loyola university gymnasium last night.

Capt. Charles L. Lee, skipper of the Wolverine and 145 pound boxing champion of the United Naval academy in the early '20s [he was graduated with the class of 1924], was cheer leader.

Other officers from the Wolverine at the ringside included Lt. Robert E. Van Sluyter, Ensigns Roy Watson and Arthur J. McMahon, and Chief Petty Officer William Gannon.

Ensign McMahon, is a former St. Louis Golden Gloves boxer. Ensign Watson was spending his last night in Chicago. He leaves today for a combat carrier at sea.

"There's one of our boys now!" came thundering from the ringside as Fireman Al Pesce, novice middleweight, crawled thru the ropes, followed by his coach, Watertender 1st Class Jim Kapanicas. The sailor's foe was Richard Rodriguez of Waller High school. Altho the battle was evenly waged most of the way the Wolverine rooters applauded when Dick was given the decision by a narrow margin.

The Wolverine's other representatives were Seamen Charles Baker, novice light heavyweight, and Machinist Mate Wayne Malmstrom, novice heavyweight.

Machinist's Mate Malmstrom advanced to this evening's competition, by winning by default from Georgie Decker of the Duncan Y. M. C. A.

BALL PLAYERS FEAST; RELIVE GOOD OLD DAYS

Ed Walsh Guest of Honor at Annual Event.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Ball players whose names graced box scores at one time or another down thru the last 50 years or more were given a few fleeting moments of the spotlight as well as a chance to talk briefly last night in the Morrison hotel when 1,100 guests assembled for the 25th annual dinner of the Old Timers Baseball association.

Along with the association's silver anniversary the occasion marked the diamond jubilee of the launching in Chicago of a professional baseball team known as the White Stockings.

Walsh Guest of Honor.

Under the toastmastership of Joe Farrell, who never made a base hit but carved a baseball career from his presidency of the Woodland Bards, the White Sox rooting organization, the guests ate their way thru the corned beef and cabbage menu without mishap.

More than 50 former stars, from Tony Mullane down to such "kids" as Ray Schalk, the ex-Sox notable, were introduced. Guest of honor was Ed Walsh, who despite the handicap of a weak hitting White Sox team, pitched himself into the ranks of baseball's all-time best.

Baseball affairs scheduled to come up this week-end in New York began to atttract local notables yesterday. Commissioner K. M. Landis left for the metropolis to make sure he wouldn't miss his own meeting tomorrow. This has to do with what the magnates have chosen to call post-war planning, but they may find themselves in much the same fix as a carpenter planning to build a house without lumber.

The magnates seem to think something should be done immediately to assure rapid absorption of player-soldiers when hostilities cease. As only a few minor leagues are operating there is only limited opportunity at present and the limits can't be expanded until such time as the minors agree to resume. And they can't do this until the players are available so the committee members, after assembling, may discover they have two ends without a middle.

Landis May Free Players.

There have been intimations that the commissioner may order free agency for a vast number of players, now in service, who are carried on the reserve lists of clubs for which they never played. Any such suggestion is expected to encounter formidable opposition. There will be arguments, too, if an effort is made to hamstring the farm club operations of major league clubs.

Three committees will answer the summons to Landis' meeting. The American league will be represented by President Will Harridge, Alva Bradley of the Indians, Jack Zeller of the Tigers, Clark Griffith of the Senators, Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox, and Joe Hostetler, league attorney and secretary of the Indians. The National leaguers scheduled to appear are President Ford Frick, Warren Giles of the Reds, Branch Rickey of the Dodgers, Sam Breadon of the Cardinals and Horace Stoneham of the Giants.

TUNNEY PLEADS FOR OVERSEAS SERVICE SPORTS

Comdr. Gene Tunney, back from five months service in the South Pacific, yesterday pleaded for athletic equipment for men in the services in a talk before the National Sporting Goods association in the Sherman hotel. Comdr. Tunney stressed the need for such equipment to keep up morale in battle areas, and promised to take his plea to Washington.

The allotment for men in service in this country is $2 per year for athletic equipment, Tunney said, but no provision is made for men overseas. At one major naval base in the United States, however, equipment for 300 was made to do for 15,000 Tunney said. "We did the best we could with what we had," the commander added.

The only difficulty about morale encountered by the navy, Tunney said, is among men not in the front line. In the fighting line the men are intent on killing Japs or Germans. When not in battle they must have sports.

OUT OF TOWN BOUTS TONIGHT.
Cleveland, O., Plain Dealer, finals.
Grand Rapids, Mich., Press, first round.
Indianapolis, Ind., Times, first round.
Peoria, Ill., Journal-Transcript, first round.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

This will be another big night in the Golden Gloves campaign. From the third consecutive session of bitterly contested fighting, the north side champions will emerge—eight open division boxers and eight novices.

Then a new goal comes into sight. The rugged lads who smack their way unbeaten thru this rigorous test of hitting power and ring generalship will march on to the struggle for the city championship, which will pit the north side winners against the south a week from Monday in Marigold Gardens.

Another fast moving series of bouts last night cleared the way for tonight's finals in all weight classifications. The fans who jammed Loyola gym were entertained with a show that moved at a typical Golden Gloves pace.

Dwyer Beats Sharkey.

John Dwyer, a St. Rita High school boy, sparked the novice bouts with a strong comeback to beat John Sharkey in a lightweight engagement. In the early stages Sharkey sent Dwyer spinning half way thru the ropes and continued to pummel him while he was in this disadvantageous position.

Dwyer fought his way out of this jam, but he wasn't satisfied with just getting clear. His mishap made him more belligerent and from there to the finish he belted his opponent so powerfully that the judges gave him the decision without hesitation.

A pair of apprentice seamen from the navy's V-12 school at Illinois Tech put up thumping fights only to lose decisions to civilians by narrow margins.

C. Y. O. Fighter Advances.

In the first of these novice engagements Roy McClellan of the C. Y. O. whipped Eugene Wise, the Illinois Tech lightweight representative, after which John Theodoror of the Madison A. C. disposed of Wise's shipmate, Richard Michalek, in the 160 pound class. Both fights were hard punching affairs from both sides and it would have taken only a shade of difference to alter the decisions.

Chris Fitzgerald, who distinguished himself on the first night of the tournament, continued in stride last night by scoring a decision over Charley Porter of Illinois Tech. Fitzgerald found his rival difficult to deal with for Porter was mighty quick with counter punches. The Loyola academy boy made another strong finish, however, to get the decision by a narrow margin.

Battling Thrills Fans.

From early in the evening until the last blow fell, there was seldom a letup. Pair after pair of hard hitting youngsters threw themselves into the fight with the zest which spectators have come to expect in the course of the 17 year history of this competition.

Army and navy boys from various camps, schools, and training stations, representatives of the city's athletic clubs, and numerous unattached boxers mixed it up with a zip that drew salvos of cheers from the crowd.

The bouts are expected to be better than ever tonight—for the first two evenings of slugging have eliminated the less skillful boxers. The champions who come out of tonight's finals are sure to be of so high a caliber that they can make it mighty tough in the city title bouts for the brilliant south sectional winners such as Herb Mashino, Harry Sparrow, and Jimmy Sarenella.

A Formidable Trio.

All three of these boys have had considerable experience and all three look stronger than ever this season. They've improved their timing so as to add considerable power to their punches. The north siders who win the flyweight, bantamweight, and welterweight titles tonight will have to point for clashes with these three south siders.

The lad who takes the north side featherweight title also will have a job cut out for him because he'll have to oppose Pete De Simone, a

Jim Corcoran Dies After Long Illness

Jimmy Corcoran, veteran sports writer and conductor of the Cork Tips column in the Herald-American, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 1901 Lunt avenue. He was 48 years old. Death was attributed to a combination of a lung ailment and the shock following the recent death of his brother, Tony.

Jimmy Corcoran.

Corcoran, a patient at the Hines hospital for 20 months, was taken home shortly before Christmas. The day he returned home his brother died.

Served in First World War.

Jimmy was born on Chicago's near north side and as a youngster participated in athletics at Seward park. He played in the Knights of Columbus Indoor Baseball league and later became secretary of that organization.

After his graduation from Loyola academy, Corcoran joined the old Chicago Record-Herald and remained there until the first World war. He enlisted in the navy, became a chief petty officer, and saw overseas service. Corcoran joined THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE when the war ended, ending this connection to enter the advertising business. Later he joined the sports staff of the Evening American.

Suffered Series of Injuries.

Corcoran was struck by an automobile while crossing Sheridan road near his home in 1934, the accident resulting in hospitalization for almost a year. Shortly after his release from the hospital he was knocked down in the rush of the crowd in Madison Square Garden while covering the Louis-Schmeling fight and suffered a torn leg ligament. A few months later he suffered a broken hip in a fall at his home.

Corcoran is survived by his widow and two sons, Jimmy Jr., now in the navy, and Tony, age 11.

The body will be at the chapel, 6311 North Clark street, this afternoon. Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Monday morning at St. Jerome's church, Lunt avenue and Paulina street. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

HOPPE RALLIES TO WIN TWICE FROM COCHRAN

Willie Hoppe again nullified fine billiard play by Welker Cochran at Bensinger's Recreation yesterday in their return Chicago match to win both the afternoon and evening blocks and run his lead to 400 to 305 for the eight sessions played.

Hoppe came from behind in both blocks, taking the afternoon session, 50 to 35 in 45 innings, and the evening affair, 50 to 41 in 32 innings.

In the afternoon he caused Cochran's safety plays to boomerang with runs of four, two, and one and in the evening he overcame high runs of 10 and eight by the former champion running an eight himself.

The match concludes today and tomorrow with afternoon and evening blocks. Scores:

HOPPE—001 001 002 840 202 001 020 010 000 003 310 000 407 412 001—50. High run, 8.

HOWE SCORES 6 GOALS; DETROIT BEATS NEW YORK

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3 (AP).—Veteran Syd Howe scored six goals tonight for a National Hockey league record as the Detroit Red Wings defeated the New York Rangers, 12 to 2, before 8,147 spectators. The victory gave Detroit sole possession of second place.

Howe got his goals in pairs as Detroit scored three times in each of the first two periods and made six goals in the third period. The 32 year old center scored 18 seconds apart in the first period, 62 seconds apart in the second, and within 57 seconds in the final period.

The victory put Detroit two points ahead of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

HARRISON DEALS LINDBLOM FIVE 1ST LEAGUE LOSS

Rally Near End Brings 23-21 Triumph.

Lindblom lost its first game in five starts in the central section City league basketball race yesterday when Harrison rallied in the closing minutes of play to win by a 23 to 21 score on the losers' floor.

Harrison led 11 to 7 at half time, and Lindblom was out in front by a 16 to 15 score at the conclusion of the third period. With the score 20 to 18, Lindblom leading and four minutes to go, Walter Kochnuk scored a field goal to tie the count, and then Harrison moved ahead and stayed there until the final gun.

Tilden Beats Farragut.

As a result of its loss, Lindblom dropped half a game behind Tilden as the latter quintet defeated Farragut, 37 to 27, on the Tilden floor for its fifth victory in six starts. Frank Schlaffer, leading scorer in the section, paced the victors' attack with seven field goals and three free throws for a total of 17 points.

In the west section senior race, Austin beat Foreman, 50 to 14, for its sixth consecutive triumph. Chuck Allen got 10 field goals for top honors.

Fenger Is Routed.

The South Shore seniors also gained their sixth straight victory in the south section by routing Fenger, 67 to 22 in the latter's gymnasium. Dan Trahey led the winners with 23 points. Scores:

LEO'S IRISH LADS FACE THEIR BIG BATTLE TONIGHT

BY MARK COX.

There will be more at stake tonight than the luck of such fine Irish lads of Leo High school as O'Grady, O'Donnell, Malone, and Ryan and their buddy, just plain Ed Dawson, when the Lions pay their annual call at neighboring Mount Carmel High for the sake of settling the Catholic league senior supremacy of the south side.

With no thought of slighting capable north side opponents like Weber's present team, the traditional south side foes like to believe—and they're usually right—that when they square off it's for the Catholic league title. As a result, the meeting of the Lions and the Caravan has come to be known as the time they throw away the records and the two teams start from scratch.

This Is the Big One.

For instance, last year there was only one detour in the Caravan's march to the Catholic league and city titles. That was a 33 to 32 setback by Leo the first time around. Tonight's game has the same buildup as that one of a year ago. No one has been successful in halting the Caravan in 15 attempts, and both will carry perfect five game south section marks into battle.

A group with less courage might be wary about going up against the towering Mount Carmel five tonight. But not Brother Haley, acting athletic director and spokesman for Brother Finch, the Lions' coach who is not speaking as the result of recently suffering a broken jaw, who says, "This is the one, and we certainly are going after it."

The problem confronting Brother Finch and his assistant, Brother Connelly, who came to Leo from New York's Power of Memorial High after winning the Gotham title and appearing in the former national tournament at Loyola, is one of height. The answer is vested in Dawson, leading Catholic league scorer, with 78 points, and at 6 feet 4 inches, taller than Mount Carmel's tallest.

Malone Directs Play.

Dawson not only is the best of more than a full quintet of good shooters, but also is the bellwether of an aggressive rebounding attack, excelling in tipping them in. Depended on for maneuvering the ball to the big fellow on the post are a pair of speedy forwards, Frankie O'Grady and Ray O'Donnell. O'Grady, just recovering from a touch of the flu, is the better shot of the two, but O'Donnell is the superior floorman.

Jimmy Malone, one of the three seniors on the squad and nearly 18, the oldest member of the team, is the floor general, directing the defensive and offensive maneuvers. Don Ryan, the other guard, has utilized his steady play to ward off challenges for his job from Don McAuliff and Tom Nicholson, a pair of the flashy type of players, who have their on and off evenings.

SOUTH SIDE TITLE IS GOAL

[In Memoriam.]

Yours is peace for an endless time,
And yours is the berth you sought;
These hearts of ours are pained, yet proud,
In the glory of how you fought.
No more will the gay colored flags at mast
Call you and your men to land,
For the "cast" you answered in silence at night
Was sent by a Mightier Hand.
Perhaps where you went the sea breeze blew
With a fullness in its blast,
As you neared the deck of the heavenly ship
With a "Roger" to the last.
And He on His bridge returned your salute—
The report of your battle won,
Then echoed the hearts of all of us
With a "Very well done, my son."

FAETZ' 1,622 IS TOUGH TARGET IN TEN PIN CLASSIC

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The 1,622 which the peppery Leo Faetz of Chicago's Classic league Monarchs hung up for the lead in the $32,000 Petersen bowling classic last Tuesday night began to loom larger as the field emerged from last night's rolling on Barney Hochstadter's Archer-35th recreation lanes.

Faetz, thanks to a 256 game, became the first in the regiment of 1,280 bowlers to cross the 1,600 mark. Leo, a member of the Chicago family which has been a factor in the sport for 42 years, didn't have to wait longer than the following squad to find himself pressed by his Monarch captain, Bill Flesch. The latter wound up with 1,611 and thus became the third member of the Monarchs to win a $100 squad prize, the others being Faetz and young Harry Ledene Jr.

The Faetz aggregate waxed even stronger after the first two squads had completed their exercises last night. Al Sharkey of Chicago shot a 1,581 to move into a sixth place tie on the evening's opener. That was the only impressive score until the second set came on, when H. O. Hegna, a southpaw from Milwaukee, submitted a 1,598, which gave him fourth place.

The Hegna squad included two of the main threats of the show—Paul Krumske of Chicago Meister Braus and Connie Schwoegler of Madison, Wis. While Hegna was making his bid, Krumske wound up with a 1,460. Schwoegler had 1,442.

KEEP UP SPORTS IN WAR, URGES WPB OFFICIAL

George McMurphey, chief of the recreation division of the office of civilian requirements, whose duties consist of supplying general policies for sports, yesterday declared that the government, as represented by the WPB, expects professional sports to continue and hopes they do.

"I can see nothing wrong with sincere club owners and sports participants going right ahead with their activities during war time," McMurphey said after a conference with Elmer Layden, commissioner of the National Football league, and K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball.

MADISON A. C. BOXERS BATTLE GARY TONIGHT

Amateur boxers from Gary will meet the Madison Athletic club tonight in Madison arena, 4711 Madison street. The Gary squad will include Booker Washington, 160; James Copewood, 152; Phil Rogers, and Richard Leland, 140, and James Andrews. Washington will be paired with Boatley Miller, Rogers with Oscar Williams, Andrews with Johnny Razzano, Leland with Jimmy Jones, and Copewood with Bryant Glenn.

Bill Johnson of Yankees Ordered to Take Physical

Augusta, Ga., Feb. 3 (AP).—Bill Johnson, New York Yankee third baseman, will report Feb. 7 at Fort McPherson for his pre-induction physical examination. Johnson, father of one child, batted .280 last season in 155 games.

U.S. OIL FIRM TO BUILD PLANT IN SAUDI ARABIA

Part of Plan to Lift Domestic Pinch.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 [Special].—Secretary Ickes, petroleum administrator for war, tonight disclosed that an American oil company will build a privately financed refinery in Saudi Arabia and that another American refinery in the Persian gulf was being expanded. The disclosure came after Sen. Moore [R., Okla.] on the floor of the senate accused the administration of creating an artificial oil shortage, and attacked Ickes for his assertions that certain allies have gone into the oil business.

Senator Moore.

Ickes said the exploitation of the middle eastern oil reserves is being pushed to relieve the burden on United States resources. His announcement was interpreted as an assurance to the oil industry that the government was not entering the oil business in the middle east.

Urges End of Agency.

Apprehension that the government was planning to finance and operate foreign oil plants was expressed yesterday by the committee on national oil policy of the petroleum industry war council. The committee urged the Petroleum Reserves corporation, created last June 30 by the President, and headed by Ickes, be abandoned.

Last October it dispatched a special mission to the middle east to study possible methods of utilizing foreign oil resources to lighten the pressure on domestic producers.

The Saudi Arabia project will be financed and operated by the Arabian-American Oil company, jointly owned by the Standard Oil Company of California and the Texas company, Ickes said.

Projects Under Expansion.

Other projects disclosed by Ickes are the expansion of the American owned Bahrein Petroleum company refinery on Bahrein Island in the Persian gulf; the Abadan, Iran, refinery of the British owned Anglo-Iranian Oil company, and the Haifa refinery of Consolidated Refineries, Ltd., also British owned. The Bahrein company is jointly owned by the Texas company and Standard of California. Ickes said the expansion projects have been under way for several months.

Attacking Ickes for his assertions that the British, French, and Dutch governments have gone into the oil business, Moore said government ownership or control would destroy the American oil business, and added:

"Mr. Ickes did not know what he was talking about."

Warns of Palace Guard.

Moore warned that the White House "palace guard" is trying to crush private enterprise. He spoke in explanation of the bill which he and Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] introduced to dissolve the Petroleum Reserves corporation.

Moore said the organization of the PRC under Ickes was one of many burocratic assaults upon the oil industry.

"Ever since the socialistic and communistic New Dealers took over," he said, "they have had their eye on the oil industry as one of the choice plums to be picked.

"Since we entered the war, the national policy has been to emphasize the virtues of foreign development, promotion of propaganda that we are running out of oil at home, and the restraining of operations in the United States."

Fight Over Air Routes Flares Anew in House

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The smoldering dispute between groups of air lines to determine who shall fly the post-war international air routes broke out in the house today with a speech by Rep. Sheppard [D., Cal.] charging Pan American Airways with lobbying for a monopoly in overseas air transport.

"If I see the slightest sign of this monopoly plan becoming effective I will file with this house a resolution calling for the most complete investigation, not only of the action of the [governmental] department or departments involved, but of Pan American Airways' operations, with and without the assistance of the taxpayers' dollars, from its founding to the present day," he said.

Line's Official Are Silent.

Pan American officials in Washington refused to comment on Sheppard's speech.

Rep. Sheppard accused Pan American of maintaining in secret a mansion in Washington where it "entertains discreetly and sumptuously." He said that Juan Trippe, Pan American president, has filled the company's board of directors with representatives of banking firms, railroads, steamship lines, and communications companies.

Sheppard said Leo T. Crowley, head of the foreign economic administration, is a Pan American director, and recalled that Edward Stettinius, undersecretary of state, is a brother-in-law of Trippe.

Warns of Crippled Aviation.

"What if Juan Trippe should have his way?" Sheppard asked. "Then the old, old story of monopoly would once more be repeated; complacency, inertia, stagnation. There would be no impetus to progress, no urge to improve service. The sole beneficiaries would be Trippe and the people he represents. American aviation would be crippled."

The feud between advocates of unrestricted competition on post-war ocean air routes and those who want a chosen instrument, or monopoly, to operate international air lines, has become a touchy subject with government officials. No policy has been adopted, altho L. Welch Pogue, chairman of the civil aeronautics board, which passes on applications for routes, has indicated his support of open competition.

LINES' SURPLUSES RISE

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP).—The nation's air lines increased surpluses and reduced indebtedness during the 12 months ended last June 30, the civil aeronautics board reported today.

Despite loss of nearly half its planes to the government after Pearl Harbor, the air transport companies increased their revenues above the previous year about 7 million dollars to a total of 114 millions. Operating expenses decreased about 10⅛ millions to 82½ millions, the report for the 1943 fiscal year showed. Total operating profit before deductions for nonoperating costs and income taxes was $31,700,000.

The carriers increased their earned surplus from 13 million dollars to 27 millions and reduced their long term debt from 2¼ millions to less than $750,000.

Payments for carrying air mail declined by $100,000 to $23,700,000.

PRICES OF GRAIN SAG, RALLY, END LITTLE CHANGED

Professional operations dominated the grain trading on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday and prices held within a narrow limit. After opening higher, the markets sagged on selling attributed to Chicago traders and in sympathy with a break in securities. The loss was recovered late in the session on short covering. Wheat finished ⅝ cent a bushel higher to ⅛ cent lower, the latter on September, which was the most active trading month. Rye gained ⅛ to ⅜ cent.

Trading in oats and barley was restricted pending an office of price administration announcement of permanent price ceilings on both grains expected tonight. Oats were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher and barley ½ higher to ⅜ cent lower.

People and Events

William A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, has been elected a director of Stewart-Warner corporation succeeding the late Frank A. Ross, it was announced yesterday. Frank A. Hiter, vice president and director, has been designated senior vice president to act as chief executive officer in the absence of James S. Knowlson, chairman of the board and president. Knowlson announced the first step in an organizational change, in which related products of the corporation are to be grouped together as divisions. Division one will include the products manufactured in Chicago in the Diversey plants, and division two will comprise products of the Stewart Die Casting plant, Chicago, and the Bassick company, Bridgeport, Conn., a subsidiary.

Arthur S. Barrows, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Wilfred Sykes, president of Inland Steel company; William A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, and J. M. Symes, Chicago regional vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, have been added to the transportation committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

ADDRESS E M 103, TRIBUNE

NATION PERILED BY SOCIALISM, SAYS WOLCOTT

Warns of Dangers to Freedom.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Americans must guard against efforts in Washington to socialize the nation with the result that the American way of life would be destroyed, Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.] told the American Road Builders association at the Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday. Back of every piece of legislation in congress, he said, lies this fundamental issue: Shall we retain the American system?

Rep. Wolcott.

In Washington a socialistic group holds that after the war there will be a confederation of socialized nations including Russia, Germany, and other European countries, China, and what is left of Japan.

Democracies Face Isolation.

This group contends that the two great democracies, the United States and the British commonwealth of nations, will be isolated by these socialized countries. The only way the democracies will be able to compete with the socialized states is to become socialized themselves, the Washington group insists.

Its members are attempting to guide thru congress legislation which will enable them to assure the socialistic nations that America will coöperate with them after the war.

Fortunately for America, Wolcott said, congress is fully aware of these evil influences and is on guard to prevent their success. One bulwark against the socialists, he said, is the recently appointed post-war economic planning committee of the house of representatives whose 18 members will scrutinize future legislation closely.

Seeks Socialized Medicine.

Wolcott said that the socialists had been defeated in efforts to socialize the American banking system thru capture of control of the federal reserve. Had this been done, he said, the result would have been a financial octopus, with headquarters in Washington or on Wall street, which would have been able to exert political control over every business in the nation.

The group is seeking to socialize the medical profession now, he said, and thru the proposed subsidies it is endeavoring to socialize agriculture. If agriculture is socialized, Wolcott said, the government will be buying entire farm crops.

Wolcott assailed statements in which some Washington officials have said there is no need to worry about the huge national debt because the United States will have an annual income of 135 billion dollars—or even 200 billion dollars—after the war. In only one year before the war did the national income approach 100 billion, he said, and that was in 1929.

"Debt Can Ruin Nation."

"It is wishful thinking to believe there is a way to get a national income of 135 billions after the war without depreciating the currency," Wolcott said. "Is there any one who can be so optimistic in planning for the post-war period as to believe that we can double the prewar national income?

"You can ruin America thru the national debt if you want to, and you can save it. Undoubtedly we shall continue the present value of our currency for some years after the war. The value of the dollar has been cut from $1 to 75 cents even with our effective controls. Tho we hardly recognize it yet, inflation is here in a mild form.

"We can save our financial structure—and the nation—by utilizing under rigid control taxation and inflation. We probably will have to reconcile ourselves for some years to higher taxes and the present cheaper currency."

Land Reports 40% Drop in Ship Building

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States maritime commission, tonight reported a sharp decline in ship construction in January.

Production in merchant shipyards dropped to 124 vessels last month compared with 208 deliveries in December, a drop of more than 40 per cent, Land reported in a speech broadcast from an American Legion dinner.

Output Lowest in Years.

This output was the lowest since February, 1943, Land said. Some drop was expected because of the conversion of yards from Liberty to Victory ships and the concentration of other yards on military instead of cargo vessels, he stated, but the decline "was much sharper than we had reason to expect."

Land said the January shipbuilding record was not up to war needs. "We cannot keep pace with the needs of our armed forces on this basis," he stated.

Cites Invasion Needs.

The admiral explained that more than 2 million additional soldiers are scheduled to go overseas this year and that staggering quantities of equipment are needed to reënforce invasion plans.

The maritime commission chief said the main difficulty was in keeping shipyard jobs filled. The 1943 rate of turnover—96 per cent—was "entirely too great," he said. He cited this as an argument for enactment of national service legislation.

G. M. STRIKERS SPURN UNION'S WORK DECREE

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3 (AP).—Ignoring a back to work order from union officials, approximately 6,500 Detroit employes of the Chevrolet Gear and Axle division of General Motors corporation were on strike today. Operations were affected in four of six plants. Picket lines formed at plant gates this morning.

Company spokesmen said the strike, which began yesterday in a dispute over production standards, had virtually halted production of axle assemblies for army trucks and jeeps, parts for aircraft engines, and gun parts.

Only a few of the more than 600 Ford Motor company laboratory workers who voted last night to end a 15 day strike were back on the job today.

A company spokesman said a majority of the workers returning this morning refused to go thru regular reëmployment procedure. He said this was required of employes absent more than 10 days without approved explanation.

MELROSE PARK BUICK PLANT TO MAKE NEW CARGO PLANE ENGINE

Production is scheduled to be started soon on a new cargo airplane engine in the plants of the Buick division of the General Motors corporation at Melrose Park and Flint, Mich., Harlow H. Curtice, Buick general manager, disclosed yesterday. Installation of additional machinery is under way at the plants.

Curtice said the new product is a 14 cylinder radial engine of the Pratt and Whitney twin row Wasp type, developing 1,200 horsepower. It is comparable in most parts with the Pratt and Whitney engine being turned out by Buick at Melrose Park and Flint for use on Liberator bombers.

Production of the cargo plane engine will be carried on in conjunction with the bomber engine, with many of the parts and subassemblies for both being produced on the same machines and assembly lines. More than 35,000 engines for the Liberator bombers have come out of the test cells at Melrose Park since production was started.

SHORTAGE OF ONIONS ATTRIBUTED TO LIGHT CROP, ARMY'S BUYING

A serious shortage of onions has developed in the Chicago market, it was learned yesterday. Dealers attributed it mainly to a small crop in 1943 and military demands. Illegal markets and price controls also were blamed.

Onions were reported scarce "thruout the country" by the war food administration. The 1943 crop was 14,816,000 hundred pound sacks, compared with 18,781,000 in 1942 and a 10 year average [1932-'41] of 15,402,000. The military demand for onions was indicated by the fact that the army is taking half of the supply in Michigan.

Russell Lutz of the Russell Produce company said his company had been unable to get onions since the end of December. Supplies in the last week have been dribbling in at the rate of one or two cars a day from Colorado and Wisconsin.

New crop Texas onions will arrive on the Chicago market in early April, Lutz said.

Many Chicago retail stores were reported to be without onions. Chain operators have complained the vegetable has been so scarce that many of their outlets have lacked supplies for several days.

Here's How Army Saved 27 Billions

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—War Secretary Stimson itemized a 27 billion dollar saving in war expenditures tonight. He listed drastic cutbacks in projects ranging from the Alcan highway to the supply of rifle ammunition. He reported the retrenchments in a letter to James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director.

Byrnes said that this tremendous saving would not lessen the need for more taxes and more bond sales. It showed, he said, that the army does not spend money "simply because it is made available."

The savings were made both in requirements and price reductions, and to some extent in amounts necessary for pay, travel, clothing, and subsistence for military personnel.

Not Evidence of Poor Planning.

Stimson said that curtailments should not be interpreted as indicating the war department had planned poorly in the beginning or was wasteful and inefficient in the early stages of the war. "Our original estimates were admittedly educated guesses and it was natural and proper to err on the conservative side," he pointed out.

The 27 billion dollar dropback from these estimates had been announced before, in two instalments, but without details. Among the many savings reported by Stimson were:

The highway to Alaska has been reduced from a road with an initial carrying capacity of 200,000 tons a month to one with an 18,000 ton capacity, all that is now needed.

Army Halts Isthmian Road Aid.

Construction of the Pan-American highway thru Mexico, begun when a threat of Japanese action against the Pacific coast of Mexico and the Panama Canal still existed, has been stopped, so far as military participation is concerned.

Extensive cutbacks have been made in the Caribbean area now that the German and Japanese navies are "hiding in their home waters."

Many millions of dollars have been saved by stopping work on "various fortifications, bases, and other military projects," placing many installations on a care-taking basis, and moving "a substantial part" of troops to more vital areas.

At least 20 million dollars has been saved by cutting back a sea coast defense program. "Our big gun sea coast fortification program begun in pre-Pearl Harbor days has been stopped," Stimson said.

Billions of rounds of rifle ammunition have been saved because the war department was able to determine that four instead of five rounds probably would be fired by each weapon, on the average, each day.

"Special" and "Secondary" Offerings

Today, through "Special" or "Secondary" Offerings, sellers of large blocks of stocks or bonds can be assured of a net price for their holdings and not be dependent upon price fluctuations or market activity. These new methods for security distribution appeal to corporations and fiduciaries, as well as to individuals.

We shall be pleased to advise and assist you in taking advantage of this modern technique for effecting large scale sales.

STOCK MARKET SWINGS LOWER IN BROAD TRADE

Losses of One Point or More Numerous.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The stock market today registered one of its largest declines in the last two months.

Selective gainers were fairly well distributed in the morning but most of them failed to get far in front. A wave of pessimism appeared in boardrooms after midday and, for a time, liquidation was fast and substantial. Losses of a point or more were widespread. Dealing then tapered and extreme declines were shaded in most cases at the close.

A number of reasons were given for the retreat. Among these was disappointment over the inability of industrials to follow carriers on their recent brisk upswing. In addition, some bearishness cropped up over the Russian federal republics plan, which was a puzzler to Wall street as well as Washington.

It was one of the broadest markets of several weeks, 918 issues appearing. Of these 527 were down, 191 up, and 200 unchanged. Transfers totaled 963,060 shares compared with 903,450 Wednesday.

BONDS CLOSE LOWER.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The bond market closed lower today. It first rose moderately, then receded under profit taking in the rails and subsequently recovered in the last hour to reduce the day's extreme losses.

In the forenoon, an assortment of carrier loans rose to new highs for recent years in heavy trading and there was selective demand for investment rated industrials and utilities. After noon, when stocks began to recede, offerings increased and losses of major fractions to more than a point were common among carriers.

The last minute comeback enabled the 20 carrier loans in the Associated Press averages to emerge with a net loss of .3.

Sales totalled $19,914,100, only slightly under Wednesday's extremely heavy volume of $20,739,700.

CHICAGO STOCKS MIXED.

Prices were mixed yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among volume leaders were Chicago corporation, down ⅛; Radio corporation, down ¼; Electric Household Utilities and Armour & Co., unchanged. Gillette Razor reached a new high at 9¼, up ¼.

OSCAR MAYER'S EARNINGS EQUAL TO $4.57 A SHARE

Oscar Mayer & Co., Chicago meat packer, yesterday reported net income for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 was $623,070, equal to $4.57 a share, compared with $555,070, or $1.09 per share in the preceding year.

American Furniture Mart Building company reported net profit of $211,141 for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 against $284,967 in the preceding year.

MARITIME AGENCY'S SURPLUS TO BE SOLD BY ORDERLY MEANS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 [Special].—The maritime commission today announced details of a plan for unified procedure in the disposal of surplus property and set up an order of preference for sales.

Under the plan first preference for acquisition of surplus materials will be given to contractors in the shipbuilding industry, then to other government departments, war contractors, industries reconverting to civilian production, and last to competitive bidders.

The commission said each shipyard is responsible for reporting to regional directors of construction on the east, west, and gulf coasts, and the Great Lakes area on all property in excess of the need of the particular vessel construction contract for which it was purchased. Coördinating agency for these area units is the surplus property section of the procurement division.

Supplies are to be segregated at the shipyard until use or sale of unrequired property is made. When local storage facilities are overburdened material may be shipped to maritime commission warehouses after consideration of handling and transportation costs.

World Money Plans Assailed by Economist

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Benjamin M. Anderson, former economist for the Chase National bank, today criticized the Keynes [British] and Morgenthau-White [United States] post-war monetary plans as requiring "a world state" with international control over trade between nations.

B. M. Anderson.

Anderson, professor of economics at the University of California, told the New York State Chamber of Commerce that instead of these plans:

"I want to see a real gold standard world again. I don't want international monetary coöperation in ordinary times. It prolongs unsound tendencies, as in 1924-'29, and then it breaks down in crises, as in 1931."

Trusts Free Markets.

"I have been too close to the centers of wisdom and power in governments and central banks to have any belief at all in the adequacy of their wisdom to do more than routine things. The more I see of governmental economic policy, the more I trust the automatic forces of free markets."

The plans offered by John Maynard Keynes, British economist, and by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and his adviser, Harry White, Anderson asserted, "both propose a great deal of coercion" and, he asked, "who shall coerce the coercers?"

Designed to Speed Trade.

The British and United States plans, as outlined early last spring, were intended to facilitate post-war trade. The British plan suggested a "clearing union" which would facilitate and control fund transfers between nations. The United States scheme advocated a "united and associated nations stabilization fund" intended to keep a member nation's exports and imports in balance.

Railway Car Builders to Be Busy Thru '44

Railroad executives and government transportation officials announced yesterday that orders of sufficient volume to keep the nation's available car building capacity in full operation thruout 1944 would be placed at once. The meeting of 200 executives in the Stevens hotel, from which this news came, also resulted in a joint plan for assistance in meeting the carriers' man power problem.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the office of defense transportation, said the war production board, which controls the flow of strategic materials, had assured the release of sufficient steel for the construction of 60,000 to 70,000 steel freight cars.

An undetermined but limited number of passenger cars also will be built this year, he said, and orders for locomotives already have been placed to the limit of manufacturing capacity.

The attack on the man power problem, which is acute on the nation's railroads, will be made thru selective service headquarters in Washington, D. C. Eastman and John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, said it was hoped that selective service would adopt a more liberal attitude in the deferment of rail workers as essential employes.

The man power campaign, which is intended to relieve shortages in car manufacturing and all phases of railroading, will be carried on thru a committee of A. A. R. members.

MARKET IS AGAIN CONGESTED WITH FLOODS OF HOGS

Congestion in the Chicago hog market failed to improve yesterday and an estimated 20,000 head remained unsold at the close, most of them "government weights."

Most sales were at steady to weak prices, with some kinds 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds lower. The average declined 5 cents to $13.30.

Cattle purchasers preferred the cheaper grades at steady to strong prices to the better types that were purchased on a steady to weak basis. Strength was evident mostly in steers and yearlings selling below $14. Advances of 10 to 15 cents occurred in lambs, with the top at $16.40.

MINE PAY PACT IS JEOPARDIZED BY TIME STUDY

Reports Traveling Period Is Longer.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—A special Presidential committee made a preliminary report today that a miner's travel time in bituminous coal mines averages 55.29 minutes daily—a conclusion which, if sustained by further studies, may lead the war labor board to reject the wage agreement John L. Lewis obtained from a majority of the coal industry after last year's series of strikes.

That agreement is based on an assumed travel time of 45 minutes daily, and WLB members have served notice that if travel time is determined to be larger they may scale down the compensation provided for the miners under the agreement.

The agreement has been before the WLB since Dec. 17, while the study of actual travel time was being made. Presumably, the board will continue to hold up action until the travel time committee makes its final report.

WPB Opposes Rationing.

The preliminary report, made public by the White House, coincided with these other developments concerning coal:

1. Any possibility of coupon rationing of coal this winter apparently disappeared when the war production board came out against it and the solid fuels administration announced it was not considering any fundamental changes in the present system of distribution.

2. Leaders of the United Mine Workers, headed by Lewis, urged members to work on Sunday in anthracite mines during February. Interior Secretary Ickes, as fuels administrator, has asked for Sunday work because of the anthracite shortage in the east.

Morris L. Cooke, chairman and representative of the public; R. L. Ireland Jr., representing the coal industry, and Thomas Kennedy, vice president of the UMW, made the travel time study.

Based on Returns.

Their figure of 55.29 minutes daily travel time, they advised Mr. Roosevelt, is based on tabulations of returns from 1,000 soft coal mines.

Under their old contract, expiring last April, the miners received $7 for a seven hour day calculated on the basis of time actually spent at the coal face within the mine. When Lewis sought a wage increase he ran into this obstacle: The miners already had received an increase larger than permitted under the WLB's Little Steel formula permitting a 15 per cent rise above the level of January, 1941.

Lewis then came out with a proposal for a nine hour day figured from the time the miner enters the mine until he leaves. It figured on an eight hour productive day, allowing 45 minutes for travel within the mine and 15 minutes for lunch.

For the eight hour day he asked $8.50—the old $7 for the seven hour day plus $1.50 for the extra hour.

The position of some of the WLB public members was this: If the Lewis formula actually meant an eight hour productive day the $1.50 increase could be approved, since it would represent only increased earnings for more work and not a wage increase. If, however, travel time was greater than 45 minutes, part of the $1.50 would represent a wage increase not allowable under the Little Steel formula.

NORM

There can be no harmony in a society that makes no distinction between those who keep the peace and those who disturb it.

And that is just as true of business and industrial corporations as it is of individuals in their daily lives.

There is no more dangerous political system than one that subordinates the norm to the exception and reduces the righteous to the level of the offender.

Under Attack—Jap Bases in Pacific

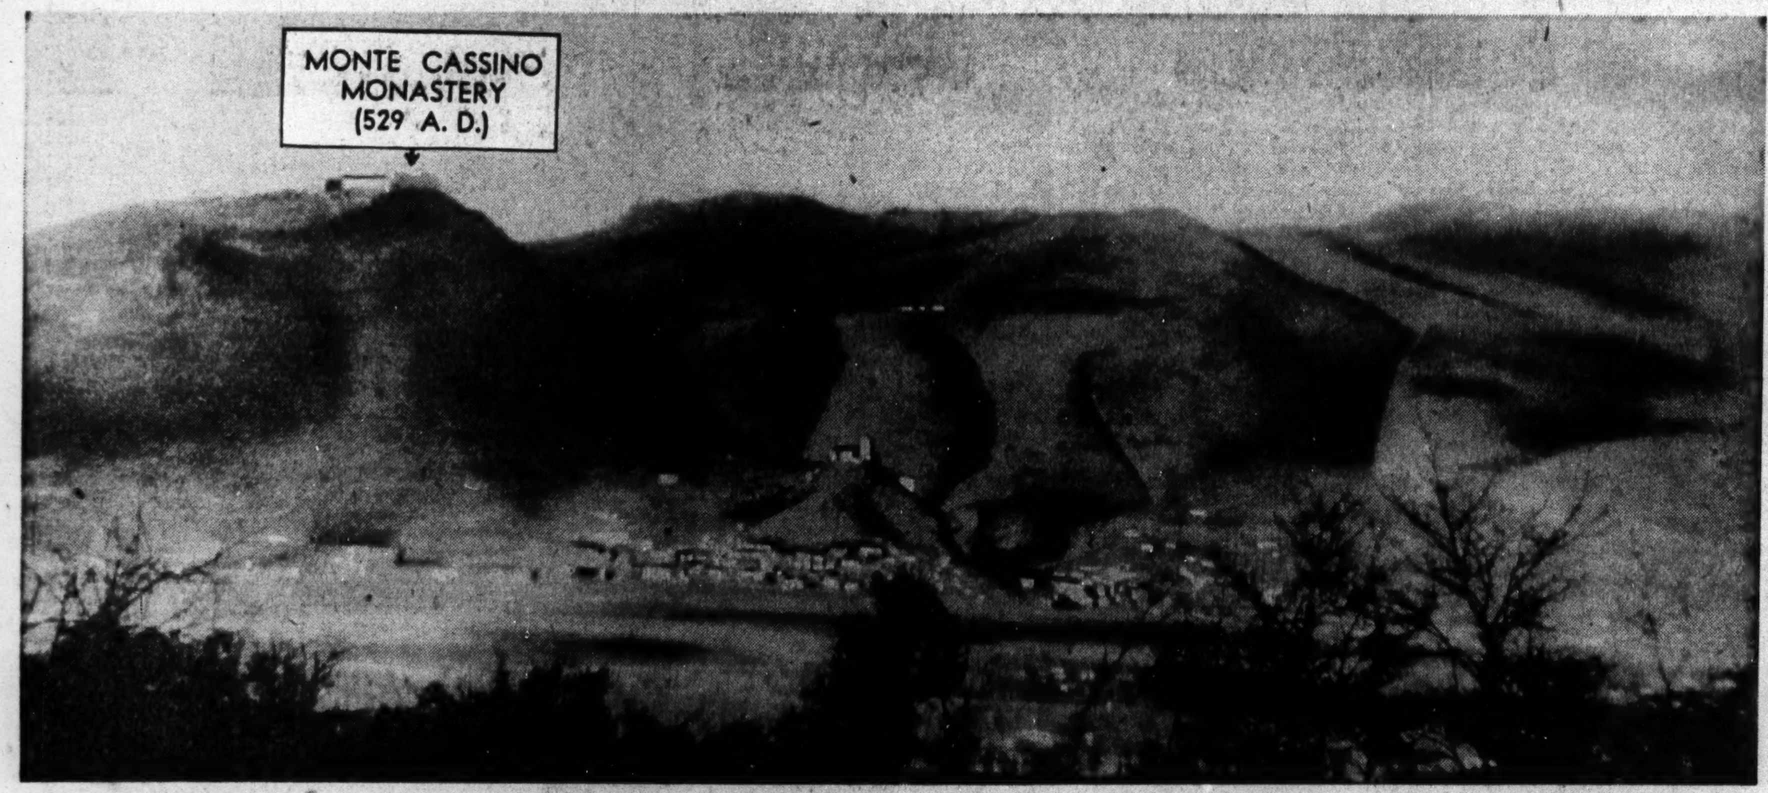
● This is a new map of the South and Central Pacific, showing, among other islands, the Marshall group, where American forces have made their first landings on territory held by the Japanese before Pearl Harbor. Landings were at Kwajalein and Roi in the Kwajalong (Kwajalein) atoll. Vast arc from Wake Island to New Guinea shows where allied attack aimed at Jap super-base at Truk is developing.

Yanks Battle for Possession of Cassino—Gen. MacArthur Visits Troops in 4 Star Jeep



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

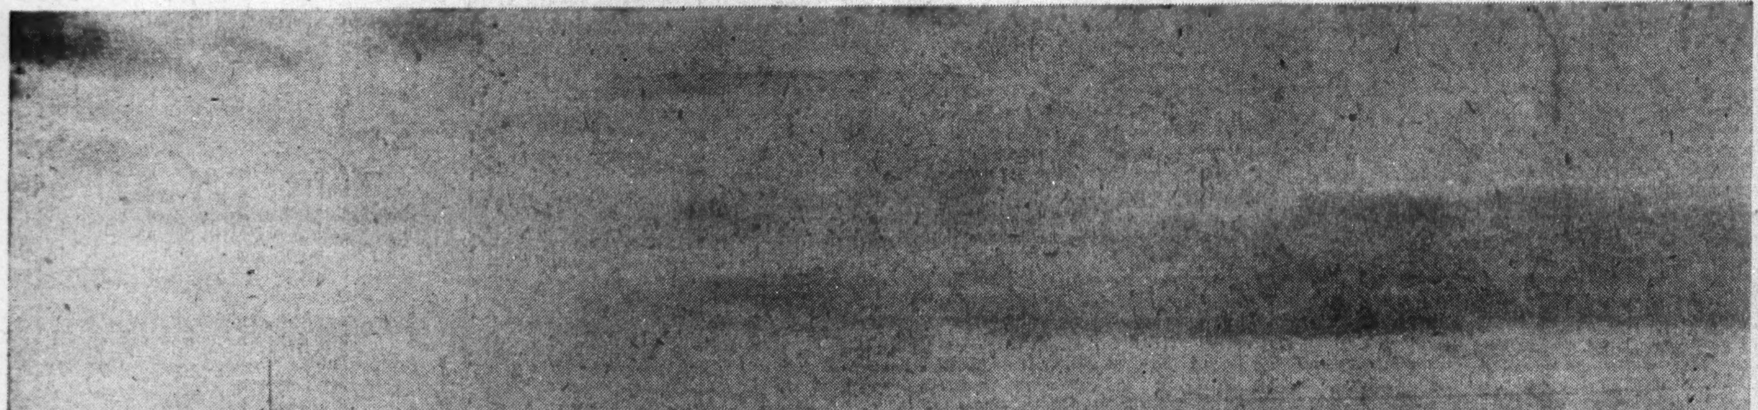
[Acme Telephoto: From U. S. Signal Corps.]

Gen. MacArthur in 4 star jeep at a forward area on his birthday, Jan. 26. At wheel is Lt. Gen. R. L. Eichelberger. Col. Lloyd Lehrbas, MacArthur's acting aide, is in rear.



[Associated Press Wirephoto: From U. S. Navy.]

This vast allied armada stretches over the harbor in the Anzio-Nettuno area of Italy after landing troops of the 5th army behind the German Gustav line on Jan. 22 for an assault on Rome and on the enemy's rear lines. Yesterday's reports told of beating off a Nazi counter-attack.

Wimpy, English bulldog owned by Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Donohue of Chicago, which will go to Corp. R. M. Szwed at Camp Stewart, Ga., to be mascot. Jeep killed earlier mascot.
